Arbitrator Denies Rise To 90,000, Union Says

Textile President Scores Turndown Of N. E. Hike Under Deal on Contract

Boston, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, reported today that an arbitrator's decision, specifically involving New Bedford-Fall River area workers, would have the effect of denying wage increases to 90,000 employes of the industry in New England and Middle Atlantic States.

Commenting on denial of a 10-cent-an-hour pay increase to New Bedford-Fall River cotton and rayon workers by an arbitrator, Union President Emil Rieve declared the decision is "a disappointment to us."

He contended the finding by the arbitrator, Prof. Douglas C. Brown, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was based on "a sort of economic crystal gazing." Rieve said the union would "withdraw from similar arbitration cases involving other cotton and rayon textile mills."

Prof. Brown was accepted by union and manufacturers as arbitrator of the pay increase request brought under a reopening clause of a no-strike contract which runs to March, 1950.

He declared the outlook for the industry did not warrant the requested increase at this time. The 10-cent hike would have raised average pay scales in the Fall River-New Bedford area to $1.28 per hour.

"The decision directly affects approximately 30,000 workers," the union announcement said. "However, it will also deny higher wages at this time for an addftional 60,000 workers in other mills."

20 Airmen Killed As B-29 Crashes In Scottish Wilds

Lochgoilhead, Scotland, Jan. 17 (AP).—An American B-29 Superfortress crashed in this desolate section of Argyllshire today, and police said all 20 Air Force men aboard were killed.

In London, a spokesman for the United States Air Force said, "Until all bodies have been recovered we continue to hold a faint hope that there may be survivors who parachuted and became lost."

The bomber, which had been attached to the 301st Bomb Group stationed at Scampton Field, Lincolnshire, was en route home to the States via Iceland. The group's home base is Smoky Hill Field, Salina, Kans.

The Superfort was carrying 11 crewmen and 9 ground force men and their baggage. Two ships took off together for Iceland, but one turned back because of bad weather.

40 Billion Bonus Bill To Be Asked by Amvets

Amvets, World War II veterans' organization, is getting ready to ask Congress to give veterans a bonus.

Harold A. Keats, national commander, said a mail poll of members "overwhelmingly favored immediate payment of a Federal bonus in Government bonds maturing in six years." Amvets estimated a bonus would cost 40 billion dollars.

After Tour of Night Spots

Heir to Baker Millions Shot To Death in Florida Mystery

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Grenville Baker, 27, handsome heir to New York banking millions, was mysteriously shot to death early today on his swank Horseshoe Plantation here after he returned from a tour of night spots with a drive-in waitress.

Tonight, after hearing four hours of testimony, a coroner's jury ruled that Baker died "by being shot in the head with a pistol held by a party or parties unknown."

Officials said the investigation would be continued but that no one is being held.

Witnesses differed as to the circumstances accompanying the death after two doctors testified that Baker died of a bullet fired into his right temple from range close enough to leave powder burns.

The young waitress, 21-year-old Mrs. Thelma Griffin, was slightly injured in the wreck of a jeep in which she and Baker were riding shortly before the shooting. Testimony disclosed that a married couple had met Baker at the airport and that they had gone on a round of taverns and had picked up Mrs. Griffin at one of them. They had apparently taken Baker to his plantation where he got the jeep and with Mrs. Griffin beside him, set off in the dark to show the married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Whiddon, the way to a highway.

Mrs. Griffin testified that Baker lost control of the jeep while driving up the dark plantation trail and it plunged into a ditch.

The crash knocked her out, the waitress said, and when she awoke she saw Baker lying motionless in the roadway. She ran for help, and when she returned the body had moved, or been moved, to the ditch beside the car.

Mrs. Griffin said that Baker had

150,000 Mass For Defense Of Nanking

Nationalists Flee Tangku; Peiping's Fall Appears Near

Nanking, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Chinese Nationalists fled by sea from the northern Port of Tangku today amid indications that Peiping was destined quickly to surrender or fall to the encircling Communists.

In central China, the government deployed troops estimated at 150,000 along a 300-mile Yangtze River front for the defense of Nanking and Shanghai. At least 300,000 Reds were grouping for the battle for Nanking.

Foreign military observers said the effort looked hopeless and that 60,000 of the troops were in what looked like suicidal positions some 30 miles north of Nanking.

The Chinese navy used small craft of all sorts to move the 35,000-man garrison across Taku Bar and out to sea.

The Communists shortly afterward broadcast that they had taken Tangku after the Nationalists fled.

Mediation in China Declined by Russia

London, Jan. 17 (AP).—Tass said tonight Russia has turned down a request of the Chinese government to mediate the civil war because of a policy of "non-interference in the internal affairs of other countries."

(Shortly after the Tass statement was released by the Soviet monitor in London, he informed editors the dispatch was being withdrawn and a corrected version would be moved later.)

The original dispatch said:

"The Soviet government's reply points out that restoration of unity in China as a democratic, peace-loving state is a matter for the Chinese people themselves, and that this unity could be achieved most rapidly by means of direct negotiations between the parties without direct foreign interference in the internal affairs of China."

Israel, Egypt Near Accord, Bunche Hints

Agreement Reported Reached on Release Of Encircled Troops

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Acting Palestine Mediator Ralph J. Bunche informed the United Nations Security Council tonight that he expected the Israeli-Egyptian armistice negotiations to "be concluded—and I hope successfully—within a matter of days."

His headquarters announced at Rhodes that Israel and Egypt reached agreement today on one problem before them, and a reliable source revealed this was the crucial question of releasing Egyptian troops trapped at El Faluja.

It was understood the evacuation would be contingent upon the success of current Egyptian-Israeli armistice negotiations.

The Israeli and Egyptian delegates held a seven-minute joint meeting tonight.

Israel Will Release Two RAF Prisoners

Tel Aviv, Jan. 17 (NYHT).—The Israeli government made two important conciliatory gestures today.

The government informed Britain that two Royal Air Force pilots shot down and captured during the last day of the Negev battle would be permitted to return home or to their Suez base.

They are Pilot Second Class Frank Harvey Close and Flying Officer Timothy McElhaw.

The government also agreed today to allow the evacuation of about 200 Egyptian wounded from Faluja in the Negev and to permit food and medical supplies to reach the encircled brigade.

A high government source revealed that initial parleys with the Lebanese had produced complete agreement on all military issues. This source also revealed discussions with Trans-Jordan were making "highly satisfactory" progress.

Prices Total $290,000

WINX Sold to Philadelphian; WTOP Acquires FM Station

Philip L. Graham, president of the WINX Broadcasting Co., announced yesterday the sale of standard broadcast Station WINX to William A. Banks of Philadelphia, Pa., and the sale of frequency modulation Station WINX-FM to WTOP, Inc.

The transfer of both stations is contingent upon approval of the Federal Communications Commission. Contract prices total $290,000, of which $130,000 is for WINX and $160,000 for WINX-FM.

Banks, a veteran broadcaster, is owner of Station WHAT in Philadelphia.

On October 20, 1948, the FCC authorized the assignment of WTOP, the Columbia Broadcasting System's 50,000-watt station in Washington, to WTOP, Inc., a new corporation of which 55 per cent is owned by The Washington Post and 45 per cent by CBS. FCC authorization was made contingent upon the sale of WINX and WINX-FM prior to February 20, 1949.

The Washington Post and Columbia Broadcasting System originally announced their plans on May 17, 1948, and made their application to the FCC on June 15, 1948.

Commenting upon yesterday's announcement, Banks stated: "WINX is 'Washington's First Independent Station,' with a long record for service to its listeners. On approval of the FCC, the new management of WINX will make every effort to maintain its leadership among Washington's independent stations."

Graham stated: "Mr. Banks is a broadcaster of long and established reputation. We are very pleased to have made this contract for the sale of WINX to him. The transfer of the FM station, which will become WTOP-FM, will provide listeners with the benefits of FM transmission of WTOP programs."

WINX operates on 1340 kilocycles with 250 watts. Its main transmitter is at Arlington, Va., with synchronous transmitters at 8th and I sts. nw., Washington, D. C., and the East-West Highway, Bethesda, Md. WINX-FM operates on 96.3 megacycles with a radiating power of 20,000 watts. Its main transmitter is at the WINX Arlington site. WTOP broadcasts on 1500 kilocycles.

Truman Asks Powers to Reorganize

Authority Sought Would Include D. C. Government, All U. S. Agencies

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress for permanent authority to reorganize any or all Government agencies, including the District of Columbia government.

If the power he asks is granted, any such order he issues will be effective unless vetoed by both houses of Congress within 60 legislative days.

A bill granting his request was immediately introduced by a bipartisan group of Senators, all members of the Expenditures Committee, to which it was referred. The sponsors were Chairman John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) and Senators James O. Eastland (D., Miss.), Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.), Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) and Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.).

Courts Are Excepted

The McClellan bill would give the President authority to reorganize the District government except for the courts. In this regard it differs from previous reorganization bills.

"It will thus be possible to reconstruct the present cumbersome organization of the District government," McClellan stated. However, the bill prohibits "transferring to or consolidating with any other agency the municipal government of the District, or any of the functions of the municipal government, or of abolishing the municipal government or any or all of its functions."

The measure has nothing to do with the home rule proposal, and McClellan declared that he was "going to see that it is not mixed up with it."

The home rule bill introduced both last session and this by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) has a dual purpose—to give the District home rule and to reorganize the agencies of the District government. It would place 12 major departments of the local government under a city manager to be appointed by an elected council, and the schools under an elected school board.

Provisions of Bill

Under his proposal the President would prepare his reorganization plan and submit it to Congress. Unless both the House and Senate rejected it within 60 legislative days, it would go into effect. The law would be inoperative unless Congress was in session for the entire 60 days.

President Truman pointed out that similar authority had been granted twice before on a temporary basis, in 1939 and 1945. The latter law expired last April 1.

The measure, Mr. Truman asserted, should be "comprehensive in scope; no agency or function of the executive branch should be exempted from its operation." The request, he said, is "especially timely and essential" because the Herbert Hoover Commission on Reorganization of the executive branch will be ready with its recommendations by March 10.

Mr. Truman's request was similar to one made last week by Mr. Hoover. The former President wrote Congress that reorganization of "the most gigantic business on earth" is badly needed. He also urged that no agencies be exempted. Congress exempted cer-

Inaugural Throng Vanguard Begins Arriving in Capital; Federal Holiday Bill Passed

Measure Adopted After Bitter Protest; Tax Exemption Approved by House

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The House of Representatives, by a voice vote, yesterday approved a bill to give Federal workers a 4-day weekend, after 23 minutes of discussion. The bill now goes to the White House for President Truman's signature.

The holiday bill gives Thursday and Friday off to all Federal and District employes in the metropolitan area "except those who may for special public reasons be required to be on duty on such days by the heads of their respective departments."

The bill defines the metropolitan area as including the District, Alexandria and the counties of Montgomery, Prince Georges, Arlington and Fairfax.

The House also voted, after bitter debate, to pass a bill exempting admission tickets for inaugural functions from Federal amusement taxes. The vote was 199 to 49.

The Senate is expected to act today on the tax-exemption measure. Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.), whose Senate Finance Committee has studied the bill, indicated yesterday that it would reach the floor without committee objection, although some members of the committee do not like the measure.

The holiday bill was adopted by the House over bitter protests from Representative Edward R. Rees (R., Kans.) who charged that the legislation had not been referred to the Civil Service Committee.

"If you want to talk about running a steamroller, this is a fair example," he said. It was pointed out, however, the House committees will not be formally organized until the House meets today.

Rees, who said he had no objection to giving Government employes in this area a holiday, added that they won't be able to look at the parades from Federal buildings unless they are invited by the officials in charge.

He added that with 200,000 employes taking the day off, the "bill"

Truman's Pay Increase Wins Final Approval

Measure Also Boosts Salaries of Speaker And Vice President

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday gave its final approval to a bill boosting the President's salary from $75,000 to $100,000 and his tax-free expense money from $40,000 to $90,000 a year.

Final action came with House passage of the bill by a voice vote.

The bill now goes to the White House where President Truman must sign it before his inauguration Thursday to get the increased compensation for his new four-year term.

The bill also boosts the salaries of the Vice President and Speaker of the House from $20,000 to $30,000 and gives each a tax-free $10,000 annual expense allowance.

Senate approval was given the bill last week by a vote of 68-to-9. Token opposition greeted it in the House from a few Republicans, but it faded when Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), urged passage of the bill.

House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), in presenting the bill for action, told the House that the most pleasing thing about the pay increase plan was it had come from Republican sources, and had the backing of former President Herbert Hoover.

Representative Brown, a member of the Hoover Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, told the House the commission unanimously favored the pay increase for the Government's three top officials. He said every public official is entitled to reimbursement for the expense he may have in the conduct of his office. "We cannot afford to hold down compensation to the point where only a rich man can afford to hold public office," said Brown.

Accused Reds Protest Use Of 400 Police

Conspiracy Trial Of 12 Party Leaders Starts in New York

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Nation's 12 top Communists went on trial today and spent all of the first day charging they were being subjected to a "police trial" in an atmosphere of martial law.

They are accused of working for the forcible overthrow of the Government.

For six hours from the time the case was called in Federal Court at 10:43 a. m. (EST) until adjournment, defense counsel hurled accusation at the way the case was being handled.

Their characterizations included "a Hitler trial" and "another Scottsboro case."

The Communists' heaviest guns were leveled at the police detail of 400 men assigned to the courthouse at Foley Square and the surrounding neighborhood. It was the largest such detail ever called to a court case here.

Presence of the police, the defense charged, constituted an "armed mob in uniform," and turned the neighborhood into an "armed camp." They said the purpose was to "poison the minds of the prospective jurors" and intimidate them and their clients.

To the latter charge, Judge Harold R. Medina, declared:

"That's the most absurd thing I've ever heard of. You gentlemen don't act as though you're intimidated."

Defense counsel entered motion after motion to have the detail dismissed. Medina denied each one.

They vainly sought to have the court postpone the proceedings for 90 days, grant a bill of particulars and that Medina disqualify himself on grounds of prejudice.

First Prison Sentences

Maryland Jails 2 Virginians In Potomac River Oyster War

Leonardtown, Md., Jan 17 (AP).—Maryland used prison sentences for the first time today in its shooting war with Virginia over dredging oysters in the Potomac River.

Virginia has contended in the past that Maryland doesn't have any right to punish her watermen for violating the conservation rules.

Governor Tuck of Virginia conceded recently, however, that Maryland courts have jurisdiction, and said Virginia does not plan to contest it.

He had "no comment" on this newest development in the oyster war.

Trial Magistrate J. Ralph Abell imposed 12-month sentences in the Maryland House of Correction on John (Winky) Atwell, 21, of Colonial Beach, Va., and John Brown, Alias Norman Brown, 27, of Fredericksburg, Va. Thomas D. Jackson, 24, of Oak Grove, Va., was fined $500.

Their boat was confiscated.

The men were caught last Friday morning after a Maryland patrol gave chase and forced their 42-foot workboat ashore amid rifle fire.

They had been dredging oysters on a rich, State-planted bar at the mouth of the St. Mary's River, not far from the point where the Potomac flows into Chesapeake Bay.

Landon Curley, proprietor of an oyster packing house at Colonial Beach, said 17 Maryland men were arrested the same morning as the Virginians on dredging charges, and taken to LaPlata, Md.

"If they're going to make Virginia men do time," he said, "they ought to do the same to Maryland men."

Chester W. Cullison, supervising inspector for the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commision, brought into court a mean-looking scraper 42 inches wide. It had 13 teeth and two metal attachments called divers, which are designed to tear down into the oyster beds and loosen the bivalves.

It is illegal to use such rigs in taking oysters from the Potomac. Oystering is limited to tonging. Watermen in small boats probe the bottom with big pincers on the end of two long poles and bring their prizes up a few at a time, instead of scraping them wholesale from the bottom. Conservation authorities say this is not so hard on the oyster beds.

Maryland and Virginia laws agree on the point, but there is a 1785 colonial compact which provides that violators should be tried in courts of their own States.

After many years of complaints about night raider dredge fleets from the Virginia side and that Virginia courts failed to punish violators, the Maryland General Assembly in 1947 passed a law which provides for trial of the Virginians in Maryland.

After South African Rioting

Thousands of Indian Refugees Refuse to Return to Homes

Durban, Union of South Africa, Jan. 17 (AP).—Thousands of Indian refugees refused to return to their homes tonight from the protected camps to which they fled during the bitter race rioting here.

For the first time since Thursday it was apparent that police and troops had halted the murderous native-Indian feuding. A constant patrol of police, soldiers and sailors is being maintained.

Some shooting occurred last night when police fired on native looters, but that has died down now.

Police said more than 100 persons were killed in the rioting, touched off when a native boy was injured in a fight with an Indian peddler. P. R. Pather, secretary of the South African Indian Congress, estimated the death toll at 300.

Treatment was given to 1184 natives and Indians at King Edward Hospital. Ambulance officials said they took care of 6000 cases but many of these were minor.

The Red Cross said there were at least 25,000 Indians in the 12 main refugee camps in Durban. An Indian source estimated there were 40,000 Indians in 46 camps in Durban and the surrounding area.

A flareup was reported in Johannesburg, largest city in South Africa, 310 miles northwest of here. Police and troops stood by there after a bomb hurled from a passing car at an Indian shop blew out windows.

Other incidents were reported in the province of Natal. In one of them two natives were killed and three others were injured. They had been attacked by a carload of Indians.

Officials held an emergency meeting in Durban.

Native spokesmen said the rioting had an underlying economic aspect. They claimed many Indian wholesalers and storekeepers had overcharged the Negroes and forced tie-in deals on them.

Unofficial Forecast Is for Fair Weather; Distant Currents Of Air Are Eyed

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

The vanguard of thousands who will descend upon Washington for President Truman's Inauguration began moving into town yesterday from all directions on all kinds of transportation.

Hotels, rooming houses, and accommodations at private residences or the homes of relatives were reported filling up rapidly with visitors—all with an eye to preinaugural festivities.

What sort of weather they may expect for Thursday remained, officially at least, a moot question. The Weather Bureau will announce its forecast this morning.

"Good weather" was predicted unofficially at Bolling Field Air Force Base. A forecaster said a cold front that has formed in Alabama and Tennessee is being anxiously watched. Another is moving southeastward from Saskatchewan at about 30 miles per hour.

If air currents are sufficient to dissipate both "fronts" within the next 48 hours—or to divert them away from Washington—observers believe the city is in for a clear day on Thursday. The Weather Bureau said it will rain today and Wednesday, with precipitation expected to stop Wednesday night.

The Statler Hotel, which "emptied the house" over the weekend to make room for inaugural guests, reported about 90 per cent of yesterday's arrivals will stay through Thursday. The hotel probably will be filled by tonight with visitors who made reservations well in advance.

At the Mayflower, the reservation clerk said "100 per cent" of its transient business yesterday was due to arrival of guests for the inauguration. The hotel should be filled up by tonight, according to the report.

An unexpected stream of early arrivals checked in at the Willard, many of them having made reservations for Wednesday. A hotel official said "about 40 per cent of the house" was filled with persons intent upon joining in this week's festivities. By late tonight,

Plane Missing Over Caribbean With 20 Aboard

New York, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—A British South American Airlines plane with 13 passengers and a crew of 7 aboard is missing on a flight over the Caribbean, the Coast Guard reported today.

(In London, an airline official said the four-engined plane, bound from London to Santiago, Chile might have carried 22 passengers and 7 crew members.)

The luxury airliner, the Star Ariel, took off from Bermuda at 7:42 a. m. today for a 5-hour and 15-minute flight to Kingston, Jamaica, where it was scheduled to arrive at 1:07 p. m. EST. It carried fuel for 10 hours flying time, which apparently was exhausted at 5:42 p. m. EST today.

Democrats in House Ratify Assignments

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter.

A House Democratic committee slate, weighted in the Administration's favor on most key units and dealing Dixiecrats completely off one of them yesterday was quickly ratified by a Houst Democratic caucus.

Subject to approval of the full House today, the long-awaited committee lists ended two weeks of organization maneuvers to make the House safe for the Truman "Fair Deal."

Leaders overhauled the House Committee on Un-American Activities in the process and dropped from it two Dixiecrats—Representatives John J. Rankin (Miss.) and F. Edward Hebert (La.).

Hebert called it a "purge" and accused leaders of "subterfuge" in assigning other reasons. The official explanation in Hebert's case was a new rule that only trained lawyers should serve on the spy-hunting group. The Louisiana States Righter is a former newspaperman.

Chairmanship Is Bar

Veterans Affairs Chairman Rankin was barred on another rule that no chairman of a major committee may serve on a second unit. Rankin said he may make a statement later.

Except in the case of Representative Vito Marcantonio (A.L.P., N.Y.), who supported Henry Wallace, and again was left bottom man on the relatively minor House Administration Committee, there was no "purge" pattern in the rest of the assignments.

In fact, one member of Rankin's own Mississippi States Rights delegation was named to a fourth-in-rank post on the once powerful House Rules Committee. He was Representative William M. Colmer (D., Miss.). Colmer, a former member of the rules group, was squeezed off when Republicans organized the Eightieth Congress. In Colmer's case leaders decided to follow the seniority rule of "last off a committee, first on."

Futile Victory

Normally, Colmer's assignment would be considered a coalition victory. If he and two other conservative Democratic members, Representative E. E. Cox (Ga.) and Howard W. Smith (Va.), voted with the group's four Republicans, a once potent coalition would have 7-to-5 control of the committee.

That possibility was offset by leaders themselves at the outset of the new session. The House then reduced the Rules Committee to virtual impotence by empowering committee chairmen to call up in the House any committee-approved bills sidetracked by the Rules unit.

Four hand-picked Administration Democrats were appointed to the other Rules Committee vacancies: Representatives Ray J. Madden (Ind.), John E. Lyle, jr. (Tex.), John McSweeney (Ohio) and James J. Delaney (N. Y.).

They are expected to line up on most programmed bills with Rules Chairman Adolph J. Sabath (Ill.), an Administration stalwart.

Cooperation Pledged

Representative Lyle, typical of the "new order" Rules Committeemen, said he will work closely with the House leadership. Lyle said he will vote to send a bill to the floor even if violently opposed to its passage, on the principle that the House should be allowed to vote on bills reported by committees.

The shakeup in the Un-American Activities Committee is designed to meet criticism of the group's handling of witnesses and evidence, by putting lawyers in the saddle. But it affected only Democratic members.

House Republicans have filled all their posts on other major committees, but are holding up selections for the spy-hunting group. The GOP's retiring committee chairman, Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) is not a lawyer. The one other possible GOP hold-over on the committee, Representative Ralph M. Nixon (R., Calif.) is a former Office of Emergency Management attorney and practicing lawyer.

Chairmanship of the controversial House unit now passes to Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.). The other four Democratic members are lawyers, and will serve on the committee for the first time. They are Representatives Francis E. Walter (Pa.), Burr P. Harrison (Va.), John McSweeney (Ohio) and Morgan M. Moulder (Mo.).

"An Artful Device"

Although Hebert was dropped from the Red-hunting committee by the "lawyers only" rule, he was returned to ninth ranking position on the House Armed Services group, and Southerners generally held a strong grip on most committees.

Hebert slapped at the leadership after the caucus adjourned. He said "an artful device has been effectively employed" to bar him from the Un-American Activities Committee.

"I was critical of the attitude of both Republicans and Democrats by refusing to participate in any plan or scheme which would either smear or whitewash individuals," his statement said.

"I sought only the truth and attempted to bring some balance to a rather insteady procedure. The reward for that contribution is the failure to reassign me . . . on the rather feeble and puny guise that only lawyers were to be selected."

Hebert said he participated "actively and openly" in the States Rights movement and "apparently this was a mortal sin. . . .

"The practice of the political purge is not a new art. It has always been indulged in as a means of liquidation by those who refuse to recognize the right of an individual to think and to act for himself. . . ."

Central and Far West States, almost completely frozen out of the House chairmanship picture by the seniority rule, received partial compensation in the form of a majority of the assignments to the West-conscious House public lands committee.

But the chairmanship of the Public Lands group went to a New Yorker—Representative Andrew L. Somers.

Somers issued a statement saying he is "vitally interested in the West and its problems" although an Easterner. He promised to speed legislation on irrigation, reclamation and other Western problems.

Happy Landing—

A LUCKY VISITOR—when this picture was taken—was A. B. Hayes of Anchorage, Alaska. He had two choice seats for the Inaugural Parade and he received kisses of welcome from two members of the airline reception committee, Stewardesses Lorraine Ellefson (left) and Marie Ruppert, who are assigned to greet visitors arriving here by plane

House Assignments Are Made To District Committee Posts

House Democrats yesterday assigned nine veteran members and six new ones to the House District Committee.

Of the six new committee members, five have served previously in the House. They are Representatives Walter K. Granger (D., Utah), James H. Morrison (D., La.), George P. Miller (D., Calif.), Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) and Monroe M. Redden (D., N. C.). The one freshman Democrat assigned to the District group was Representative Paul C. Jones (D., Mo.).

The nine Democratic members who will continue on the District committee are Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) and Representatives Oren Harris (D., Ark.), Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.), John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), Robert E. Jones, jr. (D., Ala.) and James C. Davis (D., Ga.).

McMillan said he hopes to call the first meeting of the committee next Monday to get organized.

He said he would present to the committee for its decision the question of whether home rule legislation is to be handled by a special subcommittee, as in the last Congress, or by the District Judiciary Subcommittee. The two ranking Democrats on the Judiciary group, Representatives Harris and Abernethy, joined with McMillan in leading last year's House fight against home rule for the District.

Four of the newly assigned District committee members favor Washington home rule. A fifth, Representative Morrison, said he had an open mind on the question, although he twice voted against home rule in the House last year. Representatives Jones said he was not ready to commit himself on the home rule issue.

Representative Granger, now in his fifth term in the House, said he had not asked to go on the District Committee. He is a member of the Agriculture Committee.

"I felt that if a man went on the District Committee he ought to be able to give it more time than I will."

Granger said he thought his own feeling about not wanting to get on the committee indicated one one of the best arguments for giving Washington home rule.

Representative Miller, in his third term, recalled that he had testified for Alaskan statehood, had served on the House committee which recommended Hawaiian statehood, and declared that the people of Washington are as capable of governing themselves as those in the territories.

Representative Redden was city attorney of Hendersonville, N. C., four years, and attorney of Henderson County 16 years before his election to the last Congress. He said he favors home rule for Washington, with an elected city government, and final authority in Congress.

Buchanan voted last year with home rule backers in House test votes on the District home rule bill. He is in his second term in the House. He is a former mayor of McKeesport, Pa.

Jones had varied experience in local and State government and in the newspaper business before his election to the House. He is a former member of the city council and mayor of Kennett, Mo., his home town. He served 10 years in the State Legislature, 8 of them as chairman of the State Senate appropriations Committee.

Sleeper Flights To Start March 3 To Honolulu

Air flights from Washington to Honolulu with overnight sleeper service from San Francisco will become effective on March 3, officials of United Air Lines said yesterday.

A connection out of Washington will permit passengers to leave the National Airport at 12:30 p. m. and arrive in Honolulu at 7:20 the following morning, officials said. The flight will require slightly more than 20 hours flying time.

The flights will operate five days weekly out of Washington. In the new sleeper service, the berth charge will be $50, subject to the approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board, in addition to the regular fare of $298.35 for a one-way ticket.

Estate Taxes on Trust Fund Upheld by Supreme Court

By The Associated Press

The Supreme Court yesterday ruled, 6-3, that Federal estate taxes can be levied on a trust fund if the grantor of the trust keeps a life-time right to the income.

The decision reversed a position the court took in 1930.

Justice Black said in the majority opinion that the court had reversed itself because it had become clear that the effect of the 1930 ruling was:

"To permit a person to relieve his estate from the tax by conveying its legal title to trustees whom he selected, with an agreement that they manage the estate during his life, pay to him all income and profits from the property during his life, and deliver it to his chosen beneficiaries at death."

Black added that "preparation of papers to defeat an estate tax thus became an easy chore for one skilled in the various niceties of the art of conveyancing."

The high court also:

1. By a 7-to-2 vote, decided that a Chicago man must pay Federal income tax on money he saved by buying back his own bonds at prices less than their face value.

2. In a 6-to-3 decision, ruled that Federal Courts have jurisdiction when there is a dispute over attorneys' fees in proceedings under the Federal Bankruptcy Act.

Two separate cases were before the court in its decision involving trust funds.

In one, the court ruled that a $1,140,606 trust fund set up by the late Sidney M. Spiegel, Chicago merchant, must be included in his gross estate for Federal tax purposes.

The court, in the other case, upheld a Government claim for estate taxes on a $188,800 trust established in 1924 by Francois L. Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., who died in 1937 at the age of 37.

Justice Black wrote the majority opinion in each case. Justices Burton and Frankfurter wrote dissenting opinions and Justice Jackson noted a dissenting vote. Justice Reed wrote a lengthy opinion concurring with the majority views in Spiegel's case, and dissenting in the Church case. The written opinions in these two cases alone took up 112 pages.

In the bond case, Justice Burton delivered the 7-2 decision, and Justice Reed wrote a dissent in which Justice Douglas joined.

Truman's Inaugural Week Program to Test His Reputation as the 'Indefatigable Man'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman's social calendar for Inaugural Week was made public yesterday. It promises to test seriously his reputation as the Indefatigable Man.

On Inauguration Day (Thursday) he will have a 7 a. m. before-sunrise breakfast with his old Battery D comrades of World War I. This will require no effort, for he's usually up around 5:30 a. m., anyway. That night, however, Mr. Truman's early-to-bed habit will go by the board. It will be late when he starts for the Inaugural Ball, and probably after midnight when he turns in at the Blair House.

Aside from these events, the program announced at the White House yesterday calls for a whirl of luncheons, dinners, receptions, and off-the-cuff talks that will begin tonight with a dinner of the Truman-Barkley Club at the Mayflower.

Appears in Good Shape

The 64-year-old Chief Executive appears to be in splendid physical shape for the ordeal.

Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the White House physician, said yesterday that Mr. Truman was in "a better state of health and mind than he has been in a year." He said it was difficult to keep him on a schedule of hours such as a physician would normally advise—this because of the President's generosity with his time.

"Despite that," General Graham said, "he's in fine condition."

He said that Mr. Truman now weighs 174 pounds. The ideal weight for him, the physician said, would be between 165 and 170 pounds, but the few extra pounds, he added, was nothing to worry about.

Valet to be Busy

Chief Steward Arthur Prettyman, USN., Mr. Truman's valet, also is in for a strenuous week. For the next several days he will be busy laying out changes for the President — business suits, evening attire (black tie and white tie), and, of course, the frock coat, striped trousers, and silk hat that Mr. Truman will wear when he takes the oath at the Capitol on Thursday.

The four-day schedule made public yesterday, it was pointed out, may not be complete, for the President has a habit of "dropping in" on parties.

The schedule begins with the dinner of the Truman-Barkley Club in the Mayflower ballroom at 7 o'clock this evening. It is expected that Mr. Truman will speak extemporaneously.

Schedule For Wednesday

The calendar for tomorrow (Wednesday) follows:

1 p. m.—Luncheon given by the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee at the Mayflower. Mr. Truman will be presented formally with an inaugural medallion. This was executed by Julio Kilenyi, a New York sculptor, who was commissioned for the task by William Hyman, general counsel for the Aetna Life Insurance Co., of New York.

5 p.m.—Reception by the Governor of Missouri, Forrest Smith, and Mrs. Smith in the Shoreham ballroom. The President will be accompanied by the First Lady and Miss Margaret Truman. Leaving the reception, Mr. Truman will return to Blair House and change into a white-tie outfit.

7 p. m.—Electors dinner at the Mayflower. Mr. Truman probably will make some off-the-cuff remarks. Leaving the dinner, he will return to Blair House and change into black-tie attire.

With the First Lady and Margaret, the President will wind up the night at the Inaugural Gala in the National Guard Armory.

Schedule for Thursday:

7 a. m.—Breakfast with Battery D comrades in Sapphire Room of Mayflower.

10 a. m.—Inaugural prayer services at church yet to be officially announced.

Noon—Mr. Truman takes oath of office for four-year term at Capitol, delivers 15-minute inaugural address, and has luncheon in office of Leslie Biffle, Senate secretary. He will take his place in the inaugural parade at 1 p. m. or as soon after luncheon as possible. Reaching the White House, he will take his place in the reviewing stand.

5 p. m. to 7 p. m.—Reception at the National Gallery of Art for about 7500 persons. Obviously, it was said at the White House, Mr. Truman will be able to shake hands with only a small percentage of the guests.

Dinner at Blair House

After this the President will have dinner with his family in Blair House.

11 p. m. or thereabouts—Attend Inaugural Ball at the Armory.

On Friday at 5 p. m., the President, the First Lady and Miss Truman will attend a reception given by Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, Mrs. Snyder, and their daughter, Miss Drucie Snyder.

In between all of these events, Mr. Truman somehow will have to find time to sign bills sent to him by Congress and take care of other official duties.

Americans Start 1949 With Less Money

By The Associated Press

Americans started 1949 with less money on the average than they had before—as most Christmas shoppers and New Year's eve celebrants know.

The Treasury reported today the amount of money in circulation January 1 was $28,223,592,164 or an average of $190.80 per person, compared with $191.79 a month earlier and $198.49 a year before.

Labor Union Reelects Preller To Third Term

Clem F. Preller was reelected without opposition to his third term as president of the Washington Central Labor Union last night during an annual meeting of 207 delegates from local unions at the Hamilton Hotel.

Other officers reelected without opposition were: Frank J. Coleman, recording secretary; Robert Lester, financial secretary, and Frank W. Lee and D. C. Dow, trustees. F. R. McGuigan, business agent of Retail Clerks Local No. 639-A, was elected without opposition as treasurer.

Inaugural Stands To Be Put on Curbs

All inaugural grandstands will be moved to parade route curbs to give ticket holders an unobstructed view of the parade, it was learned late yesterday.

Earlier, Police Superintendent Maj. Robert J. Barrett had declared police would be unable to keep standees from occupying the space between the curb and the seating stands, and obstructing the view of thousands who paid for their seats.

J. C. Turner, in charge of grandstand construction for the Inaugural Committee, said he thought there would be no difficulty in moving the stands to the curbs, and eliminating the six-foot sidewalk strip.

Some of the stands are already at the curb. Turner said it had always been the intention of the committee to move the stands up. They had been built back, only to keep the sidewalks open for pre-inaugural use, he said.

As a result of Barrett's statement, persons who held tickets in the lower stands, had felt their view would be completely obstructed by standees.

Barrett said he had asked the Inaugural Committee Friday and yesterday to move the stands to the curb. On both occassions, he said, he warned the committe that the sidewalks were public property and could be occupied by standees.

Authority Is Doubted

The police superintendent said he did not have the manpower to keep persons from occupying the 6-foot strip or to remove them He doubted he has authority to remove them he added.

Approximately half of the stands are now set back from the curb along the parade route. These are generally lower price seats. The first row of these stands is only a foot from the ground. The top row is approximately 4 feet high. Persons could not have remain seated and see the parade over the heads of standees in front of them.

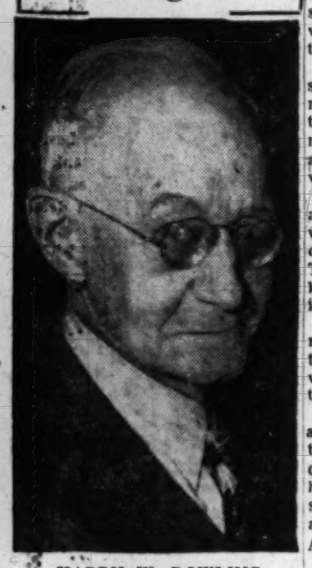
Inaugurals Habit With Dowling, 82



HARRY W. DOWLING
Perennial Inaugural Fan

It was too cold back in 1869 for 3-year-old Harry W. Dowling to attend the first inauguration of President Ulysses S. Grant, but it will take at least a blizzard to keep the same Harry Dowling, now 82, away from the ceremonies Thursday.

Dowling, who lives at 3603 14th st. nw., has seen every inauguration from Grant's second. What's more, he expects to be on hand four years from now.

"The doctor says I'm good for quite awhile," said Dowling, who still goes to his office daily. He claims to be "the oldest auctioneer in the city."

He recalls as a boy watching inaugural parades from stands which his father set up in front of his store at 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Years later Dowling took his bride to Cleveland's second inaugural ball in the hall of the old Pension Office Building.

The crowd was so large it was impossible to dance. Dowling still can see President and Mrs. Cleveland as they marched the length of the room while the band played.

"Next to my wife, Mrs. Cleveland was the handsomest woman there," Dowling said.

After viewing the parade he's taking his daughter, Mrs. Ruth Halsted, to the Inaugural Ball at the Armory.

Two Marine Generals' Promotions Approved

President Truman yesterday approved the selection of two Marine corps officers fro promotion to the rank of major general.

They are Brig. Gen. Merwin H. Silverthorn, now on duty in the office of Chief of Naval Operations, and Brig. Gen. Ray A. Robinson, director of Divisions of Plans and Policies in the Marine Corps.

Freedom Train Draws Heavy Student Group

If schoolrooms were unusually bare yesterday most of the kids weren't really playing hookey—they were getting a real history lesson by taking a look at the Freedom Train.

Freedom Train director, W lter H. S. O'Brien, estimated that more than 70 per cent of the 4176 persons who viewed the streamliner's historic documents by nightfall yesterday were of high school age. They came early, too, he added, standing in line 200 deep when the doors opened at 10 a. m.

The train, which has been touring the country with the physical evidence of America's development of freedom, arrived here Sunday on the last leg of its 16-month, 35,000-mile "rededication journey." At the last count 3,488,751 people in 325 cities have passed through its corridors.

Now on a siding adjoining the Bureau of Printing and Engraving annex at 14th and D sts. sw., the train will be open free to the public from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. through Saturday. The 3,500,000th person is expected to pass through its doors today or early Wednesday, according to Director O'Brien.

Tux Rental Shops Swamped By Flurry of Urgent Pleas

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporters

There'll be a lot of people struggling with black or white bow ties here this week who have never forced themselves into boiled shirts before.

From the North, South and West, and particularly from the Midwest and the Southwest, they've been writing, wiring and telephoning reservations for tux or soup and fish outfits so they'll look the way their wives want them to at inaugural affairs this week.

It looks like a record demand for the black outfits that will turn many a hard-riding rancher into a socialite while he's here to celebrate, according to Martin M. Klein, head of Martin Manning's dress suit "rentery" at 903 New York ave. nw. Manning's 1500 outfits are all booked up, he said.

Some of the customers from the open spaces are scornful of regulation dress, like the Oklahoma oil man who insisted yesterday he wasn't going to sweat in any wing collar, tails or no tails.

When Klein dplomatically suggested a turned-down collar didn't go with full dress, the oil man replied with true Southwestern gusto:

"I don't give a——I'm not going to go by tradition. Harry wears a stripe in his bow tie, I guess I can be different, too!"

Milton Stein of Stein & Co., 1714 L st. nw., admitted business was all right, what with the passing of the "informal war years." He sees this Inaugural Week as "bigger than most of Roosevelt's."

Stein, who has several hundred suits already spoken for, said many of them were reserved by telegram and one flying customer radioed for his from a plane.

"We're out of suits already," said Sam Scogna of Rinaldi & Scogna, 1403 H t. nw., who said a surprising number of orders came from "diplomatic and Government people who should have them."

"I'm just a plain boy from the country and I don't fool around with society," declared one Congressman who was lining up his tails for an inaugural function.

$5000 Bible From Missouri Arrives Today for Inaugural

When he takes the oath of office Thursday, President Truman probably will lay his left hand on a rare $5000 Bible, bought for the occasion by the Independence, Mo., Chamber of Commerce.

It was originally stated the President would be sworn in with the White House Bible, which he used to take the oath in 1945.

A reproduction of the original Gutenberg Bible printed in Mainz, Germany, in 1456, the Missouri Bible weighs 25 pounds. Its hand-made paper pages are 13 by 18 inches, heavily embellished with burnished gold tooled with ivory.

The Bible will arrive in Washington today, escorted by Frank W. Rucker, general manager of the Independence Examiner, and Herman M. Clements, Jackson County, Mo., school superintendent.

A trade edition of 300 facsimilies of the Gutenberg Bible was printed in Germany in 1913. Only 10 copies were illuminated, and of those 10 the Inauguration Bible is believed to be the only one still in existence.

A Kansas City book dealer, Frank Glenn, bought the Bible eight months ago. It is in two volumes, the Old and New Testaments.

Glenn reported it was hardly a fast-moving item. He printed special brochures describing the leather-bound volumes, and one of these pamphlets fell into the hands of John Skelton, Jackson County librarian.

Mize Peters of Independence, a friend of President Truman, was consulted. He wrote the President and asked if the Bible would be accepted for the swearing-in ceremony.

The President gave an enthusiastic indorsement.

The Independence Chamber of Commerce has underwritten the cost of the Bible, but hopes that the $5000 will be subscribed by popular subscription.

There are 13 full pages of gold illuminations, 28 half pages, 30 miniature paintings and 1820 elaborately capital letters starting as many verses.

Jessel Arrives in Vanguard Of Gala Concert Talent Host

George Jessel, one of the first of 700 performers to arrive for the Inaugural Gala Concert Wednesday evening, explained last night why he was delighted to be here for the inauguration of President Truman:

"Jolson has always lorded it over me because he was at Lincoln's inauguration," jested Jessel, who added, "but please don't ask me for jokes about Margaret. She's a lovely girl, and hers is a lovely voice."

The coloratura soprano voice of Miss Truman won praise from another performer, Jane Powell, who also will perform at the Gala.

"Her voice is really quite pleasing and I do so hope I meet her," bubbled Miss Powell, a 19-year-old who plays teenagers in the movies.

Miss Powell, who does five shows a day at the Capitol Theater, will sing "Buttons and Bows" and "Love Is Where You Find It" at the Gala, in the National Guard Armory.

The pint-sized lyric soprano from Portland, Me., who is engaged to her ice-skating instructor, out in Hollywood, will be "thrilled" to share the platform with such singers as Feruccio Tagliavini, Dorothy Maynor and Lucy Monroe.

Miss Maynor is due to arrive today and Tagliavini Wednesday.

Other performers due today are Gene Kelly, Kay Starr and Lena Horne. Expected in town Wednesday are the DeMarcos, Lum and Abner, Phil Harris, Alice Faye and Margaret O'Brien.

Other participants, whose arrival dates were not known last night, are Dick Haymes, Edgar Gergen, Joan Davis, Melvyn Douglas, Jane Froman, Phil Spitalny and his all-girl band, and Lionel Hampton and band.

With all 5300 seats sold, the Inaugural Gala will be "one of the most spectacular and most brilliant entertainments ever offered on a Washington stage, according to Carter T. Barron,

Father Demands 'Eye for an Eye' For Son's Slayer

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 17 (AP).—A distraught father demanded "an eye for an eye" today when the 15-year-old slayer of his young son was brought to trial for murder.

"He killed my boy. Now he's killing my wife. The chair's too good for him," John Preston of Kearny, N. J., said brokenly.

The boy, Walter Smigelski, said he killed 11-year-old John Preston, jr., to prove he wasn't a "sissy."

His attorney pleaded no defense to avoid the death penalty. The boy now faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

Hudson County Judge Thomas J. Stanton remanded the boy to jail to await sentence January 28. The State Supreme Court had held the case was within the jurisdiction of regular State courts.

Bus Firms Oppose Va. Man's Request

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—An application filed by Vinard L. Paris, doing business as White House Sightseeing Tours, to operate intrastate in Virginia was taken under advisement today by the State Corporation Commission.

John C. Goddin, attorney for Atlantic Greyhound Lines, Richmond Greyhound Lines, Capitol Greyhound Lines and Washington and Maryland Coach Company, made a motion that the petition be dismissed, which motion was concurred in by H. E. Ketner, attorney for Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co.

Paris testified he had applied for the permit to operate intrastate round trips for the Arlington-Mount Vernon tour to meet competition and to fill the needs of persons staying in hotels and tourist homes in the Virginia area near Washington.

Inaugural Throng Moving Into D. C.

the Willard expects to be completely filled.

Early arrivals came in fewer number yesterday to the Shoreham, but the night manager said a number of out-of-town "delegations" are due today. The reservation deadline for the inauguration guests has been set for Wednesday, although the hotel expects little space to be unoccupied by late tonight.

On Capitol Hill, Representative E. M. Combs (D., Tex.) yesterday renewed his attack on hotels charging higher-than-usual rates for the inauguration.

He called attention to the fact, however, that several hostelries will charge the regular fare and said, "The managers of these fine hotels are to be commended for their spirit of fairness and hospitality."

Combs first criticized Washington hotels in a speech before the House last Thursday, when he charged they were inviting rent controls by such a practice.

Yesterday he told a reporter "there's a bill going in to slap controls back on" if hotels "don't cooperate with us."

It appeared yesterday, however, noncommercial rooming facilities will be available for the Inauguration. The Housing Bureau of the Inaugural Committee said "more than 22,000" spaces had been listed by last night.

Mrs. Ernest K. Lindley, chairman of the housing and hospitality committee, asked householders with available rooms to bring their names and addresses to the bureau at 509 14th st. nw., rather than telephone them in. She said telephone lines will be needed for confirming requests for reservations.

District traffic officials reported a "noticeable" increase in automobile movement into the city yesterday, but said any appreciable change probably will not be seen until this afternoon.

Pickup at Union Station

At Union Station, "several hundred" more travelers than ordinarily were seen to arrive in the city. The station master's office said most of them came on early special trains, and the peak is not expected at the terminal until Wednesday.

In downtown Washington, traffic policeman agreed there was a noticeable increase in motorists and pedestrians interested in the inauguration. They were disinclined to say late yesterday, however, that congestion on the streets was much greater than normal.

At 14th and E sts. nw., the traffic officer said "several" persons had asked where they would find "a place to watch the parade." He reminded them all grandstand seats are sold out and S. R. O. signs have been posted.

Still concerned about possible "kinks" in transportation arrangements for the big parade Thursday, Thomas P. Morgan, chairman of the domestic transportation committee for the Inaugural, yesterday asked Washingtonians to be "saving" on their use of taxicabs.

He asked local residents to release their cabs before entering the congested parade area to prevent the vehicles from being tied up in traffic unnecessarily.

He also suggested that, since traffic cannot cross Pennsylvania ave. after 10 a. m. Thursday, parade viewers make their plans accordingly.

"If you have seats on the south side of the avenue, and are north of the avenue," he said, "ask the driver to take you to the nearest point north of the avenue that he recommends." The reverse applies for local residents on the south side with seats on the north side.

Morgan pointed out that if taxicab drivers are asked to circle the route, they will charge passengers for any zones through which they must pass to reach a desired point.

Morgan also asked Washingtonians to share their taxicabs with other persons bound in the same general direction.

One of the first out-of-town dignitaries to appear here was Alabama's Gov. Jim Folsom, who came by special train.

About 30 Governors of States have accepted invitations to participate in ceremonies, along with a few lieutenant governors who represent their chief executives, committee officials said.

Charles Allredge, of the Parade and Special Events Committee, said the order in which States and United States possessions will be represented in the parade has been arranged according to "strict protocol," with three exceptions.

The District of Columbia float, representing the "host" government, will lead all others. Next in order will be that of Missouri, the President's home State. The third float will be that of Kentucky, the Vice President's home.

Other State floats will be grouped in each of the parade's eight divisions, according to the order in which the original 13 ratified the Constitution and the remainder were admitted to the Union. Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will be represented in that order.

Power Asked To Reorganize

tain "pet" agencies in previous laws.

Passage of such a law as Mr. Truman asks would greatly aid putting the recommendations of the Hoover Commission into force. That portion of the Hoover recommendations that the President approved, could be ordered into effect and would become effective unless Congress specifically voted it down.

"In my recent messages to Congress I have presented the program which I believe this Government should follow in the months ahead," Mr. Truman told Congress.

"The magnitude and importance of that program, both at home and abroad, require able leadership and sound management. The Government must have the most effective administrative machinery to carry out its responsibilities."

McClellan said his bill will (1) provide for the appointment and compensation of the heads and other officers of agencies resulting from reorganizatnion (2) change the name of an agency, and (3) provide for the transfer of the personnel, property, records, and funds of any agency or function reorganized.

"Some of the provisions may be controversial," McClellan remarked.

The President's request was greeted coolly by Senator Robert A. Taft, chairman of the Republican policy committee. Taft said it will be studied Friday by his committee.

"It should be examined carefully by Congress because of the tremendous powers involved," Taft said. "We don't want to give the President authority to legislate, to change the powers of bureaus set up by Congress."

A sarcastic note was sounded by Representative Charles B. Hoeven (R., Ia.) "If the President really wants to effect economies," Hoeven said, "he can start almost anywhere." He added that 360 new employes are being hired every day in Government departments. "The President will need to reorganize to find jobs for them."

Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) said he expects the bill to have smooth sailing in the House.

Mr. Truman also again urged higher pay for Government executives. Legislation raising their pay will greatly assist him in obtaining "the best qualified men and women for Government service," he said. He added that it is his intention to require that executives give the "highest degree of attention" to improved management.

"Increased efficiency and economy in the Government's far-flung activities can be realized only if certain essentials of organization and operation are satisfied," he said.

Woman Club's Head Doubts Film Boycott

Inauguration Holiday Bill Passed Over Bitter Protest

for the holiday will be more than two million dollars. He added that postal employes still will have to work, and might get time and a half for overtime.

Representative Robert F. Rich (R., Pa.) said he thought the Friday holiday should be charged to employes' annual leave.

Representative Ralph E. Church (R., Ill.) declared he saw no justification for the Friday holiday. He said that this week will be known as the "inaugural circus."

Representative George P. Miller (D., Calif.) told House members that someone had tried to confuse the holiday issue a bit by talking about four days off. "Saturday and Sunday are holidays anyway," he said. "Every one has agreed that employes should be off on Inauguration Day, so Friday is the only concession we are making to the public employes in this city." He added that letting workers off for that day would serve as a "morale builder."

The tax-exemption bill was called up on the House floor by Representative Robert Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, who pointed out that profit from the tickets will go to charity, and that the tax-exemption provision has been in force at every public inauguration since 1933.

Several Republican House members attacked the measure bitterly, however. Representative Rees (R., Kans.), ranking member of the House Committee on Postoffices and Civil Service, declared, "In view of the Administration's demand for additional taxes, it is pretty poor precedent that the first tax legislation submitted to this Congress should be exempt admission to Hollywood gala shows, dances and parades."

Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.) House Majority Leader, told his colleagues he was "amazed" at some of the remarks of the Republicans. He said that they "savored very strongly of poor sportsmanship."

Representative Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), majority leader in the Eightieth Congress, asked McCormack if he would have been in favor of such a resolution if it had been submitted in the Eightieth Congress.

McCormack retorted, "I certainly would."

Said Halleck: "If our side had won there might not have been such a resolution in here."

"If your side had won," McCormack answered, "There would have been such a resolution in here and if any Democrat opposed it, I'd think it was a cheap thing to do."

In another House speech, Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) criticized preparations for the inaugural with this statement:

"I think this post-election bandwagon rush, which explains the inflated inaugural plans now under way, is getting too high, wide and handsome."

While Congress ground out its share of inaugural preparation, arrangements reached last-minute status in other quarters.

The three big affairs of the Inaugural Week—the Gala, the parade, and the Inaugural Ball—are sellouts.

Even the 4000 Inaugural medallions, struck off by the United States Mint for sale to souvenir seekers, have been sold out, with 6000 unfilled orders on hand.

Tonight, one of the larger of the private affairs planned for the week will brin President Truman, his wife and daughter Margaret out for their first formal participation in the festivities.

They will attend a mammoth Truman-Barkley Clubs dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

On Wednesday, the Truman family will attend a reception at the Shoreham Hotel given by Governor and Mrs. Forrest Smith of Missouri. President Truman also will attend the Electoral College Dinner at the Mayflower Hotel. The official family later will go to the D. C. National Guard Armory for the Gala, which will get under way at 9 p. m. with more than 700 stage, screen and radio personalities on hand.

On Thursday, about 120,000 persons are expected to watch President Truman take the oath of office on the East Portico of the Capitol. One million persons are expected to watch the parade, which starts at 1:30 and ends at 4 p. m.

A presidential reception at the National Gallery of Art, from 5 to 7 p. m., and the Inaugural Ball at the Armory, starting at ten (both invitation only events) will wind up the peak of Inauguration Week, but many events are planned for the three-day weekend to follow.

Yesterday more than 5000 chairs were set in place at the National Guard Armory, site of the Inaugural Gala Wednesday night and the President's Ball Thursday.

Aly Khan to Wed Rita After Getting Divorce

Cannes, France, Jan. 17 (AP).—Prince Aly Khan announce today that he will get a divorce and marry Movie Glamour Queen Rita Hayworth. He added that his bride-to-be will "not necessarily" adopt the Moslem religion.

Prince Aly explained the marriage, like his first, would be performed both by civil and religious ceremonies and that any children would be brought up as Moslems. Miss Hayworth is a Roman Catholic.

Annoyed by world-wide comment, the Moslem prince said he hoped the public now will let them alone.

When and where the wedding will take place, who is the plaintiff in the divorce case and where the suit was filed remained unanswered.

But Aly, scion of fabulous wealth and heir apparent to the religious leadership of millions of Ismaili Moslems, was definite about this:

"I am going to marry Miss Hayworth as soon as I am free to do so."

The film star sent a message saying she was "in full agreement" with all he said.

Miss Hayworth added she has "only been waiting for him to be free to marry him." She is the former wife of Film Producer Orson Welles.

Asked whether the four-time-married Aga Khan approved of his plans, Prince Aly replied: "Naturally. Of course."

The prince's present wife is a Briton, the former Joan Yarde-Buller. They have two sons.

Flier Gets 25 Years On Treason Charge

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—A 27-year-old former Air Force officer was sentenced to 25 years imprisonment today and fined $10,000 after pleading guilty to charges of treason.

The former lieutenant, Martin Monti of Florissant, Mo., could have been sentenced to death under the indictment which charged him with giving himself up to the Germans and broadcasting for them.

Monti was sentenced by Judge Robert A. Inch in Brooklyn Federal Court after admitting the truth of charges in the indictment, handed up by a Federal grand jury last October 14.

He took the stand after Inch ruled he could not accept the guilty plea unless Monti made a confession in open court or after two witnesses had testified to treasonable overt acts committed by him.

Monti's trial was the first treason case in the metropolitan New York area since the end of the war. Several Government witnesses were flown from Europe to testify.

Twenty-four persons have been indicted for treason to date, half of them for broadcasting anti-American propaganda. Fourteen have been convicted, two died in Germany, and the cases against three have been dropped.

The only death sentence issued thus far was against Tomoye Kawakita, who established a wartime factory in Tokyo and mistreated American prisoners working there.

The indictment against Monti charged the following:

He gave himself and his plane up to the Germans in Italy between October 13, 1944, and May 8, 1945, after going absent without leave in Karachi, India.

Then he volunteered his services to the Nazis, was released as a prisoner of war and broadcast for the Germans from Berlin as Martin Withaupt.

Subsequently he became an officer in the S. S. Elite Guard but made his way to Italy after the Nazi capitulation and joined the American Fifth Army.

Later United States military authorities returned him to the United States and he was court-martialed for the theft of the plane and desertion. A 15-year prison sentence was remitted and he was allowed to reenlist as a private.

However, he was arrested last January on the treason charges when he was discharged.

On the stand today, Monti admitted he had gone AWOL in Karachi, hitched airplane rides to Naples where he stole an Army photo reconnaisance plane and flew to Milan where he gave himself, and the plane up to the Germans.

At the time of his arrest, his father, Martin A. Monti, jr., said his son told him during a visit to St. Louis that the Nazis threatened him while he was a prisoner and "I let them think I had become a Nazi. After all, they had the guns."

New Chance for Ex-Bundist

Former Bund Leader Given Chance to Regain Citizenship

August Klapprott, a former leader of the German-American Bund, and a defendant in the mass sedition case here, yesterday was given a chance to try to regain his American citizenship.

In a widely-split decision, the Supreme Court ruled by a 5 to 4 vote that Klapprott's citizenship should not have been taken from him in 1942 by "default"—while he was in jail charged with conspiring against the draft act.

The high court's judgment sends the citizenship case back to the Federal District Court in New Jersey, to give the 42-year-old Klapprott an opportunity to prove if he honestly swore allegiance to the United States in 1933.

Klapprott was held in the District Jail here for two years and 10 months, from January, 1944, to Novmeber, 1946.

There was no majority opinion in the high court's decision, although Justices Murphy, Rutledge and Burton joined in the judgment given in an opinion written by Justice Black, in which Justice Douglas concurred.

Justice Black wrote: "Petitioner is entitled to a fair trial. He has not had it. The Government makes no claim that he has . . ."

Justice Reed wrote the one dissenting opinion in which Chief Justice Vinson and Justice Jackson joined. They said the claim that Klapprott did not receive a fair hearing "falls flat in view of the simple facts."

Klapprott came here from Germany in 1927, was naturalized in 1933, and married an American citizen in 1936. In May, 1942, the United States attorney in New Jersey filed a complaint to cancel his citizenship on grounds his oath of allegiance was false. Klapprott was then eastern United States leader of the Bund.

In July, before expiration of the 60-day period to answer the complaint, he was arrested and charged with 24 Bund leaders of conspiring to advise draft evasion. A letter he wrote to the American Civil Liberties Union, asking aid in defense of the denaturalization case, was taken and retained by FBI agents, he states.

to help him in the citizenship case, he said, but failed to do so, and he lost citizenship by default.

He was sentenced to 5 years on the draft charge, but the Supreme Court reversed this conviction in June, 1945, holding the conspiracy case insufficient. At that time, Klapprott was in District Jail, awaiting trial with 29 others on charges of attempting to provoke disloyalty in American servicemen.

This indictment was dismissed on November 22, 1946, by Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws of District Court, and Klapprott was released from District Jail, but immediately seized by immigration authorities.

Reds Protest Police 'Mob' fought in the courtroom, many persons who had been lolling on park benches in the warm sunshine outside the building got up and began marching up and down.

Soon the line had about 300 persons, all parading silently. None carried placards or signs. They marched for about an hour and then broke up into little groups.

Assistant Chief Inspector Frank Fristensky, jr., said the reason for the large police detail was that the "Daily Worker (Communist Party paper) has been building this thing up for days.

"We are in charge of protecting life and property, keeping the streets clear for unobstructed use of pedestrians and to keep vehicular traffic moving," he said.

The trial, first such proceeding against Communist Party members in the history of the United States, got under way at 10:43 a. m. (EST). The defense moved for a 90-day postponement of the oft-delayed case. Judge Medina denied the motion. Then the battle over the police started.

In all, defense counsel presented three motions to the court, the last that Medina disqualify himself on the grounds of prejudice.

This, too, Medina refused to grant.

The defendants, who compose the national board of the American Communist Party, are specifically charged with conspiracy to organize a party advocating overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

They were indicted by a Federal grand jury last July 20 during a lengthy investigation of alleged subversive activities and Communist espionage. The defendants, all free in $5000 bail each, face a possible maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The trial was postponed last November because William Z. Foster, 67, national chairman of the party, was suffering from a heart ailment.

He was the only defendant absent today. His counsel, Louis F. McCabe, told the court Foster was not present because of his health.

"I did not want to run the risk of instructing him to be present," McCabe said.

Besides Foster, the other defendants are:

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the American Communist Party.

Benjamin J. Davis, jr., Negro Communist member of the New York city council.

John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, Communist newspaper.

Robert G. Thompson, New York State Communist Party chairman.

John Williamson, the party's labor secretary.

Irving Potash, manager of the CIO Furriers joint council.

Gilbert Breen of Chicago, Illinois State chairman of the party.

Carl Winter of Detroit, chairman of the Michigan State council of the party.

Gus Hall of Cleveland, Ohio, State chairman.

Thirty minutes before the trial got under way, some 150 persons milled in the courthouse corridors waiting to get inside. Fewer than half of them, however, were able to get seats.

After a roll-call of the defendants, United States Attorney John F. X. McGohey moved to proceed with the conspiracy indictment against the 11 defendants present.

Judge Medina did not rule immediately on this motion.

The argument over the police detail was lengthy.

George W. Crockett, jr., Negro defense attorney from Detroit, asserted that "an atmosphere here prevails which is no different than that at the Scottsboro trial."

He said a "rough count" indicated that there were more police than spectators in the square outside the courthouse.

Richard F. Gladstein, another defense attorney, told the court that "never in my experience have I seen what I have seen here."

"I am aware that trigger-happy men are included among those police and I am aware that hundreds of prospective jurors came to this building and saw something they have never seen before," he said, adding:

"There are hundreds of jurors there whose minds already have been poisoned, having witnessed the spectacle that exists only when martial law is declared. But no martial law has been declared in Foley Square."

Diomedes Urged As Greek Premier

Athens, Jan. 17 (AP).—Four former premiers suggested tonight that the Greek governmental crisis be solved by naming Alexander Diomedes, retired banker and old-time Liberal Party leader, Premier.

Meanwhile, King Paul extended until 7 p. m. Tuesday his ultimatum to Greece's 10 political parties to form a coalition cabinet.

It was understood that Diomedes has signified his willingness to serve, under certain conditions. A former finance minister, he would succeed Themistokles Sophoulis.

The four former premiers who recommended Diomedes were Constantin Tsaldaris, Populist (Royalist) Party leader; Sophocles Venizelos, Liberal; George Papandreou, Social Democrat-Republican, and Panayotis Kanellopoulos, Union-Republican.

The King's original ultimatum to the party heads expired at noon today.

National troops waged punishing attacks on Communist-led guerillas they had driven from the battered Macedonian industrial town of Naoussa. The general staff said part of the rebel force was ambushed 12 miles west of Naoussa, in a battle that still was continuing.

Czech Major Gets Death on Spy Charge

Prague, Jan. 17 (AP).—An Army major was sentenced to death and two other officers to prison terms by a military court today on charges they plotted with a foreign power's agent against the Republic.

The sentences were announced as Prague pondered the identity of generals reported arrested in an attempt to overthrow the Communist government of President Klement Gottwald.

An official statement was promised on the arrests. But early tonight the story had no confirmation except that in official quarters it was said the plot had not progressed far.

The name of only one general, Josef Kuttlwasser, once commander of troops in Moravia, was mentioned. It was admitted he has been under arrest for some time.

The death sentence was delivered today upon Maj. Ladislav Cihal.

World Union Group Splits

Paris, Jan. 17 (NYHT).—The World Federation of Trade Unions (WFTU), established in 1945 to coordinate globally the labor policies of its 70 million affiliated members, arrived tonight at the long-expected split along East-West lines.

American and British members of the WFTU's executive bureau said after a day-long closed session there was no hope of the Soviet Union accepting a British proposal the organization suspend for at least a year.

This motion was introduced by the British Trades Union Congress on a no-compromise basis. The TUC wants a holiday from what it and the American CIO regard as Communist domination and manipulation of the WFTU for political purposes.

James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, told the meeting that American labor already regarded the WFTU as a dead letter.

The TUC and the CIO will probably pull out of the WFTU to form "a world-wide organization independent of governments and political parties and ideologies," Carey said.

Unlicensed Workers Call Ferry Strike in Va.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—Unlicensed employees of the Virginia Ferry Co. have called a strike for March 19.

Ben Rees, business agent for the Seafarers' International Union (AFL), said 291 workers represented by the union will walk out unless the company grants a 50 per cent wage increase. The company has offered a 10 per cent boost.

The company operates a passenger and vehicular ferry service between Little Creek and Cape Charles.

3 Powers Set Watch Against German Arms

Berlin, Jan. 7 (AP).—The three Western Powers announced today the creation of a far-flung security organization to keep close watch on the Germans "for many years."

The idea is to see that the Germans do not repeat history and develop a new secret war potential as they did after World War I.

Establishment of the military security board was announced in London, Paris, Washington and Berlin. It is designed to take over the demilitarization functions of the inoperative Allied Control Council, which the Russians wrecked by withdrawal.

Board of Three Members

The board consists of Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges, Air Force bombing expert, for the United States; Maj. Gen. J. H. Westropp, deputy chief of staff in Germany, for Britain, and Brig. Gen. Etienne Paskiewicz, and engineer, for France.

Hodges said the organization was set up only for western Germany. He explained the Russians were not invited, but added: "I assume if and when the situation is favorable, the Russians will be invited to join."

The board will police all walks of German life. Since disarmament of Germany is "practically accomplished," the board said, the job is one of watching for the future.

Its creation was ordered at a conference in London attended by the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. Details were worked out by the military governors of the three large powers.

To Bar Rearming

The inspectors will see that Germany does not rearm in the military, industrial or scientific fields. The directive setting up the board said:

"The inspectors will be empowered to make inspections of plants and establishments. If the board deems it advisable, they may make these inspections without giving prior notice."

The board will delve even into the German school system. Germans will not be allowed to develop aviation knowledge, and former German militarists will be forbidden to serve in foreign armies when it can be prevented.

Police To Stay On

Hodges said the policing force will remain here even after the occupation of Germany ends. This will be done by mutual arrangement with whatever German government is created.

The board will have regional offices in addition to a headquarters staff that may include as many as 200 persons. Strength of the field group may run into the thousands.

The personnel will be mostly civilian—technical experts, supervised by military men. The costs will be borne separately by each of the three Western governments, and subsequently paid by the Germans as occupation expenses.

To Avoid Politics

Members of the board will try to avoid dealing with political matters. Hodges said such problems would be parceled out to some other agency within the military government.

"The board will use every source of information available," Hodges stated. This was interpreted as an open invitation to Germans to report violations.

British authorities disclosed that 20 Germans had been arrested on charges of stealing airlift gasoline from the Gatow Airport and peddling it in the black market. Another 14 Germans, accused of the theft of airlift food, will be tried Thursday.

Reds Purge Newspaper, Mouthpiece in Germany

Berlin, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Russia is carrying out a purge of the newspaper Taegliche Rundschau, Soviet mouthpiece in Germany, United States officials said today.

They reported a shakeup of the staff swept out even the Soviet secret agents assigned to watch the paper.

GI-Fraulein Marriages Barred

Frankfurt, Germany, Jan. 17 (AP).—The U. S. Army today withdrew all permits for the marriage of GIs and German fraueins.

This new step in an effort to check a flood of such marriages drew protests from soldiers whom the order hit.

Officially the Army was silent about its reasons. Officers and chaplains, however, said the action would protect youthful draftees due in Germany soon. They said some German girls may have wed Americans to get out of Germany.

There have been 15,000 marriages between American soldiers and German girls since the post-war marriage ban was lifted two years ago. More than half of the bridegrooms were enlisted men, Army records showed.

Yesterday the Army forbade enlisted men below the rank of sergeant to marry in Germany, except in special cases.

Today's cancellation of marriage permits already issued means that the applications will have to be renewed for review in light of yesterday's tough orders. Mostly it will mean, too, that a GI affected by the order will have to postpone wedding bells until he gets home or has got past the rank of corporal.

My telephone table in the hall is a regular "catch-all" for books, magazines, old letters and recipes. This morning, I noticed that the telephone receiver was propped up on some of these books and what-have-you. I'd just put it back on the hook when someone rang the doorbell.

It was a young man from the telephone company. He said one of the other parties on my party line had reported his telephone out-of-order. He explained that when one receiver was off the hook, it took the whole line out of service. When he asked me if I would check my telephone, I turned a deep shade of crimson and told him what I'd discovered.

I made a note then and there to put a sign up over the telephone. In big, bold letters, I wrote, "Always replace the receiver carefully after each call."

Labor Party Drive On Bevin Grows

London, Jan. 17 (AP).—A growing movement within the Labor Party to force Ernest Bevin's resignation as Foreign Secretary was reported today, as the British cabinet debated his controversial Palestine policy.

There were conflicting accounts as to the amount of cabinet backing Bevin had. It seems certain, however, that Prime Minister Attlee personally will back him to the hilt.

A group of Labor Party "rebels" met privately today to coordinate the strategy they intend to use both in the House of Commons and at their party meeting Wednesday. Most prominent among them was 41-yearold Richard H. S. Crossman.

Both Attlee and Bevin have promised to attend the meeting Wednesday of the Parliamentary Labor Party of the House of Commons.

Parliament meets Tuesday. The government almost certainly will face a hostile allparty alliance on the Palestine question.

Bevin is expected to make a statement on the loss of five British planes over Palestine.

If Bevin does not volunteer, Winston Churchill, Conservative leader, will press him for a full statement.

Newspaper criticism has become increasingly harsh. The current issue of The Economist declared Bevin's "saber rattling has undone all the good achieved by the quiet intervention of a week before" when Britain obtained American representations to Israel on the penetration into Egypt.

"Things have come to a pretty pass when it is Britain that has to be publicly appealed to for moderation—and by representatives of the United States and Israel," The Economist said.

In Indonesia

Dutch Regret Treatment of Captives

The Hague, The Netherlands, Jan. 17 (AP).—The Netherlands government announced "deep regrets" today for conditions under which captive Indonesian Republican leaders have been held on the island of Bangka.

The Foreign Office said "strong action" would be taken against those responsible.

The United Nations Good Offices Committee in the East Indies reported Mohamed Hatta, Indonesian Republican premier, and four others were confined in a single room furnished with only two chairs and two tables.

The Dutch previously had told the Security Council that only four leaders were held on Bangka, and that they enjoyed complete freedom.

The Foreign Office said "the treatment took place in conflict with instructions given by the Dutch government.

The communique did not clear up confusion concerning identity of the Republicans held on Bangka.

Bite-Run Traffic Case Costs Woman a Finger

Cleveland, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—A bite-and-run traffic accident was recorded here today.

The victim was Mrs. George Futty. She said she and her husband got out of their car when it collided with another.

In the ensuing argument, the woman from the other car bit off the end of Mrs. Futty's middle finger, quickly climbed back into her auto and drove away.

Indonesian View Sought by U. N. Council

Lake Success, Jan. 17 (NYHT).—The United Nations Security Council interceded with the Dutch today to let one or more imprisoned officials of the Republic of Indonesia come to Lake Success to testify about the Dutch "police action" last month.

At the same time, Dr. J. H. van Royen, Netherlands representative, told the council that Sutan Sjahrir, former Republican premier is en route to Batavia, Java, from internment in Sumatra, for talks with Dr. Willem Drees, Netherlands Prime Minister. Republican representatives here called this a move to "split" their leaders, but expressed "full confidence" in Sjahrir.

The Republicans here said Sjahrir is "one of the most suitable" representatives to come here.

The council went through another day of argument about Indonesia without a formal resolution. The United States has circulated an informal "working paper," and Dr. Philip Jessup, United States delegate, called today for a council decision before January 20, when Asiatic foreign ministers are scheduled to meet in New Delhi for a conference about Indonesia.

Missing Waiter's Body Found at Train Wreck Scene

The body of Lewis H. Miller, 46, a dining car waiter, of 2126 11th st. nw., missing since the derailment of the Orange Blossom Special in Florida a week ago, was found at the wreck scene yesterday.

Miller, who was married only 10 months ago, was identified by Sheriff Leroy Campbell of Groveland, Fla., investigating the Seaboard Airline Railroad wreck. The body was pinned in the muckland under an overturned diner, among the last of the wreckage to be cleared away.

A former waiter at the Cosmos Club here, Miller had left Washington Sunday, January 9, for New York, where he boarded the Florida special.

Citrus Areas Hit by Cold Wave on Coast

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP).—Southern California, gripped by unprecedented winter cold since the first of the year, prepared tonight for temperatures as low as 22 degrees in citrus districts.

On heels of a raging windstorm which uprooted hundreds of trees, smashed plate glass windows, disrupted power in many sections and blocked some highways, the cold wave threatened further harm to already hard-hit fruit groves.

Chief wind damage centered in Los Angeles.

A furious storm out of the South Pacific, with drenching rains driven by high winds punished Honolulu and surrounding territory Sunday and today.

The Weather Bureau warned that more of the same was on the way. Winds 40 to 60 miles an hour were predicted.

A Navy weather station recorded 25.44 inches of rain in the 24 hours ending at 8 a. m. Monday.

Hickam Field, Wheeler Field and Kaneohe Naval Air Station were closed to traffic.

A rescue train brought 300 persons into Lordsburg, N. Mex., early today as a continuing snowstorm all but paralyzed travel over much of southern New Mexico. A National Guard unit was ordered to the scene to aid in rescue operations.

Snow measuring 9 to 13 inches on the level was reported.

At least 150 automobiles were reported stalled along the highways.

The storm caught scores of motorists traveling U. S. highway 70-80, and several thousand persons were stranded overnight in Lordsburg.

Speedy Senate Action Urged On Acheson

Dean Acheson's speedy confirmation as Secretary of State was urged upon the Senate yesterday by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) filed a brief committee report praising Acheson's record and finding him abundantly fitted to succeed "one of the great Americans of our time, George C. Marshall."

Connally plans to bring Acheson's nomination before the Senate today, with every prospect of quick and overwhelming approval. The Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously last week to recommend his confirmation.

"It is the view of the Committee," said Connally's report yesterday, "that Mr. Acheson is exceptionally well qualified to assume the responsibilities of the high post to which the President has nominated him.

'In view of the importance of the post, and in view of Mr. Acheson's exceptional qualifications for that post, the committee expresses the hope that prompt action on the nomination may be taken by the Senate."

Dulles Expects Less Tension

John Foster Dulles expects less tension and better relations between the United States and Russia during 1949.

Dulles, who recently returned from the United Nations meeting in Paris where he acted as chairman of the United States delegation, outlined his views in an interview published yesterday in United States News & World Report, news magazine.

One reason he expects improvement is that Communist-controlled states will have to concentrate more on internal construction and less on Communist expansion, he said.

Asked what he thought would evolve in the next few years, Dulles replied:

"I believe that, subject to accident or stupidity, there will be a gradual lessening of tension, primarily because the Communist tactics of aggression are becoming less potent. They're becoming better known, discovered, exposed, nullified. Secondly, because the internal problems of the Communist states require urgently more attention.

"Soviet communism today dominates almost one quarter of the human race. It's gotten into that position very largely by overthrowing existing systems. But they are now at a point where they have got to build up and I think that may shift the emphasis of their policy in a direction where it will be less in conflict with United States policy."

Dulles reminded his interviewer, however, that Communist philosophy allows for periods of retreat or consolidation and that there is no time limit on the ultimate goal of world expansion.

Rail Line Strike Set Wednesday By Engineers

Cleveland, Jan. 17 (AP).—A strike of engineers on the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad was set today for 4 a. m. (EST) Wednesday, Chief Clerk George Hooper of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' headquarters here said.

The dispute centers over union claims on the dismissal of two engineers and also in connection with company signal rules.

German Plant Row Handed to Acheson

Post Reporter

The recurring dispute over German reparations, between the United States on one side and Britain and France on the other, was thrown yesterday into the lap of Dean Acheson, the newly nominated Secretary of State.

The old disagreement was wrapped up in a new report from a committee of American industrialists recommending that about 150 factories be kept in Germany instead of being dismantled as reparations.

The report was submitted to the State Department by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman, under a provision which the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress had written into the law setting up the European Recovery Program. Hoffman asked the industrialists to advise him on which plants, and how many, should be kept in Germany.

Opposition Expected

Their proposals will have to be negotiated with the British and French governments, with every prospect that they will meet strenuous opposition.

Although details of the report were kept secret, there was no question that it called for a substantial increase in German steel production. One estimate was that if all the plants on the industrialists' list were retained, Germany could produce about 13 million tons of steel annually, as against the present permitted limit of 10,700,000 tons.

The question now is how vigorous Acheson and his negotiators will be in insisting on a policy virtually dictated by the Republican majority in the last Congress.

Republicans Complained

Last winter many Republican Senators and Congressmen complained loudly that the dismantling of plants was crippling German economic recovery and adding to the financial burden of the United States in Germany. As a result, the law provided that the ECA administrator could ask the Secretary of State to negotiate for retaining plants in Germany "if such retention will most effectively serve the purposes of the European Recovery Program."

This clause proved to be troublesome to Hoffman abroad and at home. Abroad, the British and French were unwilling to stop the dismantling of factories which American authorities thought useful to German recovery. At home, Hoffman was under constant pressure from Republicans who felt confident of winning the election.

Committee Appointed

In September Hoffman concluded that neither he nor his agency could decide quickly which factories, and how many, should be kept. He therefore appointed a committee headed by George M. Humphrey of Cleveland, and including other American manufacturers, to make a survey and report back to him.

He also persuaded the British and French not to take the dismantled machinery out of Germany in the case of the debated factories, although he failed to get them to stop the dismantling process altogether.

After surveying the problem, the Humphrey committee recommended keeping 167 plants that would otherwise have gone to France and other Allied nations as reparations. This would have involved bringing German steel production to an estimated 15,900,000 tons a year; one of the plants alone had a capacity of 2,000,000 tons.

France, Britain Balk

The French were willing to keep about 120 of these plants in Germany, the British about 140, but both western allies objected sharply and stubbornly to going any further.

There is some evidence that the Humphrey committee has tried to meet these objections part way, but its present proposals still go too far to satisfy the British and French.

Now, under the act of Congress, the matter passes into the State Department's hands. The British and French will submit separate lists of the plants they think should be kept without adding dangerously to Germany's war potential.

Major Changes in Air Strength Due Under 48-Group Set-up

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Air Force will double its heavy bomber force—boosting the number of globe-ranging B-36 groups from two to four—and reduce other combat organizations 20 to 25 per cent under the new 48-group strength provided by the 1950 budget.

Orders for a major reorganization of the Air Force—expected to be announced within a day or two—have been prepared, The Washington Post learns. They are understood to:

Discontinue 5 of the present 25 fighter groups in existence in the United States, Europe and Pacific islands.

Drop two of the present troop carrier groups. There are now 8 and a total of 10 were planned under the 70-group plan.

Reduce Medium Bomber Group

Reduce the number of medium bomb groups—B-29s and B-50s—from 13 to 10. This will mean only one group must be deactivated, as two will be converted to heavy groups. A total of 18 medium bomber groups were planned under the 70-group Air Force.

Reduce the number of light bomber and reconnaisance groups proportionately—from 11 to 8.

Cut the number of separate squadrons—liaison, air-sea rescue, etc.—from 17 to 10.

While there have been reports that the reduction in the number of groups will be accompanied by an increase in the number of planes in each group and thus will not represent a material cut in combat strength, well-informed officials said yesterday that the only such change in view is the adding of tanker planes to strategic bomber forces for aerial refueling.

Comparisons Outlined

Here is a comparison of the planned 70-group Air Force organization, with the present 59-group setup and the planned 48 groups:

Seventy-group plan—Two heavy bombers, 18 medium bombers, 25 fighters, 5 light bombers, 10 troop carriers and 10 reconnaissance groups.

Fifty-nine group organization—Two heavy bombers, 13 medium bombers, 25 fighters, three light bombers, 8 reconnaissance and 8 troop carrier groups.

Forty-eight group plan—Four heavy bombers, 10 light bombers, 20 fighters, 6 troop carriers and 8 reconnaissance and light bomber groups.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that 666 Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the 666 Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, 666 Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on 666 Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. 666 Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Baker Scion Slain in South

loaned her a coat to wear on the jeep ride and that a pistol was in the pocket. Baker took the pistol once to fire a shot in the air to attract a couple driving up ahead, the witness said, then replaced the weapon in her coat.

Other witnesses said the pistol was lying beside the body when they went to the scene and it was returned to the pocket of the coat Mrs. Griffin was still wearing. She said she did not remember how the pistol got out of her pocket the second time.

Mrs. Griffin testified that she and Grenville had not had an argument and that he had not made improper advances toward her. He had been drinking Scotch during the evening, she said, but she herself had only half a glass of beer.

Mrs. Whiddon testified she and her husband went to the airport to meet Baker at 9:30 o'clock last night. Her small son slept in the back seat of the car during the night, she said.

Mrs. Whiddon said the party visited Whiddon's drive-in in town, the Hit-Hat, then went to a place called the Snack, where they picked up Mrs. Griffin.

The party later went to the Talquin Inn, Mrs. Whiddon testified and early this morning they all went to the Baker plantation, 11 miles outside Tallahassee, to take Baker home.

Baker took his bags inside, she testified, and came back out saying he would show the Whiddons the way to the gate. Mrs. Griffin, who was to ride back to town with the Whiddons, got in the jeep to ride with Baker as far as the gate, Mrs. Whiddon said.

Somehow, she said, their car got in front of the jeep and when they reached the highway they had lost sight of the jeep. They waited some time for Mrs. Griffin, she said, and finally the young woman came up to the car and said there had been a wreck.

Mrs. Griffin said she herself was not hurt much "but I'm afraid Gren is," Mrs. Whiddon testified.

The Whiddons drove back until they found the jeep partly overturned in a ditch and Baker lying in a half-sitting position against the bank.

"He was breathing hard and sort of gasping," Mrs. Whiddon said.

By the light of the headlights, Mrs. Whiddon saw an automatic pistol lying beside him when she knelt down to feel Baker's pulse, she said.

The Whiddons went for help and roused Badger Larkin, whose cabin was 200 yards from the wreck scene, and Jack Goode, overseer of the plantation.

When they got back Baker apparently had died.

Larkin testified he heard the noise of the jeep smashing into the ditch from his cabin and heard the engine still running.

Then, he testified, before the motor stopped and the jeep headlights were turned off, he heard two shots fired. Between the two shots he saw a coated figure pass in front of the headlights, he said.

Whiddon, a short, dark-complexioned man whom officers identified as a once-convicted bootlegger, also testified.

He said the first thing he knew about a gun was after they left the death scene and were driving Mrs. Griffin home. Mrs. Griffin told him there was a pistol inside the coat she was wearing, a fleece-lined garment Baker had loaned her to keep her warm on the jeep drive, Whiddon said.

The witness added that Mrs. Griffin told him after that that Baker had fired one shot in the air to attract help after the jeep went into the ditch.

Both Whiddons, however, testified that they heard no shots.

George Baker, Grenville's father, was board chairman of the First National Bank of New York at hihs death in 1937. His father helped organize the bank.

Grenville Baker attended St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., and Harvard and served in the Army Air Force during the war.

He is survived by his wife, the former Alicia Grajales.

Baker, a handsome young man called "Beans" by his friends, was known as a prince charming in society circles before he took his Mexican bride despite parental opposition in 1943.

Peron Gift Is Accepted

The Children's Aid Society, Inc., finally accepted six crates of children's clothing yesterday from the Maria Eva Durate de Peron Social Assistance Foundation of Argentina, after first refusing, then asking "postponement" of the gft.

The crates, containing 600 outfits of children's clothing, were presented late yesterday to the "mission for underprivileged children" at its headquarters, 466 H st. sw. by Augustin A. Merlo, Labor Attache at the Argentine Embassy.

The society is a Washington organization founded by the Rev. Ralph E. Vawters and his wife in 1938, and is not a member of the Community Chest. It feeds about 30 youngsters nightly, according to Mrs. Fay Vawters, and clothes 1000 yearly.

Disturbed by publicity which followed announcement of the gift, the society first turned down the gift in a letter to the Embasy dated January 15 and signed by its attorney, Ben Lindas.

State Department officials, though they declined to comment on the incident officially, were embarrassed about the gift which seemed to imply that the United States can't care for its own unfortunates and feared it would be grist for Moscow propaganda:

Reconsidering yesterday, Lindas said he dispatched a telegram to the Argentine Embassy asking them to "store the goods a few days till any difficulties had been cleared up."

A second telegram was sent late yesterday accepting the goods, Mr. Vawters said, after a State Department official in the Argentine affairs division okayed the action in an "off the record" phone conversation.

"Astounded" by the donation, Mrs. Vawters called it unsolicited. A mimeographed circular, addressed to "Dear Friend" and asking the recipient to "send whatever you wish to share with these little less fortunate children," had been sent to the Argentine Embassy around Christmas, however, she said.

Gag In Baltimore

If a deliberate effort were being made to demonstrate both the futility and the danger of the Baltimore press gag rule, there could be no better proof than the case of Radio Station WSID of Essex, Md. WSID is one of the five radio stations cited by the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City for violation of its code prohibiting the publication (and broadcast) of news about a defendant charged with crime while his case is pending in court. WSID sought to throw off the contempt citation on the ground that it is not within the jurisdiction of the Baltimore court, since Essex is 10 miles from Baltimore proper. But Judge John B. Gray, jr., of Calvert County, who was appointed by the Court of Appeals to hear the citation cases, has declared that WSID must stand trial because its broadcasts "were available to city listeners."

If the ruling actually means what Judge Gray says it does, then it amounts literally to battling the air. The application of the gag in Baltimore City is bad enough, but to extend it to an area outside the physical limits of Baltimore seems to us a pretty strained version of the court's jurisdiction. Under such an interpretation there is nothing to prevent the haling into court of some luckless station whose broadcasts reached Baltimore only through atmospheric freak. By implication the Baltimore ruling also applies to all Washington radio stations—and newspapers—which carried to Baltimore details of the arrest of Eugene H. James in the Bardwell and Brill murder cases last summer.

All this is done in the name of insuring a prisoner a fair trial. Such a right is, of course, basic to American judicial concepts. But for the courts to attempt to set it up as a paramount or exclusive right is to reflect altogether too narrow an understanding of the relationship of the courts to society in general. For society is made up of many interrelated privileges and duties, and one of these is the public's right to be informed—not only about the details of crime, but about the conduct of public officials in criminal cases as well. In a complicated society a right can be guaranteed only so long as this guarantee does not infringe on other important rights. Surely it is possible to provide for a fair trial in Baltimore without elaborate and unrealistic attempts at insulation. The devising of means to accomplish this within the framework of other rights is one test of the court's competence.

Greek Vacuum

The drouth of acceptable leadership in the Greek cabinet stalemate points up the need for a new election. The chief stumbling block to any energetic program that would command the people's confidence has been the fact that each new crisis has brought merely a reshuffling of the same few ministers. Apparently this is what King Paul has sought to avoid in refusing to give responsibility to Foreign Minister Tsaldaris.

On the basis of the last election Tsaldaris is the man who has the most popular support. This fact has weakened the interim Sophoulis governments and reduced them almost to caretaker status. Tsaldaris, however, is tagged—to some extent unjustly—as the spokesman of the most reactionary elements in Greece. To elevate him to the premiership now would be to dismay further those who believe that the only hope of a regime that can stand up to the Communists lies in sweeping governmental change.

King Paul sounded a strong tocsin in his call for a "united government of national salvation." The fact is that bickering for political advantage during the illness of Sophoulis has reduced the Greek government to something perilously close to anarchy. Undoubtedly the King has it in mind, if the recognized leaders cannot sink their differences in a new coalition, to appoint some sort of extra-parliamentary government. This might answer the need for firmness, but it would carry disturbing connotations of dictatorship unless it were coupled with a definite promise of new elections.

The hitch in holding new elections now is that it is extremely difficult, in a country in the throes of civil war, to get any really fair expression of the people's will. The choices are too extreme. Hence there would be some advantage in delaying elections if there were reason to believe that the interim government could be relied upon to make the necessary reforms which even the Rightist Greek press is now demanding.

Here is where an unmistakable declaration of American policy must enter. We have accepted the premise that Greece is vital to our security. But we are still floundering in the nether land of half-intervention, in effect trying to intervene militarily while preserving the forms of non-intervention. It hasn't worked, and the lack of any clear-cut statement of what we wish to see accomplished in Greece has encouraged the cat-and-mouse game of Greek politicians who feel that we are irretrievably committed to their support.

Communists On Trial

The trial of the Communist leaders which began in New York yesterday will be watched very closely at home and abroad. Its conduct will be no less a trial of the United States than of the top-flight Commies who are accused of conspiring to teach and advocate the overthrow of the Government of this country by force and violence. For the outcome of this case will give an index to the status of civil liberties in the world's most powerful democratic nation, and will thus affect our standing among free peoples.

The defendant Communists regard the trial as an assault upon their party, not for any subversive acts committed by it, but for teaching the historical principles of Marxian socialism. In other words, they rest their case on the right of freedom of speech, one of the most respected guarantees in the Constitution. The success or failure of the prosecution is likely to depend upon its ability to keep the case on a different basis. There are two key words in the indictment: "force" and "violence." The Communist leaders are accused not merely of advocating the Communist way of life, but also of organizing a conspiracy aimed at destruction of the Government of the United States by means that are forbidden in the Smith Act.

If we read the Constitution correctly, the right to teach and preach a different way of life must be protected when exercised by Communists no less than when exercised by Democrats and Republicans. Some schools and colleges—out of fear or weakness—have gone to ridiculous extremes in eliminating all teaching about communism. The United States can tolerate the teaching of obnoxious doctrines without making itself helpless in the face of a revolutionary conspiracy or Trojan Horse tactics directed by the Kremlin or the Cominform. Charles Evans Hughes said some years before he became Chief Justice that the founding fathers did not devise "an imposing spectacle of impotency." The underlying question is whether the Communist Party in this country passes the bounds of free speech and gets into the realm of subversive activity against which any free government must necessarily protect itself.

In large measure this appears to be a question of fact—the central facts being the nature of the Communist Party and type of activities that it sponsors. It is thus a question that calls for the most searching examination of the Communist Party's record and the coolest sort of deliberation. Undoubtedly the court will have to be on guard against demonstrations, legal tricks and obstruction. Yet many will question whether it was necessary to assign 400 policemen for service in connection with the trial. It is the judicial atmosphere that ought to prevail. So many police, unless they are necessary to keep order, might easily be regarded as prejudicial to the defendants. And what is wanted, of course, is not a pillorization of men because they are Communists, but a severely detached finding as to the nature of the Communist assault upon our free institutions. Anything less than that would be unworthy of a great democratic power.

Nourse's Dissent

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, says he is not a hundred per cent advocate of the President's legislative program. In a public address in New York he confessed to being out of sympathy with certain recommendations that in his opinion "foreshadow the entrance of the Government into the operating role." Apparently Dr. Nourse was referring particularly to the recommendation relating to construction of steel plants by the Government. Since one of Dr. Nourse's colleagues is reported to be the author of this controversial suggestion, it is evident that the united front presented to the world by the council is a product of compromise—as it should be, for that matter.

The belief entertained by Dr. Nourse is that the proper role of Government in relation to private industry is to help bring about the conditions under which private, competitive industry can operate effectively while avoiding operational responsibility. It is quite true that the steel proposal might, under certain conditions, result in putting the Government in business as a steel-maker. And, even short of that, it suggests that the Government might invade the field of private management by deciding on an industrial expansion not desired by the industry. It is this possibility that brings angry protests and warnings that the Government is moving toward socialization of industry.

Dr. Nourse's formula for defining the line between Government aid to industry and operational encroachments is sound in ordinary times. It is the formula which was laid down in a recent brochure put out by Dr. Nourse's former organization, the Brookings Institution, of which he was vice president. But even Brookings made concessions for extraordinary times, or emergencies. A war is, of course, such an emergency. Is a Cold War? Clearly the huge demands made on men and resources in waging the present Cold War may make it necessary for the Government to take more positive action in building up productive resources than private industry can take, or is willing to take.

However, The Washington Post does not believe that such action will be required in case of steel. Nor does the President request it. All he asked was that Congress undertake to study the adequacy of production facilities, not simply for steel-making but for all materials in critically short supply, and the study, according to our knowledge, is welcomed by steel men, provided that the study is nonpolitical. The plan is that the Government would take a hand in providing such facilities only if investigation proved the need for action. Under present conditions Dr. Nourse's apprehensions seem to us unwarranted except on the assumption that the request for an inquiry will be regarded by Congress as the equivalent of a demand to build steel plants with Government money.

Racial Tinderbox

The first count of 105 dead in the Durban rioting falls considerably short of the earlier estimate that as many as 500 lives might have been lost. But this is a preliminary total, made under circumstances that emphasize its incompleteness. While the government's quick and vigorous measures to restore order and prevent further outbreaks of violence between the Indians and the native Zulus may well succeed, the final toll will doubtless be high. The wider repercussions can hardly be foreseen or measured yet, but are also likely to be very great.

For the rioting took place in an atmosphere surcharged with racial discriminations and animosities of unusual complexity. The dominant white minority, outnumbered about four to one, denies political, economic, and social equality to all the non-European groups, though in somewhat different measure. The policy is as old as European colonization in South Africa. It cannot be attributed to the present Nationalist government under Dr. Daniel Malan except in one sense. The Malan government, unlike its predecessor under General Smuts, is determined not to allow any improvement in the status of the non-European groups.

These occupy different rungs on the ladder of citizenship rights, permitted occupations, and the like. The Indians, numbering nearly a quarter of a million, are concentrated in the mercantile pursuits. Their shops are the only ones where native Africans can trade, and they make the most of it. Themselves discriminated against, they exploit their still unluckier customers who occupy the bottom of the ladder. Animosity against the Indians, because of the high prices they charge, has been growing among the natives.

These are the tinder-like conditions into which fell a tiny spark, reportedly an altercation between a native boy and an Indian peddler. The white population appears not to be directly involved, in either cause or effect of the riot. But it is deeply involved indirectly. Racial discrimination is the creature of the European in South Africa, and he will ultimately pay the price of an unchanged situation as soon as the various nonwhite elements cease to be dominated by their own mutual animosities.

Embassy Row

Some resentment has been felt in the Diplomatic Corps over what appears to have been a breach of propriety on the part of the presidential inaugural committee. Several of the embassies reportedly have been asked by the committee to assist in housing out-of-town visitors. Others have been allocated lists of distinguished guests to entertain. At one time it was proposed that the embassies enter floats in the inaugural parade, though this project has now been abandoned.

We feel certain that the committee did not intend to have its representations look like attempts to sponge off the embassies. The committee is trying to put on the best show possible, and understandably it is beset with many anxieties in trying to arrange for the multitude of guests that will descend on Washington this week. Negotiations with the embassies have been on a friendly basis, so that members of the committee may have been unaware of the stir they have caused.

Undoubtedly most if not all of the embassies and legations would have been glad to cooperate on a voluntary basis. The manner in which the requests were handled, however, put them on the spot. They were approached directly by the inaugural committee rather than through the proper agency, which is the protocol division of the State Department. This is a small point of diplomatic nicety, but needless misunderstanding is caused by short-circuiting this approach. It is something for authorities to remember in arranging ceremonies in the Capital.

Garden Time

It was good timing to start the agitation last week for the millions of gardens that Americans are being urged to grow next summer as a contribution to national health and civic improvement. For the 150 garden leaders called to Washington for a conference by the Department of Agriculture and the director of the National Garden Program will get home to start their campaigns just when January and winter are their roughest and when garden enthusiasm is at its height. That is the time when householders, sitting comfortably before fireplaces, radiators or stoves while blizzards may rage outside, see their back yards filled with geometrical gleaming green rows, like those in the seed catalogues—with not so much as a trace of a weed or the twist of a worm in sight. That is the time when pictures of gorgeous maroon tomatoes, delicate sap-green lettuce, fat rose-pink radishes, shining magenta eggplant, chartreuse cabbage, even burnt-orange carrots, are more enchanting in their coloring and design than a Cezanne or Van Gogh original. Even thinking of it, we get so excited that we want to order a ton or so of seeds forthwith—though not a hoe, as yet, we hasten to add.

President's Salary

I should like to make a few pertinent observations with reference to an increase in the President's salary from $75,000 to $100,000.

The Constitution (Art. II, Sec. I, clause 6) is as follows: "The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services, a dispensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall be elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States. * * *"

The period for which President Truman has been elected begins on January 20, 1949, and ends on January 20, 1953. The salary provided for such office during the President's incumbency has been fixed specifically at $75,000 per annum. The President by his election is merely continuing in the performance of duties to which he acceded on the death of President Roosevelt.

It evidently was not within the contemplation of the framers of the Constitution that a Vice President succeeding to the office of President should, if subsequently elected, have his salary increased for the same services during the latter period. The irresistible presumption is that express provision would have been made for a circumstance of this sort had it been deemed advisable by the forefathers, the absence of which is conclusive proof that no such intention was contemplated. Hence, such an increase could only be made applicable to one not an incumbent of the office at the time.

Furthermore, nothing could be clearer than that it was the intent and purpose of the forefathers to limit the President's salary to a fixed sum than the use of the clause in the same sentence, viz., "and he shall not receive within that period any other emoluments from the United States." This language, which is free from ambiguity, is a cogent and definite limitation upon the compensation the President is permitted to receive during his tenure of office. The definition of the term "emolument," as defined by Webster's International Dictionary, is—"profit from office; employment or labor; compensation, perquisites, fees, salary." It necessarily follows, therefore, that Congress acted in plain contravention of the Constitution in thus increasing the President's salary.

Pedestrian Crossings

In your January 4 editorial, you list law enforcement as a reason for the lowered accident death rate and refer once or twice to the laws governing pedestrians. I disagree that these are enforced, except on the very business streets. People still walk against red lights; and despite your praise of them, the "walk-don't-walk" signs might as well not be there.

I favor a compromise. Modify the law to allow the pedestrian to cross against signals only when there is no chance of inconveniencing a motorist or causing him the anguish of hitting someone.

Any more sweeping antijaywalking law appears impractical. Though you play down "the momentary annoyance to would-be jaywalkers," this very wording shows that people tend to consider the annoyance more distasteful than the risk involved. The truth, I think, is that for a person afoot to be guided solely by a mechanical device goes against human nature and that laws requiring it are about as realistic as prohibition or nonfraternization.

Diplomatic Academy

It seems timely that we should give serious thought to the improvement of our first line of defense, which is our Department of State. It is the prime function of our Department of State to avoid war.

It seems to be extremely ill-advised to appoint, as a diplomatic agent to a country, one who is not thoroughly conversant with the language and history of that country. How can a diplomatic agent have first-hand knowledge of what is going on in the country to which he is accredited unless he speaks the language of that country?

As are our Navy and Army officers, so should our diplomatic agents be career men; and the sine qua non of their appointment should be graduation from an academy, similar to Annapolis or West Point, in which they would be instructed in world history, politics, foreign languages and diplomacy.

It seems high time that Congress should authorize the establishment of such an academy, appointees to which should be graduates of a college or have an equivalent education.

Indonesian Trusteeship

I was most interested in Mr. Weaver's statement in his letter of January 9 in answer to mine published December 30 that "Dutch good faith has been amply demonstrated during a half century period (Queen Wilhelmina's reign) of granting the Indonesian people growing political responsibility."

I searched diligently without success in 1932 for any evidence of such grants, except the award of petty nonpolicy-making jobs to a few carefully picked persons—mostly with some Dutch blood.

In the same half century the United States gave growing responsibility to its Filipino wards, including compulsory education, so that by 1940 there were 12,500 primary and advanced schools attended by two million natives out of a population of 18 millions, and the smallest child in every remote village and barrio could speak English. And when they were, given independence in 1946 they had earned it and were ready for it.

If the Dutch ever did anything to prepare the Indonesians for real self-rule it will be a great surprise to those of us who have studied the situation first hand. If, through Dutch neglect, the Indonesians are not yet sufficiently educated, or experienced politically to conduct their own affairs, why not let the U. N. give a joint mandate as their trustees and prepare them for independence as we did in the Philippines? Such a move would check Communist propaganda in the Far East. We are the only people the Asiatics trust.

Bevin's Middle East Policy

The near-hysteria of a gullible section of British public opinion and that irresponsible portion of the press which feeds and inflames its passion and prejudice should not conceal from Americans the growing uneasiness in this country caused by the perils of Mr. Bevin's Middle Eastern policy.

Your own editorial of January 10, which roundly condemned the latest tragic consequences of that policy, has been widely commented upon by the responsible British press and by the BBC. It may reassure Americans who think that the British people can no longer see straight on the subject of Palestine to learn that a growing body of opinion here is extremely restive as a result of Mr. Bevin's ill-concealed antagonism towards the Jews both in the Middle East and in the United States.

Mr. Bevin's critics are now to be found right across the British political spectrum. They include Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden, whose personal sympathies for the Arab world have not deflected him from his larger duty, as well as outstanding Conservative back-benchers like Robert Boothby. Outside the House of Commons, Leopold S. Amery, a former colonial secretary and inveterate imperialist, has been asking some extremely embarrassing questions about British military moves through the columns of The Times.

In the center, Clement Davies, parliamentary leader of the Liberal Party, and Sir Andrew McFadyean, its chairman-elect, have publicly called for the recognition of Israel. It is no secret that there are several Labor ministers who are at odds with Mr. Bevin over his conduct of Palestine affairs, and only their respect for the principle of cabinet solidarity restrains them from public exposure of their differences with him. But there are many Labor back-benchers, conspicuous among whom are Richard Crosman and Michael Foot, who have not been bludgeoned into silence through fear of being attacked as disloyal to Mr. Bevin.

The Secretary's authority and influence are still great. The last years of the troubled British mandate over Palestine have furnished him with an emotional climate in Britain which encourages his rough-shod approach to the problem of the Middle East. But the warning voices grow in volume daily.

The clumsy efforts of the Foreign Office to smear Israel as a hotbed of communism are largely directed toward American consumption. They are predicated on the naive assumption that anticommunism is the surest way of obtaining American support. Mr. Bevin's advisers and spokesmen have made a neat equation between Zionism and communism. It is on a par with the theory widely held in Whitehall that American policy would change as soon as the elections were out of the way and the so-called Jewish vote no longer a factor to be considered.

Informed and responsible opinion in this country appreciates the moderating influence which the United States appears to be exercising in the Middle East. It understands that the realization of a common Anglo-American policy is not aided by Mr. Bevin's tantrums, and it will continue to press for those changes of attitude essential for the relaxation of tension in the strategical center of the world.

Disaster In Greece

THE FALL of still another Greek government is like a lightning flash across an ominous sky. It is a warning that disintegration and chaos may be very close throughout that tragic country.

It is a warning, too, that American policy in Greece must be quickly overhauled or our policy-makers in Athens and in the State Department will find themselves receivers for a bankruptcy that cannot be contained.

Everyone of whatever political leaning, except official apologists, returning from Greece, agrees that the situation has worsened during the past year and a half while United States aid has been poured in. There are now 26,000 guerillas instead of 21,000 when United States aid began.

The Greek government claims, and with supporting evidence supplied by the United Nations Commission in Greece, that fresh help for the Communist bands comes from Albania and Yugoslavia. Yet in the Peloponnesus area, which has no contiguous border with the satellite countries, the guerillas pillage and raid almost at will in increasing numbers.

Where independent observers disagree is on the remedy for past mistakes. Some say we have intervened too much and in too great detail while at the same time never making clear to the Greeks what policy we want them to follow. That might help to explain why every paper in the country from Left to Right, with the exception of the small sheet that is the personal mouthpiece of the extreme Rightists, is critical of or even hostile toward the United States.

On the other hand, there are those who say the U. S. has been too fearful of intervening directly in Greek affairs. They argue that the U. S. should, in effect, direct the Athens government.

THE FAULT LIES, in my opinion, in the lack of any clear policy which the U. S. Mission in Greece could lay down in such a way that no Greek could possibly mistake it. This has been the British criticism of the U. S. effort. While many of us did not like what the Churchill government contemplated for Greece, at least Winston Churchill knew what he wanted.

U. S. policy-makers in Greece have, it seems to me, confined themselves too narrowly to tired reactionaries out of the past. This has been one of the reasons why the U. S. effort has achieved nothing but a holding operation, and the success even here has been limited.

After Congress approved the Truman Doctrine for Greece and Turkey, a U. S. aid mission went to Athens to supervise distribution of the supplies to be sent from here. Then later, at the urgent request of the Greek government, a U. S. military mission was sent to Greece.

That mission is staffed by able officers. They have been given, judging from most reports, good cooperation by the Greek government and military and they have been present as active advisers during engagements with the guerillas.

YET THE military situation continues to deteriorate and the morale of the Greek army is said to be sinking lower. It is here that the Greek picture must be seen in the larger context of the United States approach to foreign aid and resistance to Communist aggression.

There are those who still say that a United States military mission sent to China under a first rank United States general could save at least part of China from communism. We may well ask how this could be expected to work in China, where the problem is infinitely more complicated and difficult, if it would not work in Greece.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal is asking for the right to send United States military missions to any area where it is judged necessary to secure American interests. This is a grant of power so broad that Congress would do well to consider it a long time before taking any action.

Military men are often carried away by their own zeal and by an inherent belief that any action is better than none. They are too often deficient in the capacity to appraise the political-economic factors alongside the military.

Shortly before he resigned as Premier, the venerable Themistocles Sophoulis indicated that he would consent to form a new government for Greece only if he were given power to carry out essential reforms. Perhaps it is not too late for the United States to give him full backing to effect drastic changes.

Greece will have been a valuable object lesson in what is possible and what is not possible if Dean Acheson, the new Secretary of State, will see it in that perspective. In any event, the warning of disaster cannot be ignored.

Inaugural Tickets

Is it a charity to attend the inaugural parade and ball? It would seem so if taxes on the tickets are to be eliminated.

In view of the fact that the Administration is begging for more spending for social benefits in the country, why deprive the Government of the thousands of dollars it would gain from a comparatively small tax on each ticket? Our poor Community Chest Federation also, which has been promised, I understand, any benefits made on our celebration, seems again to be "left in the lurch."

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

A Plea To Reconsider

COULD NOT the State Department reconsider the position taken last Friday in the remarks made by its press officer, Mr. McDermott, that the nations of the Atlantic community must sign the proposed North Atlantic Security Pact if they are to receive American support and assistance?

Lippmann

Is it wise, desirable, and right to treat countries which border on the Soviet military orbit in the same way as countries which do not? This Security Pact, we must remember, is being negotiated by five European countries and two North American—none of which has a common military frontier with the Red Army or with the army of a Soviet satellite state. Must we not, therefore, consider with discriminating and judicious care our policy under the pact toward countries like Sweden and Norway, like Austria and Italy, like Greece and Turkey and Iran,—and like western Germany? I would not argue that none of these exposed countries should be permitted to join, or that none should be invited to join. But I would argue that for the present at least, while the original members of the alliance are as yet so little organized and equipped, it is not wise to press the countries of the borderland to enter the alliance.

IT IS known that Mr. McDermott's remarks were addressed immediately to Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. They are discussing their relation to the alliance. Now their problem is not simply whether in return for adherence to the Pact, they are to receive arms from us. Mr. McDermott's statement says that "it is natural that such supplies as may be available (in the United States) should go to countries associated with us in collective defense arrangements." What is meant by collective defense arrangements? Let us be frank with ourselves about this since the meaning of these words is fully understood in Moscow. Collective defense arrangements do not mean only the signing of the Pact and then the furnishing of American arms to Norway and Denmark. They mean also the development of Anglo-American sea and air installations in Scandinavia.

THE STRATEGIC advantages to the West in case of war are evident. But what we have to consider, before we insist upon them, is what Russia can do, and is likely to do, in the period—inevitably a matter of some years—before the western alliance is a military reality, and not merely a plan, a pledge, and a hope.

It is difficult to suppose that Russia will do nothing, once the Scandinavian countries have entered into "collective defense arrangements" to create sea and air bases on the northern flank of the Soviet Union. For these bases would open the Baltic to Allied naval forces and would advance the bases of Allied air power very near to vital areas of the Soviet Union.

THE OBVIOUS Soviet reply would be to invoke her treaty with Finland, then to occupy Finland, and thus to advance her military bases within striking distance of Sweden. When we realize that Sweden is much the strongest military nation in Scandinavia, that it has what many consider the third air force in Western Europe, a very considerable navy in the Baltic, and an armaments industry which is far from negligible, are we not bound to think twice before we take any steps to bring the Red Army right up to the frontiers of Sweden?

Yet that is just what we must be prepared to see happen if we press the Scandinavian countries to enter an alliance which calls for the establishment of allied bases meant to be used in war. What looks to the strategical theorists like a military asset could be turned into a serious military liability. For if as a result of our pressure the security of Scandinavia were ever more seriously threatened than it is today, we should be obliged, as a matter of honor and interest, to commit very large forces to the defense of Scandinavia. They would have to be drawn from our strategical reserves which, considering all other obligations, are none too large.

IN MAKING this critical argument, I hope I shall not seem to be an opponent of the Pact and of the policy of organizing the Atlantic Community. For I have long believed that the salvation of the western world, and the chance of an eventual modus vivendi with the Soviet Union, depend upon the successful organization of the Atlantic Community.

IT IS the custom these days to test men's views on current issues by what they thought and said in the past on the subject of our relations with Russia. Were they always tough, or were they once soft, and have they changed their minds, and why? In the winter of 1944, almost a year before the Yalta conference and while our relations with the USSR appeared to be reasonably good, I wrote a book called U. S. War Aims, from which I am quoting a short passage:

"There are those who hold that the Russians will for a long time to come be absorbed in the internal development of their vast country, and that the Soviet Union will be very nearly as self-centered as was the United States during the nineteenth century. This is one hypothesis. There is no way of proving (i. e. 1944) that it is correct.

"The other view is, of course, that Soviet Russia is an aggressive state which in various combinations fuses the ambitions of the Czarist Empire with the projects of the Third International. There is no way of proving (i. e. 1944) that this hypothesis is incorrect.

"But a foreign policy ought not to be based on a blind choice between two unprovable hypotheses. We need to be prepared for all the eventualities that can reasonably be anticipated. This is the elementary rule of prudence in statecraft—which is to work for the best that is possible and to be prepared for the worst that may happen.

"For this reason, whatever may be our private guesses, I hold that our true policy with Russia does not require us to prejudge the question of whether Russia is to be a dynamic expanding power or a satisfied and quiet one. On either hypothesis, or any variation between extreme optimism and extreme pessimism, we shall serve our vital interests by maintaining and perfecting the Atlantic Community. For if the worst that men fear is going to happen, it will be upon the solidarity of western Europe and the Americas that we shall have to rely. This solidarity is our ultimate insurance. But it is also the best possible foundation upon which to work for good relations with the Soviet Union. For in the last analysis nothing is so certain to promote the will to keep the peace as the certainty that nothing could be decided and nothing could be gained by war."

New Building Code Proposed In 2 Counties

A new streamlined building code for urban sections of Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties was proposed yetserday by the Maryland-National Capital Parks and Planning Commission.

Prepared by a special committee after more than a year's study and recommended for possible final action by early summer, the new regulations would:

1. Establish a single modernized code to replace regulations now in effect separately in the two counties.

2. Pave the way for more low-cost housing in Montgomery County by permitting use of certain prefabricated materials now prohibited in the county, but not now prohibited in Prince Georges.

3. Increase building safeguards by calling for sounder construction and greater use of fire-resistant and fireproof materials.

The committee left the door open for further revision by calling for public suggestions before final recommendations on the proposed code. It asked that comments be submitted in writing by March 1.

The committee then will study all suggestions received and make recommendation to the Park and Planning Commission. The commission, in turn, will conduct public hearings before final action on the proposal.

One specific type of prefabricated house which would be permitted under the new code, commission spokesmen said, would be the recently developed Lustron steel dwelling.

Some 500 of these homes have been ordered in Prince Georges County, it was said, but such houses are not permitted in Montgomery County because the present building code requires conventional materials such as were acceptable when the code was drawn up 21 years ago.

The spokesman said the new regulations also would permit use of other newly developed prefabricated houses which can meet the same structural tests as the Lustron house.

Sounder Practices Provided

In announcing the code would call for "sounder construction practices" than have been required in the past, a committee member said it would be difficult to cite specific examples because of the large variety of construction projects affected.

He said building requirements would vary according to the type of use proposed for new structures and would, for example, entail more rigid requirements for places used by the general public such as bowling alleys or theaters.

The new regulations would replace separate building codes in effect in Montgomery since 1927 and in Prince Georges since 1931.

Copies of the code, incorparted in a 160-page mimeographed booklet, are available to builders, engineers, architects, civic groups and others interested at the offices of the building inspector, 8500 Colesville rd, Silver Spring and 4000 Gallatin st. Hyattsville.

Nation-wide Drive Starts For Housing

A Nation-wide drive for "more low-cost housing for sale and rent in 1949" was started yesterday when national leaders of all groups who produce and finance homes and apartments met here.

The meeting, organized by the Housing and Home Finance Agency, is the forerunner of other meetings to be held in all cities of more than 10,000 population. Federal housing authorities will take part in these local meetings.

Officials of the following organizations participated in yesterday's meeting: The American Institute of Architects, the Producers' Council, United States Chamber of Commerce, American Federation of Labor, Prefabricated Home Manufacturers' Institute, National Association of Home Builders, National Association of Real Estate Boards, the Conference of Mayors, National Association of Housing Manufacturers, American Bankers' Association, The Prudential Life Insurance Co., National Savings and Loan League, United States Savings and Loan League, Irving Trust Co., Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, New York Life Insurance Co., National Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, Associated General Contractors, and the following Government agencies:

Housing and Home Finance Agency, Home Loan Bank, Public Housing Administration, Federal Housing Administration, Veterans Administration, Department of Commerce and Labor Department.

'Crusade' Set By Conference On Civil Rights

Some 600 delegates to a legislative conference of the Civil Rights Congress here yesterday called for dismissal of indictments against Communist leaders, abolition of the Un-American Activities Committee and repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Meeting all day in Laborers' Hall, 523 New Jersey ave. nw., the group made plans for a "Freedom Crusade" today in which about 4000 supporters from various States are expected to ask their Congressmen to "undo the crimes of the hated Eightieth Congress," as one of their resolutions said.

The avowed aim of the "crusade," to see that civil rights "election promises are kept," will be carried out by "orderly" demonstrations and talks with Congressmen, according to George Marshall, chairman of the CRC board of directors, and Thomas Buchanan, jr., executive secretary of the District CRC.

The resolution on the trial in New York of 12 Communist leaders charged with advocating the overthrow of the Government by violence was voted after denunciations by a panel including Representative Vito Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) and Paul Robeson, noted Negro singer.

Education Fellowships Proposed by Conant

Hatch Given Confirmation As U. S. Judge

The Senate confirmed yesterday the appointment of former Senator Carl A. Hatch (D., N. Mex.) to be the Federal district judge for New Mexico.

Confirmation was by a unanimous vote.

The nomination, sent to the Senate last Thursday by President Truman, had been approved by the committee earlier today. It was called up in the Senate under a suspension of the rules, which otherwise would have caused it to lay over for one day.

Author of the so-called "Clean Politics Act" which bears his name and which restricts political activity by Federal employes, Hatch was Senator from New Mexico for 15 years. He ended his last term on January 3.

Praised by Both Parties

He succeeds Federal Judge Colin Neblett, who retired last year.

Senators of both parties paid tribute to Hatch.

Meanwhile, President Truman yesterday asked the Senate to approve his appointment of Maurice J. Tobin as Secretary of Labor.

In a message, Mr. Truman also asked confirmation of recess appointments of Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of Selective Service; Oswald Ryan as member of the Civil Aeronautics Board; Preston Delano as Comptroller of the Currency, and Thomas C. Buchanan as a member of the Federal Power Commission.

Other Appointments Sought

Other confirmations asked:

Ralph Wright of New York, to be Assistant Secretary of Labor.

Harry Alfred Curtis of Missouri, to be a member of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

George McGill of Kansas, reappointment to the Tariff Commission.

John Monroe Johnson of South Carolina, reappointment to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Rear Admiral David H. Clark, U. S. Navy, to be chief of the Bureau of Ships in the Department of the Navy, for a term of two years.

James M. Mitchell of Illinois reappointed to be a Civil Service Commissioner.

David J. Coddaire of Massachusetts to be a member of the United States Maritime Commission.

John M. Houston of Kansas, reappointment to the National Labor Relations Board.

Contempt Action Is Deferred

Richmond, Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—Threatened contempt proceedings in the Surry County schools equalization case were deferred for at least a month today but an attorney representing Negro school patrons said, 'We've reached the end of our patience."

The agreement to defer contempt action was reached at a conference of Federal District Judge Sterling Hutcheson and attorneys for the school board and the Negro patrons. In the interim counsel for the school board is to file a second report on steps it has taken to eliminate discrimination in the county school system.

If the second report doesn't satisfy counsel for the school patrons they intend to ask Judge Hutcheson to cite the school board for contempt of court.

Adequate Report Demanded

"We've done about all of this leaning over backward business that we're going to do," said W. Hale Thompson of Newport News, an attorney for the patrons, at the conclusion of the closed conference.

"We have gone to the board's lawyers and tried and tried to cooperate with them, but have gotten nowhere. "We've reached the end of our patience. Either they file an adequate report, or we will ask that they be held in contempt of court."

An adequate report, Thompson said, would be one showing that the judge's order against inequalities in white and Negro schools had been followed.

The first report on progress toward equalization was filed in District Court here on September 15. In that report the board held that it had provided substantially equal facilities in every field possible—and was still continuing its efforts.

Attorneys for the Negro patrons failed to agree with the report and formally took exceptions—in 13 instances—to the board's report.

Exceptions Are Listed

Thompson said he assumed the judge asked for the second report to see if the board has continued its efforts toward equalization and to bring him up to date on the situation in Surry.

A. W. E. Bassette, jr., associated with Thompson in the case, said that exceptions taken to the first report claiming substantial equalization included:

No equalization of library facilities.

Surry County Training School, provided for Negroes, was not accredited "pursuant to the order of the court."

Neither laboratory equipment nor science courses of any kind were being provided for the Negro pupils but were provided for white pupils.

Corning Asks Eckington School Closing

The Eckington Elementary School, 1st st. and Quincy pl. ne., will be closed and the pupils transferred to other schools in the neighborhood under a proposal made yesterday to the Board of Education by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning.

The school head said that enrollment in the eight-room elementary building has dropped to the point that continued operation of the school is no longer justified.

One hundred and seventy-one pupils will be transferred to the Emery School, located three blocks away at Lincoln rd. and S sts. ne., and 10 pupils to the Seaton School, 2d and I sts. nw.

Corning presented his proposal to the board's committee on buildings and grounds which voted approval.

If the full board approves at its meeting Wednesday, the tranfer will become effective January 30. Corning said that the building will be boarded up and held for future use.

The committee also recommended to the board that the S. J. Bowen School, 3d and K sts. sw., be turned into a temporary storage center. Corning said that since completion of the Randall Junior High School addition, the Bowen, which served as an annex, no longer is needed.

In another committee action yesterday, board members authorized Dr. Corning to prepare legislation for Congress setting up central cafeteria administration and purchasing with any program of feeding children extended to elementary grades.

For Stricken Wife

Realtors Plan To Find Place For Iron Lung

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 17 (U.P.).—The Milwaukee Board of Realtors went to the aid today of a young accountant who was told by a landlord he could not bring an iron lung into an apartment for his stricken wife.

John J. Roache, secretary of the board, said he was confident that 'landlords would be happy to have the couple if they have room, lung and all."

The accountant, William Leahigh, 24, said Landlord William L. Schumaker told him "no lung" when he sought to bring his wife from the hospital to the apartment of her mother, Mrs. C. C. O'Brien.

Betty Leahigh, 22, was stricken with infantile paralysis in 1946, four months after the couple was married.

Leahigh, who has been living in a room since then, said doctors told him his wife could leave County General Hospital if she had an iron lung to use at night.

He made the arrangements but Schumaker said no.

"You wouldn't want an apartment under which you lived turned into a hospital, would you?" Schumaker was quoted as saying. "It can't be helped. They will have to find a more suitable place to take the girl."

Schumaker's attorney said "It's all just a misunderstanding."

Interstate Post Asked For Coolidge's Widow

President Truman yesterday was asked to name Mrs. Grace Coolidge, widow of the late President, to a Republican vacancy on the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Representative Thomas J. Lane (D., Mass.) said in a statement that her appointment "would serve to carry out the pledge of the Democratic Party to give women a greater share in the conduct of Government."

One on the Aisle—

An Honest Study Of Derangement

By Richard L. Coe

SUPERB PERFORMANCES, masterful writing and cogent direction make "The Snake Pit," at the Palace, an excellent and powerful film. This is not, perhaps, a picture for the squeamish, but it is one every lover of fine work should see.

The Mary Jane Ward novel has been adapted to the screen by Frank Partos and Millen Brand, who have woven an entirely credible story into the Ward adventures. Anatole Litvak's direction has give it a relentlessly real and moving tone. And in the central role, Olivia de Havilland is proving that, given the chance, a screen actress can etch a character of uncompromising honesty.

The subject, as you must know, is mental derangement. We watch the heroine fighting her way back to the world of clear thinking in an atmosphere terrifyingly real. That the setting and the woman's cure can be both horrifyingly painful and at the same time credible is indeed a tribute to an awakening screen.

For honesty is the keynote of the film's effectiveness. This modern Bedlam is no lurid figment of a writer's or a camera's tricks. It exists. It comes to life in a bare institution, pitifully understaffed and frankly unequal to the charges it bears. As one watches the heroine shifted from ward to ward, depending on the fluctuations of her condition, one meets the pathetic husks of humanity whose senses have been unhinged by incidents that seem trivial, incidents that have brought them to this brink of limbo.

Essential Reality

Mrs. Cunningham, played by Miss de Havilland, has grown to fear and hate her husband. Under the care of an overworked but patient doctor, she gradually comes to realize, from her past, why she does not wish to be possessed by any man and how she always blamed her father's loss on herself.

What makes this different from the plush, leather-couch films which have skirted the problem in the past is that "The Snake Pit" is nearly all centered on the woman's adventures in the asylum. Barred windows, strait-jackets, locked doors, drab rooms, institutional lineups are the camera's constant study.

Through the wards one encounters all sorts of people for whome life has proved too much. The sardonic humor some may find in these pitiable people is not ignored, but generally Director Litvak has avoided such grotesqueries.

Miss De Havilland Memorable

Miss de Havilland, as I have said, is exactly right as Mrs. Cunningham, allowing from time to time, the dawning consciousness of sanity to filter through her mask of shocked confusion. It is a memorable performance.

Leo Genn's understanding doctor is finely sensitive and you rejoice that the script has the horse sense not to turn toward a triangular cliche. Helen Craig, as a nurse who finally becomes a patient, Beulah Bondi, Queenie Smith, Lee Patrick, Ruth Donnelly, and Betsy Blair are some of the outstanding "case histories" and Mark Stevens is able as the husband.

In writing, acting and direction, "The Snake Pit" is a film in which Hollywood can take pride.

OPENING-SHOW catchers have a tricky week ahead of them . . . Aside from this morning's opening at the Palace, "Words and Music" moves down the street to the Columbia . . . Tomorrow brings "Johnny Loves Mary" into the Warner and "Sergeant York" back to the Metropolitan, as well as the arrival at Keith's of Ingrid Bergman in "Joan of Arc." . . . The Capitol sticks to its customary Thursday opening, bringing in "That Wonderful Urge," with Tyrone Power and Gene Tierney Sibly Bowan and Hal Leroy, headlining on stage.

MIDNIGHT-SHOW catchers, too, have a juicy inaugural week. . . . The Capitol, for instance, is tossing a late show tonight and a super-late one tomorrow, when Jane Powell will have six appearances on her busy schedule . . . Both "Louisiana Story," at the Playhouse, and "The Red Shoes," at the Dupont, are having late features Wednesday through Saturday; ditto "Enchantment," at the Trans-Lux . . . Others probably will announce similar efforts in due course; better watch the ads.

"CLIFT GATE," by Dorothy L. Williams, and "The Duchess Says Her Prayers," by Mary Cass Canfield, two one-act plays, will be presented by the D. C. Recreation Department dramatic guild in Banneker Junior High auditorium, Georgia ave. and Euclid st., Friday night at 8:15.

Two Indicted After $1500 Gaming Loss

A dice game in which a player lost $1500 resulted yesterday in a grand jury indictment of two men, charged with grand larceny by trick.

Indicted in District Court were Paul L. Lowe, 30, of 403 50th st. ne., and Levi Dublin, 50, 1446 V st. nw. The alleged victim was James R. DuPree, 34, of 1437 Montana ave. ne.

DuPree complained to police after he lost the money. According to the complaint, DuPree had been acquainted with Lowe for several years, and went with him to Dublin's basement room.

DuPree said that Dublin offered to play poker, but DuPree declined with the comment, "You shuffle cards too slick to me." Later he agreed to a dice game.

Police said the game played was known as "lemon dice," in which the player rolls the dice so deftly he generally makes his point, having practiced on special tablecloths.

In another case, Melvin M. Curry, 28, of 4800 Bass pl. se., was indicted on a charge of receiving $447.50 knowingly stolen from the Camden Tavern in a burglary. According to police, Curry accepted the money and took $76 to keep it for the burglars.

A Public Building Administration guard was charged with stealing property valued at $695. He was employed at the Munitions Building July 30, when a typewriter, an adding machine and a movie camera were taken. Police said they found the property in a Virginia pawn shop and traced it back to Johnson.

James M. Tonker, 44, of 701 6th st. nw., was charged with committing unnatural acts on a 6-year-old girl and a 7-year-old girl.

Charged with rape was Orlando Alston, 30, of 1141 Abbey pl. ne. The victim was described as a 23-year-old waitress with whom he was acquainted.

Rape Attempt Charged In Fairfax Indictment

James W. Campbell, 39, escaped prisoner who was once convicted of attempted rape, was indicted yesterday by a Fairfax County grand jury charged with attempting to rape a county woman Friday night.

Campbell, who was indicted with 16 others at the opening of the January term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court, pleaded innocent and was held without bond for trial January 25.

Police said Campbell, who allegedly tried to rape a 39-year-old woman after both got off a bus at Tremont Gardens, near Falls Church, about 9:30 p. m., is also wanted for escaping from the State prison farm in Powhatan County, Va.

Also indicted were six soldiers, five of whom pleaded guilty, on the charge of robbing a taxi driver of his cab, watch and $16 last July. Those pleading guilty were Rcts. Arthur J. Mansur, 22, and Michael C. Vurchio, 19, both of Co. B 3d Regiment, Fort Myer; Walter M. Barnett, Joseph E. Taunitas and Paul J. Catney, ages and addresses undetermined. Their cases were referred to the probation officer for report March 8. The sixth man indicted, Rct. Richard E. Corkin, has not been captured.

First of 80 New Policewomen

The Washington Post

MOTHER OF THREE—Mrs. Harriett Odum, 29, of 5402 3d st. nw., exhibits revolver and badge after being sworn in yesterday as the first of 80 uniformed policewomen who will be added to the Metropolitan Police Department here to serve as assistant station clerks. She is the wife of Leonard Odum, an assistant engineer at Central High School. They have three children, Mary, 11; Leonard, jr., 9, and Frances, 18 months. Until yesterday, Mrs. Odum never had been in a police station and she still has to fire a pistol for the first time. She has started a three-month training course with 25 men "rookies"

Power Crisis In Northwest Eases Some

Portland, Oreg., Jan. 17 (AP).—Housewives apparently obeyed an appeal today to postpone the Monday washing, and eased the critical power shortage of the Pacific Northwest.

That—along with warmer weather and the restoration of an ice-damaged power plant—gave power officials hope that they would get through with no power breakdown.

The Columbia River stream flow at Bonneville, sharply cut by the cold weather, increased about 2000 cubic feet per second today.

Bonneville's power output was still dangerously low: 345,000 kilowatts today, compared to 37,000 last Monday and a normal of 565,000.

But officials said the public's cooperation in reducing use of electricity was—so far—balancing the power drop.

Group Named to Advise On Transport in War

A general committee and five task groups to provide advice and information on the Nation's domestic transport system for use in mobilization planning was announced yesterday.

Capt. Granville Conway, director of the National Security Resources Board's office of transport and storage, said similar committees are being formed to provide guidance on ocean shipping and air transport.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, will act as the general chairman of the committee on domestic transportation and storage.

Man Plunges to Death

Cedar Grove, N. J., Jan. 17 (U.P.) Harry Dieterle, a 32-year-old engineer despondent because of illness, plunged from a 200-foot steel tower into high tension wires today and was killed by 32,000 volts of electricity.

Mother Shoots Self in Heart At Arlington

An Arlington mother finished making sandwiches for her family's lunches yesterday morning, then shot herself in the heart with a .38 revolver.

She was Mrs. Grace Hensley, found about 7 a. m. at the foot of the basement steps of her home at 1911 N. Randolph st., Arlington, with the revolver lying nearby. County Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn issued a certificate of suicide.

One of her two sons, Clarence J. Hensley, jr., said his mother had seemed in good spirits yesterday morning as she prepared the sandwiches and the family breakfast.

He said she was dressed to go to her job as a typist with the Veterans' Administration. Then her son Clarence, in another part of the house, heard "a noise," investigated, and found his mother's body at the foot of the steps.

He summoned his father, a guard at the Pentagon Building, who was in front of the house starting his car. They called police.

Young Hensley said his mother had complained of "severe headaches" for several weeks, and had been "run down" and in poor health for more than a year.

He said funeral services will be held probably Wednesday in Newton, W. Va., with burial there. Mrs. Hensley also is survived by another son, Herbert, 19.

District Woman Found Hanged on Closet Door

Mrs. Louise P. Lee, 78, was found hanged by a length of cord from a closet door at about 9 a. m. yesterday in her home at 2223 12th st. nw.

The body was found by Carrie E. Pierry, 83, who lived with her. Mrs. Lee was taken to Gallinger Hospital where she was pronounced dead at 9:40 a. m.

Police said the woman had been suffering from hardening of the arteries and had been under medical care. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Davis, W. Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—One of two children missing in the wooded mountains near here since last Tuesday was found dead last night.

He was identified by his father as Robert Carr, 7, youngest of three boys who became lost while walking from this mountain community to the Carr home.

Eston Carr, 9, older brother of the youngster found dead at 6:30 last evening, is still missing and volunteer parties numbering more than 100 were continuing their grim search in the rain today.

A third lad, John Helmick, 16, was found yesterday huddled under a laurel bush—alive, but in a grave condition, about five miles from the Carr home.

The little Carr boy's body was found on an abandoned lumber tramroad about three miles from the spot where Helmick was located. Searchers said he apparently had died only about two hours before he was found. They reported he appeared to have dropped dead from exhaustion.

Businessman Faces Charge Of Abortion

Police yesterday charged Lawrence A. Shaw, 50, of 1615 Franklin st. ne., with performing an abortion on a 26-year-old Government clerk last Thursday.

Shaw, who police said operates a rat and pest extermination business in Mount Rainier, Md., was released in $1000 bond and ordered to appear in Municipal Court today.

Police said the girl, who is unmarried, told them she learned about Shaw through friends, and that she paid him $200 for an abortion which was performed last Thursday in an apartment at 1530 Rhode Island ave. ne.

According to police, the apartment is occupied by a woman employe of Shaw.

Police said the girl became very ill on Saturday and went to a private physician who found that the abortion was incomplete and advised the girl to go to Gallinger Hospital.

She was admitted to Gallinger and hospital authorities called in police. Detectives said she named Shaw when questioned.

Shaw was contacted by telephone and asked to appear yesterday at police headquarters where he was charged. He denied any connection with the case and his employe denied her apartment was used as the scene of an abortion.

Social Reforms Near, Daniels Tells Bankers

By S. Oliver Goodman

"The American Way" is not merely the preservation of old and familiar methods in a complacent country, Washington bankers were cautioned last night.

Daniels

Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina editor, told them at a midwinter meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association in the Mayflower, that "the surprise of November" means the people want social reforms and are "willing to entrust Government with new social responsibilities without fear of the totalitarian exercise of them."

By this time, he added, after 16 or 17 years and after five elections, "it ought to be clear that both the New Deal and the Truman program are not the plans of Presidents but the directions of America. The New Deal preceded and survived Franklin Roosevelt . . . "

Daniels, editor of the Raleigh News and Observer and an adviser to the President during the election campaign, concluded:

"Basically, the Truman Program presented in the Truman speeches is the renewed and native expression of the American's now firmly fixed faith that his government's function is to help him have the security and decency of which his country is capable . . . Actually it is the design for democracy in an age in which men more and more realize that political freedoms must be accompanied by social and economic assurances . . . "

Another speaker was Frank A. Southard, jr., associate director of the Federal Reserve System's research and statistics division. Ralph Endicott, chairman of the association's commercial trade activities committee, gave his annual report.

Robert H. Lacey, association head, presided and introduced notable guests. Among them were Leon Chatelain, jr., president of the Washington Board of Trade; Lowry N. Coe, president of the District of Columbia Bar Association; Edward L. McAleer, president of the D. C. Building and Loan League; Charles F. Suter, president of the D. C. Life Underwriters Association; Bernard J. Nees, president of the Washington Stock Exchange; J. O. Brott, assistant general counsel of the American Bankers Association, and others.

APPOINTMENT: Walton L. Sanderson will be general convention chairman for the June meeting of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, President Robert H. Lacey announced last night. As such, Sanderson is in line for presidency of the association in 1951-52. Sanderson, cashier of the Hamilton National Bank, is a native of Washington. He graduated from Eastern High School, holds a standard certificate from the American Institute of Banking and attended the Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University. He entered the banking field in 1922 as a runner with the old Federal National Bank and joined Hamilton National in 1933 when the latter took over the successor to Federal National. He became assistant cashier in 1936 and was elevated to his present position in 1943.

Sanderson

NEW DIRECTOR: Charles A. McKenney, jr., vice president of the National Publishing Co. of Washington, has been elected a director of Mergenthaler Linotype Co. William J. Flather, jr., was reelected board chairman and Martin M. Reed, president. John W. Reid, formerly assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, was elected treasurer. He succeeds George A. Schwaninger, who has reached retirement age. Carl A. Hergrueter was elected assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Robert T. Norman, manager of the Washington office of Stein Bros. & Boyce, was elected a member of the Washington Stock Exchange . . . Cecil D. Kaufmann, president of Kay Associates of Washington, was reelected chairman of the Jewelry Industry Council at annual meeting in New York . . . Lucius W. Fitch, son of the founder, has been named president of F. W. Fitch Co. . . . M. W. Reed, war authority on armor plate, has been named vice president in charge of engineering for the U. S. Steel Corp. of Delaware.

RATE STEADY: Top news in the Government bond market was the Treasury announcement that a new 1¼ per cent one-year certificate would be offered to holders of a certificate issue of $2,188,813,000 maturing February 1 and bearing a 1⅛ per cent coupon. The 1¼ per cent interest on the new issue was taken to mean that the monetary authorities are satisfied with the present short-term rate.

ODD LOTS: The RFC reported that insured or guaranteed mortgages totaling $38,581,000 were purchased in December by the Federal National Mortgage Association, raising the total held by the association to $199,295,000 . . . American steel mills, operating at 100.1 per cent of capacity, are expected to produce a record 1,845,400 tons this week . . . The Young-Quinlan Co. store in Minneapolis has been purchased by Maurice L. Rothschild & Co. . . . International Shoe Co. reported net income of $13,820,197 for fiscal year ended November 30, equal to 04.06 a share, against $4.11 a share in previous 12 months.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Jan. 17 (AP).—With all lard contracts moving to new seasonal lows, all commodities on the Board of Trade had a distinctly weak appearance today.

The drop in lard carried all deliveries except September below the $15.00 mark at one time. Loose lard was offered in the spot market at $13.00 100 pounds, a new low since March, 1946, when the OPA had a ceiling of $12.80 on this commodity.

Lard's weakness was tied in with a continuing slump in fats and oils. Crude cottonseed oil, crude soybean oil, crude corn oil, crude peanut oil and crude cocoanut oil lost ¼ to ½ cent a pound. Fancy tallow sold at 9 cents a pound in the East, only ½ cent above the old OPA ceiling.

Wheat closed 1⅛ to 1¾ lower, corn was ⅜ to ⅝ lower, oats were ⅛ to 1¼ lower, rye was 1¼ lower, soybeans were ¾ to 1½ lower, and lard was 17 to 27 cents 100 pounds lower.

Whiting Protests 'Over-Regulation' Of Liquor Ads

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—F. E. M. Whiting, president of Licensed Beverage Industries, complained today of Federal and State restrictions on liquor advertising.

Whiting said liquor advertising is hedged about with so many restrictions that a distiller planning a Nation-wide campaign would have to prepare 33 versions of a single newspaper ad to comply with all the laws involved.

Researchers have described Federal and State curbs as "legal idiocy." Whiting told a meeting of the advertising post of the American Legion.

Distillers, he said, "will continue to do everything in their power to keep their advertising on a high, ethical plane."

Hearings Ordered For Transamerica

The Federal Reserve Board refused yesterday to dismiss its anti-trust charges against the Transamerica Corp. and ordered public hearings in the case to begin January 27.

The board turned down a series of motions by the West Coast bank holding company, including one to disqualify board members Marriner S. Eccles and Lawrence Clayton from taking part in the case.

A board statement said Clayton did not join with the other five board members in considering the motions filed by Transamerica, which is the Nation's biggest bank holding company.

The board has accused Transamerica of builing up a credit monopoly in five Western States through ownership of stock in some 600 banks.

NLRB Power In Interstate Cases Upheld

The Supreme Court yesterday said States cannot assume jurisdiction in interstate labor relations where the National Labor Relations Board has authority but has not formally employed its power.

In a unanimous opinion, written by Justice Douglas, the court overturned a ruling by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, which had certified an independent union as collective bargaining agent at the La Crosse (Wis.) Telephone Corp.

The high court decision follows its line of reasoning in earlier cases, and the Supreme Court said this situation is not changed by the Taft-Hartley Act.

Absence of a formal NLRB order in instances where the NLRB has not waived jurisdiction, and the presence of a State board certification under a different theory of representation, can be as "readily disruptive" as if "the orders of the two boards made a head-on collision," said Justice Douglas.

In the case at issue, according to the Justice Department, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local B-953 (AFL), was recognized in 1941 as bargaining agent for the telephone firm, with the "approval" of the NLRB regional director.

No formal action was ever made by the NLRB. In 1946 the Telephone Guild of Wisconsin (now Division 23 of the Independent Communications Workers of America) applied to the NLRB for a collective bargaining election to challenge the position of the AFL.

Before the NLRB could act, the guild withdrew its petition, filed a petition with the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board, and in an election on January 14, 1947, the guild was chosen as bargaining unit for the plant and traffic employes by vote of 91 against, 14 for the AFL union, said the guild.

This certification was set aside by a Circuit Court, but the Wisconsin Supreme Court upheld the election.

The company and the AFL union both appealed this decision, and the Justice Department joined in on behalf of the NLRB. They said inasmuch as the firm was engaged in interstate commerce and the NLRB had not waived jurisdiction, as it may in some cases under the Taft-Hartley Act, and since the NLRB had acted in other telephone cases, NLRB authority still prevailed.

The high court agreed with this contention.

In another labor action yesterday, the high court agreed to hear another challenge of constitutionality of the non-Communist oath required under the Taft-Hartley Act if unions wish to use NLRB facilities.

The new challenge was made by the United Steelworkers of America (CIO), and the Supreme Court will hear this case after it has heard arguments on a similar contention by the American Communications Association (CIO).

Buying Slump Drops Prices Of Fats, Oils

New York, Jan. 17 (AP).—A slowdown in foreign buying and hand-to-mouth purchasing at home is bringing down the prices of oils and fats.

Oversupply plays a large part in the price softening too, trade sources said today. There have been bumper crops of such commodities as cotton and soybeans from which oils come and there have been big recent increases in the supply of lard fats.

Some market observers add the high prices of many fats and oils were not warranted to start with.

Foreign buying has slowed down and at home purchasing has been on pretty much a hand-to-mouth basis, especially by the large soap manufacturers.

Low Since 1946

Latest of the declines came today at Chicago, where loose lard sold at $13 a hundred pounds, a low since 1946 and 5 cents under the last OPA ceiling.

The 1946 low was $12.80, OPA price before ceilings were boosted, and the price spurted to $39 after ceilings were removed.

At New York, tallow and grease prices took a tumble of one half cent a pound today, to within one eighth of a cent of old OPA levels.

Vegetable Oils Off

Vegetable oils were off one quarter to one half a cent a pound.

One market observer said levels of some products have been so high they were bound to drop under their own weight.

An example of the price fluctuations in the prices of some of the oil producing commodities is found in copra. The price of copra moved up to $330 a ton last year; the most recent traded price was $185 a ton, and before the war it was around $55.

Bandit Makes $2300 Haul

An armed bandit stole $300 in cash and several diamond rings worth approximately $2000 in a mid-afternoon robbery yesterday of the S. Franks Jewelry Co., 1104 14th st. nw.

The loot, police said, was stolen at 3 p. m., by a short, light-complexioned, sandy-haired man wearing a rough tweed topcoat.

Owner Samuel Franks, 37, of 6000 13th st., nw., said he was alone in the store when the bandit walked in and declared he had four diamonds to sell.

The thief pulled out a gun, cleaned out the cash register, seized Frank's' wallet, grabbed "several" diamonds from the safe and fled, Franks reported. He was in the store almost five minutes, police were told.

The bandit also removed a diamond ring which Franks was wearing.

The jewlery store was held up two years ago, but Franks told police the robberies were pulled by different men.

Franks said the bandit warned him that there was an accomplice outside and not to phone police.

6 Quakers Get 18 Months for Draft Evasion

Ottumwa, Iowa, Jan. 17 (AP).—Six students of Penn College at Oskaloosa, Iowa., were sentenced in Federal District Court here today to 18 months each in Federal prison on draft evasion charges. A seventh pleaded innocent.

All seven were charged with failure to register for the peacetime draft. Judge Charles A. Dewey pronounced sentence.

The six, who changed earlier pleas of innocent to guilty, are Herbert S. Standing, 22; Leland R. Standing, 21, Herbert's brother; David S. Wyman, Russell A. Henderson, David E. Jensen and Harvey L. Marshall. The youth who pleaded innocent is H. Hoover.

The youths, all of whom are Quakers, said they refused to register because of their religious beliefs.

Steel Operator Gets 6 Years

Pittsburgh, Jan. 17 (AP).—Leon E. Rush, alias Leon Rusiewicz, 42, of Brackenridge, Pa., today was sentenced to six years in the workhouse after he pleaded guilty to three charges of fraudulent conversion in connection with "gray market" steel operation.

Rush admitted taking checks for steel he did not deliver. He was charged with obtaining $4700 from Mohawk Metal Products Co. of Frankford, N. Y., $2500 from Norquist Products Co., Jamestown, N. Y., and $2800 from Lustron Corp. of Columbus, Ohio.

Complaints against Rush were filed by other companies also, bringing the total he allegedly accepted to $27,000.

Md. Aircraft Plants Expect FullWork Year

Baltimore, Jan. 17 (AP).—Maryland's two aircraft plants gave assurances today they would stay as busy as they were last year—and perhaps busier.

The Glenn L. Martin Co. here said its work force would remain between 10,000 and 11,000 to work on 94 million dollars' worth of unfilled orders.

The Fairchild plant at Hagerstown said it would increase its present force of 4000 somewhat to complete unfilled orders amounting to about 80 million dollars.

Officials of the large Celanese Corp. plant at Cumberland also said they anticipated little change in the over-all production picture during 1949.

Waltham Trustees To Meet With RFC

Boston, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—The three court-appointed trustees of the Waltham Watch Co. said today they will meet in Washington tomorrow with the full board of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. concerning a nine million dollars loan to keep alive the Nation's oldest watch-making firm.

Trustees C. Keefe Hurley, Daniel P. J. Lyne and Jacob J. Kaplan said plans for reorganization of the now idle company will be discussed. Deadline for submission of their plan to the United States District Court in Boston is February 7, but court approval before February 7 is necessary, they said, because of the "urgent need" to keep intact the company's 2300-man work force.

Hurley said he had conferred at New York Saturday with the president of the Elgin and Hamilton Watch companies and that both promised cooperation in the reorganization of the Waltham company.

Woman M. P. Seeks New Thrifty Law

Glasgow, Jan. 17 (AP).—Mrs. Jean Mann, happily married Scotswoman and a labor member of Parliament, wants Parliament to pass a law forcing husbands to keep hands off any money their wives save from the housekeeping allowance.

Furthermore, she said today, she wants the law to aid this thrifty project by forcing husbands to hand over a "reasonable share" of their earnings.

At present, Mrs. Mann said, a husband legally can take his wife's household savings—and frequently does if the marriage breaks up.

Mrs. Mann's invalid husband and her five children, she says, are all backing her.

Skipper Disciplined in Crash

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 17 (AP).—Suspension of the master's license of Capt. Edward H. Eaton, skipper of the steamer District of Columbia, damaged in a collision, was ordered today by a Coast Guard examiner.

The examiner's opinion held that Eaton failed to navigate at a reasonable speed after leaving the Old Point Comfort pier in a fog on October 31, and that this resulted in the Norfolk-Washington Line steamer sideswiping an anchored tanker.

One passenger was killed and three others were injured as the wooden vessel ground 75 feet of its starboard side on the tanker's bow.

Although the suspension was ordered for 12 months, Eaton can get his "papers" back on July 17.

His expert handling of the vessel immediately prior to the collision and exemplary record as a merchant officer, resulted in half the sentence being suspended provided no other misconduct is proved during a two-year period thereafter.

The examiner found the District of Columbia heard the fog bell of the mist-shrouded tanker in sufficient time to avoid the collision, if her engines had been put into full reverse.

Eaton said he would not appeal the case. With the Norfolk & Washington Line now undergoing a dissolution voted by its stockholders December 31, Eaton said he would devote his time to family duties and two businesses in which he has an interest.

Squabble Over Players May Hamper Pros Peace

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE GATES ARE open again for baseball's Hall of Fame and before the winter is done at least a couple of more guys will own whatever immortality goes with a plaque and a bust in the shrine at Cooperstown, N. Y.

POVICH

The Baseball Writers Association of America, 200-odd baseball reporters in the 12 major league cities, comprise the Hall of Fame's electoral college, but no candidate with a mere majority will make it. If none is approved by 75 per cent of the writers' votes after two ballots, none is elected.

But there are at least two likely names on the list of eligibles—Mel Ott and Hank Greenberg. This is the first year in which they have been eligible, under the voting rules limiting the list to men whose playing days are over.

Ott and Greenberg ought to make it on the first ballot. Their contributions to the game and the place they enjoyed in it label that pair outstanding. Their claims to the distinction emphasize again the popular appeal of home run prowess. They both led their leagues in homers.

OTT GETS A QUICK vote from this bureau. His story in baseball may be a familiar one but none the less sensational. He came out of the Louisiana bayous as a 16-year-old kid who got a tryout with the Giants at New Orleans, never played a game of minor league ball, and finished up as a player, 21 seasons later, who was second only to Babe Ruth in the total of major league home runs hit.

Records fell to Ott in profusion. He led the National League in total homers, most runs scored, runs batted in and most extra base hits. On 49 different days he hit two homers in a single game. He tied the record for five home runs in one World Series (1933 against Washington), made four All-Star teams, played in 150 or more games for 10 consecutive seasons and for most of his career was the smallest man on his ball club.

And important, too, perhaps, is the fact that Ottie was always a nice guy, which will be a factor in the voting because baseball writers are influenced that way. Election to the Hall of Fame couldn't happen to a finer person and if it does happen the fame of Ottie, at 40, will be pretty complete.

GREENBERG RATES it, to. He was a transcendant performer during his 12 seasons with the Tigers, with a grist of records to his credit. Only Jimmy Foxx, among the other right-handed hitters in American League history, ever swatted as many homers, 58, in a single season. No other hitter of any style ever slugged two or more homers in 11 different games during a single season. Four times he led the league in runs batted in.

There are other facets to the Greenberg success story, however. His example is a model of perseverance and grit. He came to the Tigers as a clumsy kid in 1930, trobuled by ailing feet that pained him at every step, but bounced back from the minors to beat out all opposition at first base and blossom as the most dangerous right-handed hitter in the league.

Greenberg was the first important big leaguer to be drafted into the Army before Pearl Harbor. He rose from buck private to captain after service overseas. He came out of the Army just in time to hit a home run with the bases full on the last day of the season at St. Louis to clinch the 1946 penant for the Tigers. Hank, too, is a nice guy.

EVERY WRITER IS entitled to 10 nominees for the Hall of Fame. Somewhere high on my list will be Dizzy Dean, and Harry Heilmann and Al Simmons. Goose Goslin, Bill Dickey, Buddy Myer, Chuck Klein and Tony Lazzeri. Thus far the only Washington player to make Cooperstown has been the late Walter Johnson. But in Goslin and Myer the Nats have a couple of powerful candidates.

Goslin led the American League in hitting in his time, and after being cut free by the Nats in 1934 was a potent guy in the Tigers' pennant triumph of the next year. He'll be remembered for a generation in Detroit as the guy who whacked the winning World Series hit against the Cubs in Briggs Stadium.

Buddy Myer may not have been the fanciest of the second basemen but he was a beaut. He has a valid claim to Hall of Fame distinction with his lifetime batting average of more than .300. And he's one of the few batting champions who can also boast of having led the league in stolen bases. Both Myer and Goslin get solid votes here.

Skins, Cards Want Cherry; He Prefers Texas Job

Blair Cherry, head football coach at the University of Texas, late last night spiked reports that he was a strong possibility for the 1949 coaching job with the Washington Redskins.

Cherry told a Dallas, Tex., newspaperman that he "did not intend to resign, indicating he would accept a raise in salary and a new, longer-term contract and stay in Texas."

"It would take a lot to make me leave Texas," Cherry had told The Washington Post earlier last night, "and I do not know how really interetsed the Redskins are in me."

The Redskin offer, according to the Associated Press, was one of two Cherry had under consideration. The other is from the Chicago Cardinals, who recently lost Jimmy Conzelman as head coach.

These offers, it was said, were the main cause of a series of meetings called last night by University of Texas authorities to straighten out the Longhorn athletic situation.

Turk Edwards, former Redskin coach who is now a club executive, admitted the 'Skins have talked with Cherry about a coaching job.

"We made no definite offer to Cherry," Edwards said. "I talked to him by phone and our chief scout, Herman Ball, talked to him at the San Francisco coaches meeting. The matter was left in Cherry's hands. He was to think everything out and let us know whether he was available."

Cherry teaches the T-formation, which would fit him nicely into the Redskin future plans. Cherry's Texans defeated Georgia, 41-28, in the Orange Bowl last New Year's Day.

Frank Leahy Reported Giving Up Directorship

Meanwhile, from Binghamton, N. Y., came an AP report that another Redskins' coaching prospect, Frank Leahy of Notre Dame, is stepping down as the Irish athletic director to devote his full time to coaching.

Charles Peet, Binghamton Press sports editor, said he had been told by Edward (Moose) Krause, Notre Dame basketball coach, that the change would be announced in two weeks. Krause himself, according to the report, would succeed Leahy as athletic director.

Peet quoted Krause as saying Leahy would continue as football mentor "as long as he likes."

Krause now is assistant athletic director as well as basketball coach.

Krause said Leahy was retiring as athletic director because he found the burden of both positions too heavy.

"It's too much to be football coach and director of athletics," Peet quoted Krause as saying. "Like all coaches, Leahy is a great worrier. Before every game he is so nervous and jumpy he says 'This is the last game for me, I'm going to quit.'"

Marshall Says He'll Demand Thompson if Loops Merge

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A brand-new hurdle in the path toward peace in professional football was uncovered yesterday in an interview with George Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins.

Marshall was asked what would happen to Center Tommy Thompson, 1948 star of William and Mary College, if the National Football League admitted the All-America Conference's Cleveland and San Francisco clubs. Thompson, a Redskin draftee, was recently signed to a Cleveland contract.

"If Thompson plays in the National League, "Marshall said, "he will play with the Redskins. I have gone on record in the league office on that score."

Marshall would make no explanation for his stand, nor would he give a reason for it, but its implications were plain.

Draft Rights Trouble

Either National League draft rights would be honored above those of the A. A. C., or there would be no chance of a merger of the leagues during their annual meetings in Chicago this week. A unanimous vote of club owners is necessary in the N. F. L. to change the number of team members. Marshall's dissenting vote, if Thompson isn't made available to the Redskins, would kill the merger even though owners agreed on every other issue.

The question of Baltimore's entry into the reorganized N. F. L., of course, was still unanswered. As the thirteenth, and odd, club in the new set-up, the Colts' demand for inclusion has been opposed by most of the N. F. L. owners. Marshall at one time was called leader of the opposition, but the 'Skin boss is veering toward the Colt side more and more.

On the Colts' Side

After a weekend meeting with Colt officials, Marshall yesterday said this in their favor:

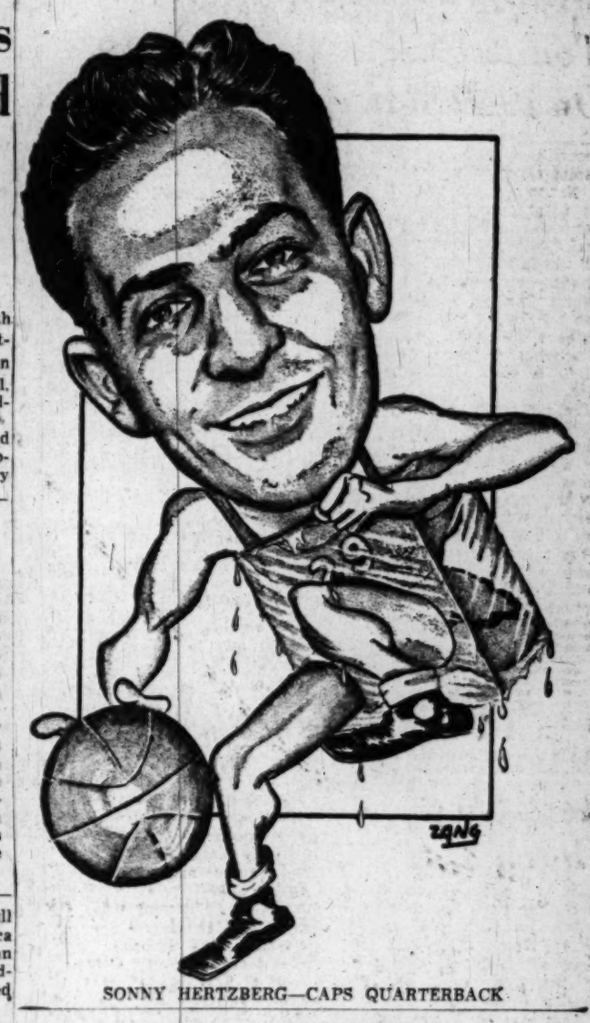
"Baltimore is probably a better team to have in the National Football League than either Cleveland or San Francisco. The Colts lost less money than Cleveland in 1948, and Baltimore's a lot closer to other National League teams than San Francisco."

The squabble over W. and M.'s Thompson will be only one of many of the same sort. Then, if it is finally agreed that two members of the younger circuit will join the N. F. L., one of numerous problems will be that of splitting up the approximately 210 players of six defunct A. A. C. clubs left jobless by the merger.

AAC Holds Secret Meeting Today

Chicago, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—The All-American football conference will go into secret caucus tomorrow, a day before the opening of its regular winter meeting, and probably will lay the groundwork for a peace pact in pro football.

Conference Publicity Director Joe Petritz announced the secret session and said "there will be no announcement from it." The regular meeting opens Wednesday and the announced agenda failed to include any provisions for a peace conference with the rival national football league.



SONNY HERTZBERG—CAPS QUARTERBACK

He's a Deep Freeze Specialist

Sonny Hertzberg Is Man Caps Call on in Tough Moment

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Stout heart, cool head and cold feet—that's Sonny Hertzberg of the Washington Caps.

He's demonstrated the first two qualities time and time again, none better than last Saturday in Washington's 75-73 triumph over the New York Knicks, his old team.

You can excuse him for having cold feet because there's an ice skating rink under the Uline Arena basketball court.

Sonny is one of the deadliest set shots in a business replete with dead-eye Dicks, yet his name isn't among the leading scorers.

Sonny is not a scorer, not primarily anyway. He's a floor man, a basketball quarterback if you please, and one of the best.

He's the guy who can and does restore order to where confusion is taking place. Take the Caps' Saturday thriller against the Knicks, for example.

Sonny played most of the game, but only whipped in two points—Washington's margin over New York.

But it wasn't the two points that Sonny made that brought the Caps their victory. It was his court savvy and great clutch play instead that foiled the New Yorkers.

Sonny re-entered the game when there were 45 seconds to play, Washington leading, 73-72, and in possession of the ball. Possession meant the ball game. The Caps knew it and they looked for Sonny to give the ball to. It's harder to get the ball away from him than it is to enter Fort Knox.

Sonny whirled down court, dribbling a mile a minute. He dribbled toward the basket, then cut back toward center

Hoya Frosh Coach Quits

Mac Cara, who came to Georgetown as freshman football and basketball coach last year, yesterday resigned to become football and coach at Mississippi State.

Cara's resignation coincided with the return of Hoya Head Coach Jack Hagerty from San Francisco where he interviewed prospects for two other vacancies on the Georgetown football staff.

Mush Dubofsky quit as line coach and Mike Palm, who joined the Hoyas only last year, also resigned Hagerty reported he's still screening prospects and that no action would be taken until next week.

At Mississippi State, Cara will serve under Slick Morton, who recently resigned at VMI to accept the Mississippi head coaching berth. Cara, 34, was an all-Southern end at N. C. State in 1937 and also captained the team that year.

Roundup:

VMI Names Tom Nugent Grid Coach

Lexington, Va., Jan. 17 (A.P.).—Tom Ungent, one of the "iron men" of the 1934 team at Ithaca College, Ithaca, N. Y., tonight was named head football coach at Virginia Military Institute.

For the last two years, Nugent has been head football coach and director of athletics at Hopewell, Va., high school. Nugent succeeds Arthur (Slick) Morton, who resigned December 31 to accept the position of head football coach at Mississippi State College at Starkville, Miss.

Frank L. Summers, athletic director at VMI, said Nugent would come to Lexington Friday to assume his new duties.

UCLA Board Meets.

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (A.P.).—UCLA's athletic board met today without discussing the employment of a successor to Bert LaBrucherie, football coach who resigned under pressure after the 1948 season.

Wilber Johns, athletic director at UCLA, said it would be a week or 10 days before LaBrucherie's replacement is named.

Paul Zimmerman, sports editor of the Los Angeles Times, said H. R. (Red) Sanders, Vanderbilt's athletic director, topped the list of those remaining "on the basis of qualifications."

Snavely Denies Nebraska Talks

Greensboro, N. C., Jan. 17 (U.P.) North Carolina Fotball Coach Carl Snavely today denied he has discussed a coaching position at the University of Nebraska.

It was reported in Omaha that Snavely was considering an offer from Nebraska. The Tarheel mentor said he hadn't talked with school officials on the subject "and that doesn't mean I've discussed it unofficially, either."

American Again Beats Jackets, 58-44

For the second time this season American University basketers romped over Randolph-Macon in a Mason-Dixon Conference game last night, this time hanging up a 58-44 triumph before the usual large gathering at A. U. gym.

Again it was Leroy Ishman, the Eagles' scoring ace, who led the pointmaking with 24 points. The effort, assisting in A. U.'s fifth straight league victory, brought Ishman's season total to 138 points.

American's eighth victory in 11 games this season came as the result of a hot streak in the second half. The Eagles were boasting a mere 28-22 halftime edge on the team they'd walloped, 59-43, in an earlier meeting.

Capable assistance to Ishman in the scoring department was provided by Bob Lamon, with 14 points. The losers' high man, Center George Whitcomb, wound up with 11 points.

In a priliminary the American junior varsity whipped Randolph-Macon juniors, 59-39.

Ike Williams Beats Bratton

Philadelphia, Jan. 17 (A.P.).—Lightweight Champion Ike Williams came back to the ring wars tonight after a two-month layoff to win a smashing 10-round non-title decision over clever and plucky Johnny Bratton of Chicago at the Arena. Both fighters weighed 138.

Williams showed no signs of favoring the hand he broke against Billy Nixon here in November.

St. Louis Trips Knicks, 79-71

New York, Jan. 17 (A.P.)—Little Belus Smawley's tricky jump shots, good for 26 points, paced the St. Louis Bombers to a 79-to-71 victory over the New York Knickerbockers tonight.

A small Madison Square Garden crowd of 5184 saw St. Louis record its second Basketball Association of America victory over the Knickerbockers in three meetings.

After trailing at halftime, 39-32, the Bombers, led by Smawley and Ariel Maughan, stormed back to take a 57-50 third quarter lead.

Hoyas Upset by Lafayette Rally in Second Half, 56-48

Easton, Pa., Jan. 17.—Lafayette continued its role of giant-killer tonight by defeating a highly favored Georgetown five, 56 to 48, before a crowd of 2500 here.

Picked by experts to lose by eight points, the Maroon passers won by that margin as they came back in the second half to outplay the Hoyas.

Lafayette was on the short end of a 23-21 score at half time and Georgetown increased its lead to 37-28 after 5 minutes of the second half when the Maroon opened its attack.

Two field goals by Barry Love and another Jack Fox in 2 minutes turned the 3-point margin in Lafayette's favor and the Maroon increased this advantage to 48-39 with 5 minutes to go.

Two long shots by Dick Falvey and another by Jack Fox in 2 minutes turned the 3-point margin in the last two minutes, Duane Warrick and Bo Bailey came through with field goals to clinch the result.

For Georgetown, John Brown and Captain Ray Corley excelled. Brown was high scorer of the game with 15 points and Corley caged 6 field goals for 12.

Referee Flicked On Nose

Allen Ducks Haymaker Thrown by St. Louis Official

Lawrence, Kans., Jan. 17 (A.P.). Dr. F. C. Allen, University of Kansas basketball coach, said today he "ducked a wild haymaker" tossed by a referee after a Jayhawk cager "flicked the official on the nose with his fingers" during the K. U.-Washington game at St. Louis Saturday.

In a statement, Allen gave his version of the incident which occurred as the two schools resumed basketball after a 21-year layoff. The Jayhawkers won the game, 46-41.

"This highly regrettable incident came about in a most unusual way," Allen said. "Clinton (Buddy) Bull, who had replaced Harold England for us, tossed the ball about 20 feet to Referee Eddie Davidson, a St. Louis official.

"Apparently Referee Davidson shifted his eyes off the ball as he circled around one of the contesting players and the ball accidentally struck him flush in the face.

"Apparently Referee Davidson erroneously supposed the ball was thrown from our bench, for he charged to the Kansas bench, making certain remarks to me that were not distinguishable.

"I stood up from the bench so that I could better understand his statements. He was protesting, and while he stood there so doing, Sonny Enns (a Kansas reserve), who was standing next to me, flicked Referee Davidson on the nose with his fingers.

"Apparently Referee Davidson thought I was the guilty individual because he unloosed a wild right haymaker in the direction of my head.

"I shifted to one side, allowing the blow to pass on . . .

As soon as hostilities started 15 officers responded hastily to break up the thing as quickly as it had started."

'I Meant to Hit Allen,' Says Referee

St. Louis, Jan. 17 (A.P.).—Eddie Davidson, when informed tonight of Dr. F. C. (Phog) Allen's version of the stormy finish to Saturday's Kansas-Washington basketball game here, called it a "bald-faced lie."

The diminutive lawyer-official laughingly termed it "quite a story."

"It couldn't have been the game ball (which hit him)," Davidson said, "as Allen says it was. For it was as I strode over to the bench to call a technical foul and to warn Allen and Trainer Dean Nesmith to keep quiet that I was hit in the mouth. I make no bones about it. I meant to hit Allen."

Loyola Basketball Coach Resigning

New Orleans, Jan. 17 (U.P.).—Jack Orsley, basketball coach and athletic director at Loyola University of New Orleans, will resign at the end of the current basketball season, it was learned today.

Orsley, a graduate of Illinois University in 1928, where he was a star hardwood artist, reportedly is considering "several attractive offers." He reportedly has talked with officials at Mississippi State College and the University of Mississippi.

Celtics Send Halbert, Riebe To Providence for Nostrand

Boston, Jan. 17 (A.P.).—Six-foot-six George Nostrand joined the Boston Celtics team of the Basketball Association of America today in a player trade which took him from Providence and sent Chuck Halbert and Mel Riebe to the Rhode Island team.

Nostrand, 25, formerly played with Cleveland and Toronto.

Riebe came to Boston last year from the defunct Cleveland team and Halbert was obtained in a trade last year which sent Ed Sadowski to Philadelphia.

Baer Jury Picked

Freehold, N. J., Jan. 17 (U.P.). A jury of 12, plus two alternates, was picked today to hear a $150,000 damage suit brought by former heavyweight fighter Jacob (Buddy) Baer for injuries Baer said he suffered in an automobile accident seven years ago.

Baer, who fought and lost two heavyweight championship bouts against Joe Louis, is suing Wilma Wilkins of Little Silver, N. J. Baer charges he suffered injuries in a collision between the Wilkins' car and an automobile in which he was

Indians in Movies

Cleveland, Jan. 16 (A.P.).—President Bill Veeck and his World Champion Cleveland Indians will play prominent roles in a feature-length movie to be produced by an independent Hollywood producer.

Tentatively entitled, "The Cleveland Story," and scheduled for release sometime next summer, the documentary film is said to follow the general pattern of "Boys Town," which was based on the institution founded by the late Father Flanagan.

According to present plans, "The Cleveland Story" will have Veeck and a number of the Indians, including Manager Lou Boudreau and Pitchers Bob Feller and Gene Bearoden taking part in a movement to decrease juvenile delinquency.

Assault May Run

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 17 (A.P.).—Assoult, the King Ranch's great thoroughbred, may race again.

The Columbia Record said today it had word from Trainer Max Hirsch that he was putting Assault back into training and hoped to start him at a New York track next summer.

"He never looked better—in fact, he never looked as good," Hirsch reported in a telephone interview from the King Ranch in Texas.

Assault was retired to stud last year after popping an osselet in the 1948 Widener Handicap, when he was matched against Armed.

Irish Have 10 Tough Ones On 1949 Slate

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 17 (U.P.)—Despite reports that teams about the Nation were getting afraid to play them, Notre Dame's fightin' Irish came up today with their usual Coast-to-Coast suicide football schedule for 1949—a 10 game bill without a breather on it.

North Carolina appears on the Irish schedule for the first time. Southern Methodist returns after an absence of seven years and Tulane is back after a one-year lapse.

The game with Navy will be at Baltimore, Leahy said in announcing that the Irish schedule would be complete with the 10 games.

Notre Dame, which has an impressive record of 377 wins, 77 defeats and 30 ties for the 60 years it has played football, will open against another Hoosier team, Indiana University at South Bend September 24.

Following is the complete schedule:
September 24, Indiana at South Bend.
October 1, Washington at Seattle; 8, Purdue at Lafayette; 15, Tulane at South Bend; 22, open; 29, Navy at Baltimore.
November 5, Michigan State at Lansing; 12, North Carolina at New York; 19, Iowa at South Bend; 26, Southern California at South Bend.
December 3, Southern Methodist at Dallas.

Hertzberg Clutch Star

court as precious seconds ticked away. He stood near mid-court for a few more vital seconds and the Knicks fouled him. Very coolly and calmly he strolled up to the free throw line and swished in his shot.

That gave the Knicks possession of the ball. They trailed by two points with 32 seconds to go now. Quickly, they brought the ball downcourt and fed it to their great set-shot star, Sid Tanenbaum.

The ball and Hertzberg arrived at the same time. Pushing was called on Sony, but that was what he wanted—he didn't want Tanenbaum to have a chance for a field goal. Pro rules prohibit taking the ball out of bounds on a foul, so Tanenbaum dropped in his free throw, bringing the Cap lead down to one point, 74-13. But the Caps also regained possession of the ball.

An errant pass and the Knick's Carl Braun got the ball. Hertzberg covered him like a blanket, but in his desre to handcuff Braun, Hertzberg fouled him. Braun missed the shot that would have tied the game and the Caps recovered.

There were only six seconds to go now and once again Hertzberg had the ball, this time in back-court. Sonny dribbled only once this time before he was fouled. Once more he dunked in his shot. Now there were two seconds to go and the Knicks trailed by two. Just at the gun, Braun tried a long, long shot, but the ball hit the rafters and the game was over.

Over on the New York bench, Knick Coach Joe Lapchick was muttering unprintables about himself. And you couldn't blame the old Celtic star too much because it was he who released Hertzberg two seasons ago.

"He's a little guy, only 6 feet, as pros go," Cap Coach Red Auerbach says, "but Hertzberg is the original deep freeze man. Gosh, I'm happy the Knicks released him."

Brundige Will Address Father-Son Banquet

Bill Brundige, sports director of WOL-Mutual in Washington, and Harvey L. Miller, chairman of the District Boxing Commission, will be the principal speakers at the annual Father-Son banquet at Trinity Episcopal Church Friday night at 6:30 o'clock.

Master of ceremonies will be Roland Jones, president of the club. Movies of the 1948 World Series will be shown.

Winner Pays $4.90, Buzfuz 4th

Hialeah, Fla., Jan. 17 (AP).—Delegate today captured the Hialeah Inaugural Handicap for the second year in a row as the Florida turf scene shifted to the "Big Apple" for a 40-day session which got off to a flying start.

A $4.90-for-$2 favorite in the field of nine speed titans, Herbert M. Woolf's Flyer got up right at the end of the 6-furlong journey to earn a photo triumph over Gustave Ring's lightly weighted Kitchen Police. W. J. Walden's Circus Clown was third, three lengths away.

Mose Rauzin's Buzfuz, sharing topweight of 122 pounds with the victor and a close second in Delegate's 1948 Inaugural score, finished another length and a half away in fourth place. He was second choice.

An estimated 20,000 fans were on hand for the sunny opening and Delegate was the fourth victorious choice of the afternoon. He earned $8575 of the $10,000 added affair, which grossed $12,300.

The winner was teletimed in 1:10 4-5, one second slower than his performance of a year ago. The track mark is 1:09 3-5.

The '48 opening, which came on a chilly, cloudy Friday, drew only 15,581 fans. Wagering today also was running ahead of a year ago, something of a surprise. After the first six races this afternoon, a total of $732,901 had been bet, against $676,327 for the same number of events at last season's inaugural.

Navy Coaching Staff Meets Bullis Squad

The Navy coaching staff was on hand last night to take a look at some of its future players as 29 members of the Bullis Prep football squad dreceived letters at the school's annual banquet at the Touchdown Club.

Coach George Sauer, retiring Athletic Derictor Capt. Tom Hamilton and the new director, Capt. Howard Caldwell spoke and pictures of this year's Army-Navy game were shown. From the squad of 29, the Naval Academy will get 22 prospective Middie football candidates.

Savoldi, Al Galento Win Tag Match

Angelo Savoldi and Al (Spider) Galento won the Australian tag match featuring last night's wrestling display at Uline Arena, with George Becker and Red Schwartz the losers in two straight falls. Preliminaries went to Tarzan Frank Hewitt over Olaf Erickson and Paddy Mack over Red Kirkpatrick, and there was a draw between Abe Stein and The Great Mafisto.

Wilson Teachers Win

After eight straight losses, Wilson Teachers College came up with a basketball victory last night, downing Towson Teachers, 69-60, at Eastern High's gym.

Trusting Justice Enters Duke Hospital

Kentucky Game Out for Terps

If Charlie Justice isn't the best football player aound, he's certainly the most trusting. The North Carolina All-America halfback has entered the hospital of arch-rival Duke for a checkup and possible operation next week. . . . Six of the 14 schools warned for purity code violations by the NCAA last week were Virginia colleges. And one of them, VPI, didn't win one football game last fall. . . . That Kentucky game, Maryland hoped to add to its 1949 football schedule went by the boards yesterday. Claiming he wanted an easier game for his Wildcats, Kentucky Coach Bear Bryant scheduled The Citadel instead. . . . Frank Leahy will be principal speaker at the Norfolk Sports Club banquet tonight, but principal attraction for the eight Southern Conference coaches who'll also be there will be 500 all-State, all-county, all-star Virginia high school football players who have it made up their minds which school to attend. . . .

There's still a lot of fight left in Welterweght Aaron Perry, 22, of Washington, it seems. He was arrested last Thursday and charged with beating up Edwin S. Newman, 38-year-old insurance company executive in the latter's office. Perry is free on $600 bond pending trial February 7 . . . And Ken Overlin, who made Washington his home when he was world's middleweight champ a few years ago, was also in the news recently. Ken tossed a brick through the window of a downtown after-hours club and whacked one man over the head with his fists. He forfeited $300 collateral and paid over $200 for a new window for his one-night stand . . . North Carolina's football forces won't feel altogether lost when they play Notre Dame way up nawth in Yankee Stadium next fall. Twelve of the Tar Heel's returning lettermen are from north of the line themselves . . .

Perry Has Legal Fight on Hands

Art (Pappy) Lewis, who resigned as head coach at Washington and Lee U. to become an assistant coach at Mississippi State, turned down an assistant coach's job at Notre Dame to become head coach at Washington and Lee . . . Lewis' resignation prompted Fullback Brian Bell, formerly of Western High, to berate him publicly for his action. Bell is sports editor of the school's paper . . . If Coolidge High School's basketball team makes good one fifth of its free throws in its next game it will show a marked improvement. The Colts missed 17 out of 20 against Central last week and the week before dunked in only 3 out of 19 free throws . . . The apearance of Gorgeous George at Turners' Arena Wednesday bids fair to set an indoor record for attendance at a wrestling match in Washington. There have been almost as many demands for tickets for George's appearance as there has been for th inaugural gala the same night at the Armory.

Gives Up Year of Eligibility

Mel Patton, World's Fastest Human, Will Quit Track

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP).—Sprinter Mel Patton, Olympic champion and holder of the unofficial world 100-yard dash record, said today he will not run during his final year of eligibility at the Unversity of Southern California.

The announcement was made by the university. Pell-Mell, in the middle of his final examination schedule, could not be reached for comment.

Patton said he made the decision because he has to support his wife, and 2-year-old daughter. He plans to continue his studies—he's due to graduate in June as a physical education major—but will take a part-time job afternoons instead of trotting cinder paths.

The "world's fastest human"—a title he won after cracking the world 100-yard mark in 9.3 seconds at Fresno last year—is going to work for his father-in-law, Ed Roos, head of the Allied Matrix Co., here. He'll start in sales work with an eye to learning the business.

Patton's latest triumphs, and most bitter defeat, were rung up at the Olympic games in London last summer.

Defeat in the race he had set his heart on winning—the 100-meter sprint, came first. Instead of winning in new record time as expected, he placed fifth behind Harrison Dillard and a field he had whipped before.

But he did score first in the 200 meters in 21.1 seconds and as anchor man in the 400-meter relay.

Three times in 1947 he ran the 100-yard dash in 9.4, equalling the world record shared by Frank Wykoff, Jesse Owens and Clyde Jeffrey; and three times reeled off the 220-yard dash in 20.4, missing by a fraction tying Owen's world record of 20.3 seconds.

His 9.3 mark set last year has been accepted as an American record but is yet to be approved by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Lions Play Reds Here Tonight

Although Forwards Dave Maguire and Chirp Brenchley will be back in harness, the Washington Lions will still be two forwards short of full strength when they take the ice against the Providence Reds tonight at Uline Arena.

Norm Burns and Dan Porteous are still hurting from injuries received in recent American Hockey League games. Porteous is resting a lame ankle. Burns, the wilest of the Lion puckhandlers and a steady hand all around, may be out for the season with a shoulder separation.

Providence, standing all alone at the top of the AHL's Eastern Division, is heavily favored to drub the locals who are currently engaged in a furious battle with the Philadelphia Rockets for possession of the same division's cellar.

But the Reds haven't been too sure of themselves since the last time they took on the Lions here. Frank Beisler's boys reared up and pushed their visitors all over the ice and only a last-minute surge gained Providence a 3-3 tie.

Terp Varsity Shooters Beat Frosh, 1410-1323

Maryland University's varsity rifle team defeated the freshmen 1410 to 1323 last night at the Maryland Rifle Range. Arthur Cook, Olympic smallbore champion, was high with a score of 286.

In other matches, National Capitol Rifle Club beat Kensington Rifle Club, 1407 to 1355, and the Pee Gee's Gun Club of Prince Georges County beat Greenbelt Gun Club, 1266 to 1235.

GW High Wins Rifle Match

George Washington High yesterday won its fifth rifle match in seven meets by defeating Waukegan Township High of Illinois, 913-896.

The match was held as a postal competition in which each team sends the other its score sheets, the shooting being done on the teams own grounds.

Bladensburg Boys Win

Bladensburg defeated Mount Rainier, 71-44, in a Prince Georges Boys Club game last night at Mount Rainier High School. Perry Johnson of the winners made 22 points.

St. John's, Central Top Highs Today

St. John's Prep and Central High, potential champions in their respective high school leagues, clash this afternoon at Central in one of the top games of a 22-game high basketball slate.

Led by their high-scoring natural, Jimmy Pantos, the Vikings have been touted as the class of this year's Interhigh League. St. John's is currently tied with unbeaten Gonzaga for the lead in the recently organized Metropolitan Catholic High School League.

Gonzaga, visting Hyattsville for a night game, heads a trio of highs, also playing today which boast records of nine straight wins.

The others are George Washington of Alexandria, which gives Mount Vernon its first taste of Virginia Class A competition at G. W. tonight, and Bethesda, which plays host to Coolidge this afternoon.

Patterson Park, Baltimore's high champion for the past two years, drops down to Eastern this afternoon to test the Ramblers, whose 2-0 Interhigh record has put them in a tie for the league lead.

Colts Whip Bell, 58-29

Using its first five for only half the game, Coolidge High easily gained its second Interhigh victory in three games yesterday over Bell, 58-29, in the Colts gym.

Resting up his heavy duty boys for today's big test against unbeaten Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Coach Julian Colangelo sent all his varsity Colts into the game along with four members of his junior varsity team.

Coolidge had no strain at all pulling away from the shorter Bell team and, by halftime, had built up a commanding 33-13 lead. Don Eslin, first string guard, was in the game long enough to score 13 points and lear the scoring.

Devitt Beats Chamberlain

Devitt Prep, propelled by Pete Haley's smooth pivot work under the basket, wiped away a 15-12 Chamberlain halftime lead to win a 40-27 basketball game yesterday at Kensington Armory. Haley's work, good for 14 points, led Devitt to its fifth win in eight starts.

Md. Delegates Vote Income Tax of 2%

By Roger B. Farquhar
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 17.—A bill providing for a 2 instead of a 2½ per cent earned income tax rate for Maryland was passed unanimously tonight by the House of Delegates.

The administration-sponsored measure was speeded to the Senate, where prompt passage was expected.

On January 1 the rate jumped automatically to 2½ per cent, but because of an estimate that Maryland will have a 25-million-dollar surplus by June 30, administration leaders proposed that the income rate be held at 2 per cent.

After the House passed the tax freeze, Majority Leader Leroy Pumphrey (D., Prince Georges) took the floor to say:

"I take pride in reminding you that the administration has redeemed its promise."

Pumphrey said he had told fellow Delegates two years ago, when they passed the sales tax, that if revenues exceeded estimates, "it was well within the realm of possibility" that the income tax increase would be repealed.

Routine marked tonight's sessions of both houses, with the Senate in session only a quarter of an hour to pass 19 bills and send them to the House. The House passed three other measures besides the income tax bill.

Among matters not settled was whether the Legislature would come back Friday to complete the week. That will be decided at Tuesday's sessions. The General Assembly will be in adjournment Thursday, which is Inauguration Day in Washington.

Among measures introduced tonight in the House of Delegates were bills to allow the State to care for its indigent veterans, including paying their funeral expenses, and to contribute $500 toward college education for war orphans.

One of these bills would set up a fund to be administered by the Maryland Veterans Commission.

Under its terms, veterans who are sick, disabled or indigent and without means to pay for necessities and proper care would receive aid.

The measure also authorizes a burial allowance of $100.

Under terms of the other bill, every Maryland war orphan would be eligible for $500 annually, after reaching the age of 18, to help finance education at a secondary school, college or university or to pursue vocational training.

Both the veterans and the war orphans measures were introduced by Delegate John F. McNulty (D., Anne Arundel), a veteran of both World Wars and a Naval captain in World War II.

Also introduced tonight was a bill which would make it unlawful to sell "any toy, plaything or object of furniture" decorated with a paint or other substance containing anything of a poisonous nature, unless it is clearly marked.

Conviction for the offense would carry a $5000 fine or a three-year jail sentence, or both.

Another bill scheduled for introduction in the House was one amending the State's manslaughter laws so that operators of motor boats would be included within the provisions.

On the Senate side, a bill authorizing appeals from Orphans Courts to County Circuit Courts, instead of the present practice of appealing to the Maryland Court of Appeals, also was expected to be dropped in the hopper during the night.

A variety of motor vehicles bills also were scheduled for introduction, one to change the signal for a right-hand turn and another to require an extra seat for a motor-scooter passenger.

A driver is now supposed to signal a right turn by waving his left hand in a circle. The new bill would have him extend his hand and arm upward for several seconds.

Meanwhile, still awaiting the signature of Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., is a Prince Georges County-sponsored measure which last week became the first to pass both houses in the current session. The bill, when signed, will increase the indebtedness ceiling for Prince Georges' special improvement districts from $800,000 to $1,200,000.

Tax Payment Averts Auction Of Apartment

Mayfair Gardens, 594-apartment Negro housing project here, yesterday paid its 1948 delinquent taxes, thus removing it from today's District tax sale.

Tax Collector Guy Pearson explained that the large development was listed among the 3100 other properties scheduled to go on the auction block, through a misunderstanding between District officials and the apartment owners over the amount of taxes due.

Owners of the project, located on the site of the old Benning race track, tendered $48,430.22 two months ago, but failed to stipulate whether it was a '48 or '49 tax payment, Pearson said. He said he did not receive an explanation for this check until yesterday when Albert L. Cassell, architect for the project, paid up $51,933.54, the amount actually due in 1948 taxes.

The development was begun in 1942 by Mayfair Gardens, Inc., on a mortgage underwritten by the Federal Housing Administration. Later, after a foreclosure sale, FHA obtained title and sold the property to Mayfair Mansions, Inc., subject to mortgages held by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and insured by the FHA.

Principal organizers of the new corporation are Cassell and Elder Lightfoot Michaux, evangelist, both of Washinghton.

Brailowsky Concert Has Few Rewards

By Paul Hume

It would be interesting to know when Alexander Brailowsky last learned a new piece of music.

His piano recital last night in Constitution Hall was drawn from works, the most recent of which was written over 30 years ago. Moths would have flown out of most of the music except that it is kept so busy by our leading pianists today that the little bugs never have time to get their work done.

Vivaldi, Scarlatti, Schumann, Chopin, Revel, and Liszt were the giants of creative music represented. Brailowsky has well disciplined technical resources, and a quiet tone of real beauty. But when he wants a large tone he falls back on the convenient device of beating the piano to a helpless pulp. At these thimes his tone also becomes thin. The results are far from pretty.

Last night's concert held few rewards. The Chopin group was made up of four of the most often heard pieces from the great Pole's pen. They held no new delights. The privilege of playing "rubato" or in fluctuating tempo is a gift pianists ought to use with respect. It has never been more abused than throughout last night's concert. It is most generally thought of in connection with Chopin. Brailowsky employed it equally flagrantly in Vivaldi, and Schumann, in fact in everything he played with the possible exception of the Scarlatti.

Audiences at piano recitals are generally composed of students and teachers of the instrument in addition to a public which truly loves the noble instrument. We hope those who are specializing in the art of playing the piano will emulate only Brailowsky's better moments in tone, touch, and technique. They should certainly find more enterprising program builders and stylists.

Review Ordered in Assault

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday directed the Municipal Court of Appeals here to reconsider the conviction of Johnnie F. Slaughter, 40, found guilty of assaulting a 2-year-old girl here and illegal entry into her house.

The Federal court said that investigation must be made to determine whether at the trial Slaughter was denied "effective assistance of counsel."

The Federal court said that at the trial, Attorney Thomas David entered an appearance for Slaughter, and although the record does not show he withdrew, supporting affidavits show that he asked for and received the courts permission to withdrew.

Then, it was said, Municipal Court Clerk Henry E. Rupp gave an affidavit stating that Attorney Albert F. Graham represented Slaughter. But Graham, in turn, signed an affidavit stating he was never Slaughter's counsel in this case.

Because of this confusion, the Federal court remanded the case. Slaughter is appealing from a 30-month jail sentence.

Federal Employes In Counties to Get Inaugural Holidays

HOLIDAY: In answer to many questions, Thursday and Friday will be holidays for Federal employes who work in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md., in Arlington and Fairfax Counties, Va., and Alexandria City, as well as those in this Capital City. That's all. Employes in Baltimore, Annapolis and other nearby cities must take annual leave to attend the Inaugural.

Several thousand employes, however, will be asked to work as usual on either one or both of those holidays. Executive branch employes who work on orders must be given holiday pay, or double time. Capitol Hill employes aren't eligible for holiday pay.

JAMES POLLOCK is writing a hot minority report on the Federal personnel recommendations of the Hoover Commission. He's a committee member and a political science instructor at the University of Michigan.

Pollock may be expected to insist that the bipartisan Civil Service Commission be abolished, and that the agency be operated by a single administrator. Also, that officials and supervisors be given wider authority to fire employes. He has plenty of sympathy for both proposals.

The team of GEORGE MOORE and FRED BELEN will continue to function for the House Civil Service Committee. Chairman Murray (D., Tenn.) has asked both men to stay and he's being applauded for it.

JOHN S. COOPER is reported to have rejected overtures that he be appointed to the GOP vacancy on the Federal Trade Commission or some other top spot. However, he has expressed a desire to take a temporary job in Germany with military government. He wants to return to Kentucky and run for the Senate again in 1950.

JOHN ALISON has been urged to postpone his resignation as Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Air until after the Civil Aeronautics Administration is reorganized.

DEAN ACHESON had been tipped off that several Senators were planning to quiz him about his rumored "chilly" relations with General MacArthur. He's all set for them if it ever happens. He'll merely read a cable of congratulations from MacArthur, which is most generous in its praise.

JAMES MITCHELL yesterday was nominated by the President to be the GOP member of the Civil Service Commission. He's now serving under a recess appointment. The Senate can be expected to confirm him without too much delay. Incidentally, the three commission members are paying courtesy calls on members of Congress who will handle Civil Service legislation.

COAST GUARD wants to revive its wartime SPARS. It has asked Congress to give it the authority to establish a women's reserve branch.

SENATOR WILEY (R., Wis.) has a resolution to authorize the Senate Armed Services Committee to make a complete study of further decentralization of Federal agencies here.

JOBS: Civil Service yesterday announced competitive tests for insurance supervisor in the Veterans' Administration here. The jobs pay from $4479 to $6235 to start. A geologist exam for jobs that pay $2974 to $3727 also is open. A third test is for medical X-ray technician, $2284 to $2498.

EXAMS: Civil Service soon will announce a test for physiologists to pay from $3727 to $10,305 . . . The Army Chemical Center at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland has an exam open for pharmacists to pay from $3727 to $4479 . . . An exam for public health nurse job in the Indian Bureau and Health Service will be announced soon. The jobs pay $3727 to $4479. Several openings in the District Health Department may be filled from the test. Another exam is open to fill substitute clerk and carrier jobs in the city postoffice. The pay for subs starts at $1.29 an hour.

FOOD AND DRUGS: Employes are speculating over what recommendations the Hoover Commission will make for Food and Drug. The problem has split two so-called task forces. For example: The report on medical services which was made to the Hoover group urged that Food and Drug be strengthened and be given semi-independent status in Federal Security. It wants virus control transferred from Public Health to Food and Drug.

But the task force report on agriculture would split up food and drug and the food activities would be transferred back to the Agriculture Department.

Democrats Approved For House Committee

Democratic members of the House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee, as approved in caucus yesterday, are:

Tom Murray (Tenn.), chairman; James H. Morrison (La.), George P. Miller (Calif.), James C. Davis (Ga.), John Bell Williams (Miss.), John A. Whitaker (Ky.), Thurman C. Crook (Ind.), Raymond W. Karst (Mo.), Homer Thornberry (Tex.), James V. Buckley (Ill.), F. Ertel Carlyle (N. C.), Eugene J. McCarthy (Minn.), A. S. Herlong, jr. (Fla.), Chester C. Gorski (N. Y.), George M. Rhodes (Pa.).

Farmer Shoots Wife to Death, Takes Own Life

Loudoun Couple's 2 Children Found Unharmed in Room With Their Bodies

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 17 (Spl.). A 38-year-old Loudoun County farmer shot and killed his 23-year-old wife early today, then committed suicide by turning the gun on himself.

Henry Spurlock and his wife, Ellen Pierce Spurlock, were found in their night clothes in the first-floor bedroom of their tenant home about 9:30 a. m. today.

Both had bullet wounds in their right temples and Spurlock was holding a .45 automatic pistol, Loudoun County Sheriff S. P. Alexander said.

There were several whisky bottles in the room, the sheriff reported. A chair was overturned and there was some evidence of a struggle.

Spurlock, a laborer on the farm of Leon Woolcott, 12 miles from Leesburg, and his wife were found by Woolcott who investigated when he saw no signs of activity about the place during the morning.

The Spurlocks' two children, a 4-month-old girl and a 2½-year-old girl, were in the room with the bodies but were unharmed.

The Spurlocks came to Loudoun County about four years ago from Abingdon, Va., and had recently moved to Woolcott's farm from Ashburn, Va., neighbors said. County Coroner W. P. Frazer issued a verdict of murder and suicide.

Woolcott, who said Spurlock had been on a drinking spree since January 7, found the bodies lying side by side on the floor of the room. Spurlock was clad only in shorts and his wife was in a dressing gown. The bed was unmade but had not been slept in, he said.

A fire in a stove had gone out in the room, he said, and the two babies were whimpering in a crib. Although the house contained five rooms and three stoves with plenty of wood and coal, the couple preferred to eat and sleep in one room, he said.

He took the two tiny blonde youngsters to his home and then called county police. The children were later taken by the county welfare board, which placed them temporarily with distant relatives.

County Coroner Frazer said Spurlock had been on several prior drinking bouts and had recently been treated by a local doctor for alcoholism.

From the position of the bodies, he said, he believed they had been standing when shot.

Robbed in Car

FBI Sifts Man's Story Of Kidnaping

The FBI is investigating the possible kidnaping of a man who said he picked up two sailors in Richmond, Va., Saturday and awakened here in his car beaten and robbed Sunday morning.

The man, who gave his name as William Bryant Bourne, of 7700 Sweetbriar r t., Richmond, said he couldn't remember anything from the time he picked up the sailors until about 6 a. m. Sunday when he woke up in his parked car on Maryland ave. ne.

He drove to Alexandria, where he has relatives, and on their advice reported the incident to the Virginia State police in Groveton. They, in turn, called in the FBI.

State police said Bourne's face had been scratched and that he had blood over his temple as though from a blow. They said he reported his loss as "only a few dollars." Bourne was not hospitalized, and returned to Richmond after questioning by FBI agents. State police reported his age as about 22 and said he was employed by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. in Richmond.

The FBI said it processed Bourne's car yesterday for fingerprints, and will question him again in Richmond today.

Budget Funds For Fluorine Gain Support

The Citizens Association of Chevy Chase last night indorsed a proposal that $56,000 in District funds be included in the District budget to provide fluorine treatment for teeth of school children.

Nearly 100 members attended last night's meeting at the Chevy Chase Community Center, Connecticut ave. and McKinley st. nw.

Watt to Again Head Interfederation Council

William G. Watt, delegate from the Arlington County Civic Federation, last night was reelected to his second term as president of the Interfederation Council, meeting at 503 D st. nw.

Others elected were Mrs. Franklin G. Sartwell, District of Columbia, first vice president; C. Stephen Duvall, Montgomery County, second vice president; Daniel M. Greene, Prince Georges County, third vice president; H. A. Ward, Fairfax County, fourth vice president, and Henry Austin, District of Columbia, secretary. All except Duvall and Ward were reelected.

Manager Legislation Delay Is Advocated

The Takoma Park Community League last night opposed introduction of legislation in the current Maryland General Assembly to provide a city manager for Takoma Park until the public is "more informed of the details of the proposed bill."

Councilman W. H. McClenon, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee, advocated legislation for a city manager because, he said, "there is a completely uncoordinated council under the present system."

Bloomingdale Unit Opposes Sales Tax

The Bloomingdale Civic Association, meeting at the Tabor Presbyterian Church, 2d and S sts. nw., last night, voted to oppose the proposed District sales tax.

Murray said his bill would make possible the shipment of grade A dried skim milk, and grade A frozen cream here, and the reconstituting of the products into milk for sale in Washington.

Murray said the present milk supply is pretty well confined to Maryland and Virginia. He stated that his bill could result in a reduction of the District price of milk.

Indecent Books To Be Banned In Greenbelt

Drafting of an ordinance making it "illegal to sell indecent literature" in Greenbelt, Md., was authorized last night by the Greenbelt town council.

A motion by Mayor Thomas J. Canning was approved which instructs Town Manager Charles T. McDonald to draw up the ordinance with the assistance of the town solicitor.

In presenting his motion, Mayor Canning deplored "availability" of "these sexy stories."

"They're advertised right out in public," he declared.

He told the council he was not referring to comic books alone but also novels. The mayor cited one novel which he said described the activities of the only man in the world after an atom explosion left him in a world of women.

Budget Action Ordered

"I think it is a peculiar situation where we spend thousands of dollars every year for the education of children and yet allow a situation where this stuff can be readily available to them," Mayor Canning asserted.

The town council instructed Manager McDonald to explain to the Public Housing Authority reasons which made its 1949 budget $183,000, some $23,000 higher than last year.

The action followed receipt of a letter from the PHA asking for the information and holding up approval of the town budget until it is received.

Other Action Taken

In other action, the manager was instructed to set up a conference with various Prince Georges County welfare officials with a view toward assigning a permanent social worker to Greenbelt.

McDonald told the council he presently is drafting an ordinance to create a Department of Public Welfare.

A resolution instructing McDonald to contact the PHA about the possibility of beautifying the approach to Greenbelt also was approved.

4 Stop Signs Placed Near Dupont Circle

As a result of complaints from citizens, the Department of Vehicles and Traffic yesterday placed stop signs at four intersections in the vicinity of Dupont Circle.

The signs were placed on R st. at 21st st. nw, on Q st. at 21st st., on 20th st. at N st. and on New Hampshire ave. at N st.

The complaints were that traffic conditions became hazardous when stop signs were taken down Thursday and not relocated when 21st st. became a one-way, southbound street after formerly being a northbound street.

Two persons were injured in a traffic accident Sunday night at 21st and R sts. and several minor accidents were reported by residents of the neighborhood.

In making their survey, traffic men found it was also necessary to make N st., which now carries one-way eastbound traffic, a through street at 20th st. and at New Hampshire ave.

Auto Victims Win $11,400 In Two Cases

Damages totaling $11,400 were awarded in District Court yesterday in two traffic accident cases.

Lane Paroles 23 Prisoners, 8 From Area

Twenty-three prisoners were paroled yesterday by Governor Lane of Maryland, including three convicted in the Rocway Towers gambling raid last June. Eight of those paroled were from the Washington area.

The parolees included Patrick J. Clark, 54, owner of Rocway Towers, the Washington-Baltimore boulevard casino near Laurel, which was raided by 30 State policemen last June 5 when 49 persons were arrested and $32,000 in cash, guns, and gaming equipment captured. Out of 21 persons brought to trial, 19 were sentenced to serve a year in jail on July 14.

The Governor also paroled Mike Moffet, 34, of 1220 Holbrook ter. ne., and William Downs, 34, of Silver Hill, Md., both also convicted in the Rocway Towers raid. Clark, Moffet and Downs each were sentenced last July to one-year terms in the House of Correction.

Of Clark's parole, the Governor said:

"The subject has been suffering from hypertension and has been under treatment for this at the present.

"He has no previous record. The director of parole and probation feels that he has received the maximum benefit from incarceration and recommends his release under supervision."

The report on Downs said the man has maintained he was employed at Rocway Towers as a carpenter and was not connected with the gambling going on there. He has a wife and children.

Others from the Washington area paroled by the Governor include: Herman Ellery Carter, 18, sentenced October, 1947, on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods; Robert Debolt, 19, a sailor attached to the Bethesda Medical Center, sentenced April, 1948, by Montgomery County Circuit Court for perverted sex practices; Mabel L. Dove, 22, sentenced in 1945 by Montgomery Circuit Court for manslaughter; Gladys H. Gordon, 19, sentenced for assault with intent to commit murder by the Montgomery Courts, and Jerome Nathaniel Johnson, 31, sentenced for larceny in October, 1947, from Prince Georges County.

Keleher to Face Grand Jury in Gambling Probe

Divorce Mixup

Annulment Suit Valid, Court Finds

A remarried person shouldn't be held a bigamist just because a Mexican "mail order" divorce, obtained in good faith, turns out to be illegal.

So ruled the United States Court of Appeals yesterday in favor of Mrs. Beulah Winola Anderson of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw. The court reversed a decision of Judge T. Alan Goldsborough of District Court, who threw out her annulment case after commenting that it was a "disgusting situation."

Mrs. Anderson married Ralph Faulkner in 1941. In January, 1945, acting on advice of counsel, she sent a letter to a Texas attorney. Without leaving Washington, she was sent a divorce decree from Chihauhua, Mexico, in 1945.

She then married Donald J. Anderson of Stamford, Conn. On attempting to get a divorce 13 months later, her new attorney told her the Mexican divorce from her first husband was no good.

Her suit for annulment was uncontested, and there was no evidence contravening Mrs. Anderson's testimony that she was acting in good faith when the Mexican decree was sought.

In reversing Judge Goldsborough, the Appeals Court, through Judge Bennett Champ Clark, said:

"If she was acting in good faith, the law would abhor a decree which would compel her unwillingly to remain in a state of bigamy. She was and is entitled to her annulment."

Subpena Issued Also for Estranged Wife of Alleged D. C. Bookmaker

John B. Keleher, alleged $30,000-a-month bookmaker, will be quizzed January 25 by the special grand jury investigating the gambling racket here, it was learned yesterday.

Also scheduled for the secret hearing is Keleher's wife, Anna.

Subpenas were issued Friday for the estranged pair, the same day the 50-year-old blackhaired wife lost her limited divorce suit in a decision by Judge Edward A. Tamm, who nevertheless granted her $100 a week maintenance.

During the divorce hearing, Mrs. Keleher testified her husband was operating a gaming establishment just over the District Line at 3205 Rhode Island ave. ne., Mount Rainier. Keleher denied this and also declined to say what his occupation was.

Keleher Files Suit

In another development yesterday Keleher filed in District Court an absolute divorce suit in which he accused Anna of desertion. This counters a new limited divorce suit for alleged cruelty Anna filed against him Saturday, saying the $100 a week award was wholly inadequate.

Keleher moved to dismiss the wife's new suit, terming it a contempt of court."

Judge Tamm awarded Mrs. Keleher's present lawyer, James J. Laughlin, a $2000 fee for his work in the unsuccessful suit. Roy St. Lewis, Mrs. Keleher's former lawyer, got $1500. This was done under a court rule requiring such payments by the husband in domestic litigation.

Laughlin had asked for $12,500 and St. Lewis for $5000.

No Indictments So Far

Keleher's attorney, Alvin L. Newmyer, insisted that the fees requested were exorbitant. Newmyer cited Keleher's testimony that he is now earning but $1200 a month from "investments."

The grand jury which subpenaed Keleher has been sitting intermittently here since last May. So far, although numerous witnesses, including policemen and known gamblers have been heard, no indictments have resulted.

Commented Attorney Newmyer: "What could they expect to learn from Keleher?"

The 67-year-old Keleher resides at the Hotel 2400. Mrs. Keleher lives at the Woodley Park Towers.

Clinics 'Feud' Poses Problem In Alexandria

A family feud over operational methods in the Alexandria Family Service Society was put up to the City Board of Health for disposition last night.

The alcoholic clinic wants to break away from the mental hygienic clinic of which it is a part, but cannot. As a result, the Rev. O. V. T. Chamberlain, one of the alcoholic clinic's founders, said it may have to cease operating at least in its present capacity by the end of this month.

Since the State does not recognize an alcoholic clinic as such, the clinic was forced to organize last summer as part of the mental hygienic clinic to receive State funds.

Personnel Problem Cited

The city gave both clinics space in the city health center, but the alcoholic clinic contends it has received full-time use of only one of the seven allotted rooms.

The chief difficulty, however, as stated last night at a meeting of the health board in the Alexandria Health Center, is that the alcoholic clinic is not allowed the type of personnel it wants and this appeared to be a conflict with the State rather than local officials.

Chamberlain said it is essential to the clinic's work to have on its staff a reformed alcoholic who understands the problems of persons treated.

Clinic Nurse Resigns

By special State dispensation the clinic has had a nurse who is a member of Alcoholics Anonymous. She has resigned, however, and the State has said it can only approve a psychiatric social worker for the job. Chamberlain said it would be extremely difficult to find a psychiatric social worker who can qualify as a member of Alcoholics Anonymous.

The problem came to the Health Board and will eventually go to the City Council, because city funds are involved. The city is holding up its $2500 appropriation to the Alcoholic Clinic until the problem is settled. The Health Board voted to meet again in a few days to draft a recommendation to the City Council.

Angle Parking In Hyattsville Area Restored

Hyattsville City Council last night restored 45-degree-angle parking in the Queen's Chapel Shopping Center, and revealed it had reached agreement with Washington Gas Light Co. to sell its Farragut st. building to the city.

Angular parking was restored after authorization by the State Roads Commission, which had been requested to approve the change by both the council and merchants, who claimed parallel parking caused business to drop 5 to 50 per cent.

The council ordered installation of 54 parking meters in the shopping center as soon as angular parking areas can be marked off.

The council order followed announcement that Newton Properties, Inc., which operates the center, will withdraw its pending request in Circuit Court for an injunction to restrain meter installation.

Nicholas Orem, city's attorney, said the Washington Gas Light Co. had agreed to sell its building to the city for $19,500. The city will use the building for municipal offices space and for its Magruder Memorial Library.

Music Will Beguile Bus Riders Feb. 10

Riders in 20 Capital Transit buses will be hearing soft music and slightly louder announcements by February 10, the company announced yesterday.

The "music as you ride" gadgets, which later will be installed in all streetcars and buses, will carry "tailor-made programs" of "soft melodic music," E. C. Giddings, vice president said at a press conference yesterday. The programs will be broadcast by WWDC-FM over its regular frequency.

Giddings said a rider during a 25-minute ride will hear 22 minutes of music, two minutes of newscasts, weather reports or time signals and about a minute of commercials.

The 6-decibel volume for the musical part of the program will be raised to 8 decibels when the announcements are on, Giddings stated.

The programs will be heard from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. Monday through Friday, and a. m. to 3 p. m. on Saturday.

The 20 buses to be wired for "music as you ride" next month will be on various lines and will be assigned different routes from day to day, the transit vice president said.

Horse Pulled From Mud

A white mare named "Flax" was slightly muddied and probably greatly relieved yesterday after her Arlington owner and a brace of helpers worked 2½ hours to pull her out of a marsh.

The horse sank to her shoulders in the bog apparently about noon yesterday on a dairy farm owned by George Reeves on Montague rd., near Wilson blvd. Reeves said her predicament was noted about 3:30 p. m.

He and his crew went to work with rope slings and other horses, Reeves said. At one point, they considered calling for a wrecking truck with a hoist, but finally completed the exodus be horse power.

Policeman Shoots Self

Police Pvt. Burtell M. Jefferson, 23, of the Ninth Precinct, was reported recovering yesterday at Casualty Hospital after accidentally shooting himself in the leg.

Police said Jefferson, who has been a probationary policemen since last September, and who lives at 27 I st. ne., was working the midnight to 8 a. m. shift yesterday.

When patroling his beat he had to walk through a dark alley, near 5th and Neal sts. ne., which was the scene of robbery Saturday night. He shifted his revolver from its holster to his overcoat pocket.

He was putting the weapon back in holster when it was discharged.

New Uniforms Issued

From here in, the new outfits will be the uniform-of-the-day for these 26 city employes.

Next week the four women will receive corresponding new outfits, with skirts, District Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan said.

Each man was issued a coat with a gold-braided "DC" on each lapel, two pairs of pants and six white shirts at a cost of $49 per outfit to the District government.

Arrest Puzzle Untangled

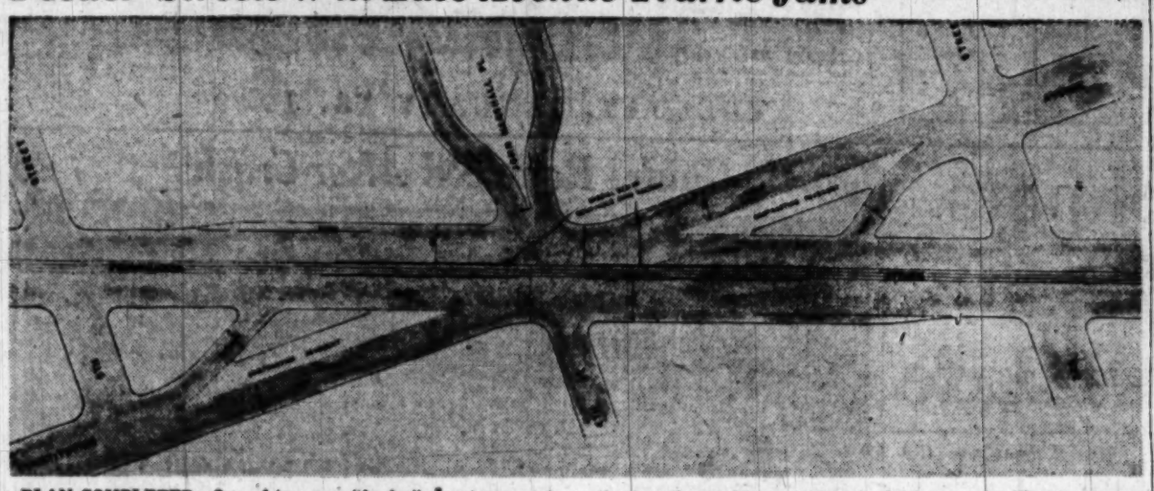
When screaming sirens finally brought Arthur Dendy's taxi to a halt—a mile or so after police got on his tail—officers were puzzled briefly by Dendy's explanation.

He told police he was rushing a passenger, "Mrs. Singer," to a hospital.

Maryland State Troopers W. R. Crist and J. P. Martinuk testified yesterday in Hyattsville police court that the trouble was the cab was passengerless. Dendy, 42, of 3410 Rhode Island ave., Mount Rainier, being its only occupant.

The result: Judge Allan Bowie fined Dendy a total of $215—$150 on charges of driving while drunk $50 for reckless driving; $10 for speeding, and $5 for passing a red light.

'Feeder' Streets Will Ease Avenue Traffic Jams



PLAN COMPLETED—One of two new "feeder" streets connecting Pensylvania and Constitution aves. to ease the traffic problem at their interesection will be constructed just west of 3d st., to carry eastbound traffic, as above map shows. The other will link the two thoroughfares just east of 6th st. and will carry westbound traffic into Constitution ave. Removable curbings, running in line with Constitution ave., will be placed at the intersection. They are being made movable to accommodate parades

Channelization Job Ordered To End Traffic Snarl at 4th

An estimated $45,000 channelization job to solve the traffic bottleneck at the intersection of Constitution and Pennsylvania aves., at 4th st. nw., was ordered last night by the District Commissioners.

The decision ended years of discussion over this thorny problem and meant the abandonment of two far more costly solutions.

One suggestion was an underpass under 4th st. in line with Pennsylvania ave., estimated to cost $4,500,000.

The other proposal was to curtail streetcar service on Pennsylvania ave. from Peace Monument at the foot of Capitol Hill to 7th st. nw.

The Public Utilities Commission concurred in the plan to go ahead with the new channelization solution, basing their decision on testimony from two public hearings in the past two years and numerous traffic studies.

In support of their decision, city officials said their plan involves only surface channelization features, including a new type of removable curbing, leaving the pavement clear for the passage of vehicles and parades.

The project will be started sometime this spring, S. R. Harrison, District supervisor of streets, said last night.

Under the plan, two new "feeder" streets connecting Pennsylvania and Constitution aves. will be constructed—one east of 6th st. and the other just west of 3d st.

Eastbound traffic moving on Constitution and Pennsylvania aves. will cross over to Constitution on the new connecting roadway near 3d st., instead of at the present 4th st. intersection.

Similarly, westbound traffic will cross over to Constitution on the new connecting roadway near 6th st. beyond the present intersection.

Blueprints also call for removable channelization curbings at the 4th st. intersection of the two avenues running in line with Constitution ave. They can be taken up to permit passage of Pennsylvania ave. parades and processions, it was explained.

The streetcar loading platforms at the hazardous 4th st. intersection also will be moved closer to 3d st. under the approval plan.

Harrinson said the plan, which calls for no rerouting of streetcars and generally the same flow of vehicular traffic, would be "a very satisfactory solution for at least 10 or 15 years." It, in effect, is "an elongation of the present intersection of the two main avenues," he said.

The Commissioners gave first signs of abandoning the 4½-million-dollar underpass solution at a public hearing last October on grounds that it was too expensive.

E. D. Merrill, Capital Transit Co. president, also has opposed the underpass idea, holding that it was "too inflexible" in governing traffic flow.

Carradale, Scotland, Jan. 17 (AP). Mrs. Flora Drummond, 70, once a leader of Britain's suffragettes, died last night.

Street Closing Plan Opposed By Legion Post

Fort Stevens Post, No. 32, American Legion, yesterday protested the proposed closing of Kennedy st. between the B. & O. Railroad tracks and Riggs rd. ne. on grounds it would deny a back exit from a lot owned by the post.

The protest was made at a District Building hearing, called to consider abandoning a number of short streets which for many years have been in the planning stage in the Chillum section of northeast Washington.

District Surveyor F. F. Healy wants to permanently give up the streets to permit better subdivision of the area because of topography and recent rezoning.

Emmett L. Sheehan, representing the legion post, said his group plans to build a clubhouse on a lot they own on Riggs rd. ne. He held that closing this portion of Kennedy st. would not only deny them a back exit but would reduce the value of the property.

C. M. Davidson, attorney for the YMCA, also appeared at the hearing to urge the Commissioners to alter the route of the proposed Potomac Boulevard where it would pass through the 4400 block of MacArthur blvd.

He said this project roadway would cut through property at 4470 MacArthur blvd. on which the YMCA plans to construct a $500,000 industrial arts school.

The city heads took under advisement all the suggested street changes.

Carnegie, Rosenstein Shows Spring Previews

By Peggy Preston

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—They threw all the glamor in the business at us today in the star-studded fashion shows that closed the New York Dress Institute's biannual press week.

It shouldn't have happened to a pocketbook-poor fashion reporter. For over eight hours we were treated to a concentrated parade of the most beautiful and expensive clothes in America, modeled by some of the country's loveliest girls. When it ended we knew there was only one thing left to do—trade ourselves in for a new face, figure, hairdo and wardrobe.

What we saw in this last series of showings were the collection of Hattie Carnegie, Nettie Rosenstein, Anthony Blotta and Joseph Whitehead. Each of these designers, in his own way, holds a unique and prominent position in the field of American fashion. But to La Carnegie, trend-setter, and darling of the social register trade, goes a special salute for her 1949 collection. In a day packed with spectacular fashions, hers were outstanding.

The famous Carnegie suits were noteworthy pieces in the collection. They are young, high-spirited, the jackets trim and fitted in the manner Carnegie does so well. Skirts can be slim or full, according to taste, but they are executed with such fine attention to detail that they have a distinction all their own. Two new silhouettes are featured; the flash-back silhouette, in which a line drawn smoothly over molded hips is climaxed at center back by low-placed pockets, pleats or folds, and the side interest silhouette in which the fabric is drawn in a pouf over one hip.

Darling little capelets, bolero length, with short sleeves were sprinkled through the collection. One, of sparkling white pique, was worn over a navy wool street dress, could double on a summer evening dress. Coat dresses, made of a variety of light fabrics, were other outstanding pieces. Designed to be worn either as a coat or dress, they have sloping shoulder lines, tight little bodices and full skirts. One we liked best was of blue linen, worn with yellow accessories.

For dinner and formal wear Miss Carnegie offers some of her characteristic taffeta suits, embroidered or trimmed with crystal and pearls. Chiffon is a favorite fabric also, but sure to be popular are her formal gowns. One is of gray dotted swiss over a skirt of pink taffeta. Matching stole is of dotted swiss, banded in pink satin. Another simple, but effective dress is of white pique, the pockets lined with pink satin.

Hats in the Carnegie collection are generally small and subdued. Her jewelry puts the accent on crystal, pearls and rhinestones. Another Carnegie offering for spring are glamorities. These, you can make yourself. They are small lengths of ribbon, velvet, linen or shantung, trimmed at either end with artificial flowers or bows. Tied under the chin, they give a spring-like touch to any costume.

Eye-Catching Fashions

NETTIE ROSENSTEIN, showing her spring collection at Sherry's proved again that she is a past master in the art of creating daring and eye-catching evening clothes. It would be impossible for a woman to be ignored in a Rosenstein dress.

She used many devices to make her costumes wearable as well as arresting. Drawstrings are used extensively on necklines, and the scooped-out overskirt over a pencil slim skirt is one of her favorites. One of the latter comes in regal white alencon lace over a sheath of white pique.

For the Sophisticated

ANTHONY BLOTTA'S collection of costumes for the mature, sophisticated woman, was one of the loveliest seen here this week. He calls it "New Frontier Fashion," but it has no relation to buckskin or high-buttoned shoes. On the contrary, it is made of the most feminine and flattering of fabrics, and it deserves its name from such Blotta innovations as "puritan collars," "gauntlet pockets," and "frontier shawls."

His choice of colors are lovely and hazy, and he uses aristocratic materials such as silk shantungs and silk serges, chiffon taffeta which is thin, cool and crisp.

Outstanding among his dinner and evening dresses are the two-piece ensembles. One, for instance, has a mist gray double skirt and gold faille jacket top, the latter completely veiled and beaded in gray.

But best of all, perhaps, is the appearance again in the Blotta collection of a classic one-button suit. Tailored to perfection, such an outfit continues to stand out in a year of pepulums, bows, pockets and multiple buttons.

Favorite Fancies Range From Garnet Roses, Plumes To Inaugural Ball Tickets

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THINGS WE'VE LIKED LATELY: Up on the Hill they are saying the only way Harry Truman can balance the budget is to guess "The Mystery Tune." . . . The Floridan alibi for those wizened grapefruit received in fancy Christmas gift baskets—we grow ALL kinds of fruit!

The new-version French telephone story: A State Department official at the Paris United Nations meeting put in a call for Palestine Mediator Dr. Ralph Bunche at his headquarters on the Island of Rhodes. Three hours later the call came through. On the other end of an exceedingly fuzzy wire was an exceedingly puzzled Dr. Munch—in Rhode Island!

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's newly sharpened sense of humor: At the Women's National Press Club luncheon, her witty account of how her Human Rights Committee argued hotly a full month over the precise meaning of only three words.

The weird taste sensations Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan creates with his electric mixer—a macedoine of juices from vegetables which haven't even nodding acquaintance . . .The potent libation mixed by Herbert Edwards, head of the State Department's International Motion Picture Section and husband of India. Because the unidentifiable liquid is served in an ice-filled beaker, he calls it "Little Eva." After a coupla gulps Mr. E. guarantees the bloodhounds will come galloping!

The parlor game played at the Aubrey Morgans: Guests are furnished scissors, paste, a pile of sentimental valentines. Prizes go to those who recreate prettiest, funniest, most personalized variations.

Ohio Representative Bolton's smart way of wearing flowers: A knot of carnations fastened to her wrist by a ribbon bracelet . . . The deep crimson version of the Sweetheart rose—they're called Garnet roses . . . The dusky Mediterranean blue walls of Mrs. Rowan Shevlin's living room: it's lifted from an overmantel Raoul Dufy water color.

That Henry Wallace's son, John, married Martha Rudy, daughter of the Republican county chairman down in St. Petersburg, Fla. John raises pedigreed chickens for his pa.

THE TOBACCO brown vest worn by Brazilian Nabuco on even the niftiest occasions . . . The black onyx and gold-set-with-diamonds pendant and chain worn by Melissa Childs at her New Year's Day coming-out reception. It was designed by her great-great grandmother and executed during her stay in London years ago.

The newly out "your handbag directory," useful addresses and telephone numbers assembled by Mrs. Robert McKay and Mrs. W. Jasper Dubose, now on sale at local hotels and newsstands.

Mrs. Max Gardner's smooth black satin getups—beautifully cut dress topped by widebrimmed black hat conservatively aswoop with paradise feathers . . . Mrs. Spessard Holland's harlequin glasses which make her look doubly alert . . . The cupid earrings worn by Rose Forrester, one of our two women labor commissioners. Mrs. Forrester, one of the first women to work as labor conciliator, adds zip to her person and profession by always appearing in a red hat. The earrings, incidentally are silver gilt, the fat cherubs armed with businesslike bows.

THE HANDSOME Inaugural Ball tickets—an eagle with spread wings standing on a laurel wreath, behind the Washington panorama. The border, 13 gold stars framed with a blue and red line.

The charming, sheer, embroidered lingerie blouses worn with ankle length skirts to semiformal affairs by the French Embassy's Mme. Armand Berard and Mme. Jean-Claude Winckler. . . . The invitation from Jean Daridan and Pierre Lancelot, French Embassy Counselor and Naval Attache, to a 1900 period "diner de Tetes" at which "les dames garderont leurs chapeaux."

Mrs. Andre Visson's wonderful "Daniel Boone" hat with a fat silver fox tail hanging from crown to shoulder. . . . California's three-wheel Davis car here at last—a special one to be presented to President Truman.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Couple in Thirties, Happily Wed 10 Years, Seem Threatened With Rift as Man Responds To Chic Matron's Bold Bid for His Interest

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Bill and I, college graduates in our middle thirties, have been happily married for 10 years and have two adorable children. Bill is a very attractive man, has a fine position and is a good provider. We always seemed to understand each other perfectly, but recently a disturbing situation has developed.

We have been seeing a good deal of a childless couple for whom I don't care especially. The man is fiftyish, dull and insignificant. His wife, about our age, is quite attractive and dresses beautifully. She is secretary to an executive with whom Bill does a lot of business and I imagine she spends all her salary and some of her husband's on her wardrobe.

Dance Together Quite Ardently

SHE and Bill show much interest in each other, and no matter where the four of us go, I am always left with John (her husband) who seems indifferent to their flirtation. Bill and Helen (the wife) dance together almost exclusively and quite ardently, which to me is nauseating; and she constantly flatters him in a way that is tonic to his ego.

She shows no particular regard for me, but I am positive she is in love with Bill, and I feel she is the type who would stop at nothing. Twice when John and Helen called us to go dancing, I egged off, pleading a headache, hoping Bill would decline, too. Instead, he said, "Well, I'm going anyway," and off he went.

Since then I've seen fit to go, too, despite the fact that Bill's and Helen's infatuated behavior sickens me. Thus far I've tried to pretend that I haven't noticed anything amiss, hoping the attraction would wear off, but it's getting worse. Two of my best friends lost their husbands (via divorce) to other women, and I certainly don't want my home broken up, so please advise me before too late. G. R.

Passive Patience Isn't the Answer

DEAR G. R.: In the 1930s, when this column was started, there was in social currency a generally respected psychological theory that a wife should go to great lengths to register joyous, trustful unawareness of "trouble on the horizon," in the face of evidence that her husband was blowing up a storm of intrigue with another woman.

According to this school of thought, a wife's best defense in such circumstances was to mark time with pretty smiling patience until the storm blew over, as the theorists said it most likely would if given no resistance.

Looking back, in the light of a lot I've learned about human nature since, I think that theory must surely have been coined by some philandering male to delude his wife into fancying it wise to humor his indiscretions. As purportedly protective counsel, it lacks realism.

Always Fight Fire Soon as Detected

THE TIME to put out a fire, or make a valiant try, is right at the start, when the first whiff of smoke is scented; and the same rule applies to disloyal flirtations, whether initiated by one's husband or "the other woman."

Thus as regards Helen's play for Bill, an ungloved counter-attack was due from you, as a constructive measure, the moment you first became aware of it; and this would include (1) a curt statement or eloquent stare of disapproval of their dance performance; (2) also a blunt questioning of Bill, "What goes on here? Who is going out with whom?" the minute you got him home after a "nauseating" evening; and (3) a clincher refusal, then and there, to pretend further friendship with Helen or tag along in foursomes with her thereafter.

Having bared the issue and put your cards on the table, you might then resume with profit the airs and manners of devoted comradely wife, in all situations excluding Helen, and drop the subject; but not before. The average Joe thinks more of his wife for putting the fear of God in him when he knows he's doing wrong; and conversely, his regard for her diminishes if he senses she lacks courage to challenge a rival with spunky candor. So bear this philosophy in mind, and have the good sense to verbally slap Bill's infatuation in the face. M. H.

Austrian Envoy Calls for End Of Occupation to Aid Recovery

By Genevieve Reynolds

"FULL recovery of the Austrian national economy can not be accomplished unless the military occupation comes to an end," declared the Austrian Minister, Dr. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, in a luncheon address yesterday before the Woman's National Democratic Club.

He told the large audience that the Austrian people want and hope for an agreement for mutual evacuation of the occupying forces, an early treaty with the 1937 frontiers established by a plebescite and sanctioned by international agreements. The country, he pointed out, now is being occupied by the United States, France, Great Britain and Russia, with Vienna itself being jointly occupied by the four powers.

Both the government and Austrian people gratefully acknowledge all American aid, given through UNRRA, loans, private donations of food and clothing plus the abandonment of occupation costs, according to Dr. Kleinwaechter. "The United States is the only country relinquishing occupation costs," he explained. "About 10 per cent of the Austrian budget goes to defraying occupation costs of Russia, Great Britain and France."

"The Russians don't interfere much in Austrian affairs, and the other powers interfere even less," averred the speaker who admitted that the Soviets had kidnaped some Austrian officials.

He also pointed out that the Soviet lays claim to all property which had been expropriated by the Nazis, including private Jewish property. "Austria had intended to return the property to Jewish owners but the Russians declared it German assets and claimed it for themselves," he said.

Dr. Kleinwaetcher, reviewing Austrian history, asserted that Austria had fought Nazism from 1933 to '38 without support from the democracies. "A secret Nazi Gestapo report stated that less than 10 per cent of the people could be relied on as Nazis," he maintained.

"There never was a spontaneous expression of Austrians to give up their independence," he emphasized. "One of the fallacies created and propagated by Hitler's Third Reich was that Austria could not survive economically."

The speaker said the Americans had done everything possible to facilitate the recognition of Austrian independence and to help obtain a just treaty.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, club president, presided and introduced the speaker. A special guest of the club was Mrs. Ingram M. Stainback, wife of the Governor of Hawaii. She presented to several club officers orchid leis flown here from Honolulu.

Jack Logan Host at Party For Bassetts

MR. AND MRS. Robert C. Bassett of Chicago were honored yesterday at a cocktail party given at the Sulgrave Club by Jack Logan. Mrs. Bassett is the former "Punka" Holmes, daughter of Mrs. George Holmes. Guests at the party numbered around 80, were drawn from hunt country circles and official circles.

Hints for the Homemaker . . .

If you find the bathroom or fireplace tiles to be a little loose, fix them immediately before they are lost. A little plaster of paris mixed with vinegar to a paste should be smeared on the loose tiles and the tiles then cemented into place. Protect them from footsteps until they are thoroughly hardened.

Sometimes we are in a hurry to defrost the refrigerator and this is a speedy way to accomplish it. Turn the unit off, empty the ice cubes from the trays and fill trays with boiling water. Replace them in the freezing unit and when the water cools, refill with more hot water. In a short time the unit will be free of ice.

Extra Fuzz

Do not worry when the new rug appears to be shedding like the dog, it is only the excess yarn left from weaving and after a few vacuumings will entirely disappear. Should a new rug have a piece of wool, standing up above the other strands, cut it off even with the others, never pull it out.

Ask Anne — Where to Purchase Navajo Rugs

In answer to L. T.'s request as to where she could purchase Navajo rugs, may I suggest the following: In the Department of the Interior (the building which runs from C st. to Constitution ave., between 18th and 19th nw.), there is a very fine Indian Arts Shop handling Indian work from all over the country. The workmanship and materials are the best to be had and the price is about what one pays in the West for the same quality goods.

All the work is done in Government schools for Indians throughout the country and the money (except for handling costs, I imagine) goes direct to the Indian who did the work. The shop is on the first floor of the Interior Building, entering from the Constitution ave. side. It is closed during the lunch hour, but is otherwise open every weekday from 9:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., I believe. R. D. W.

Thanks to R. D. W. and others who wrote us about where to buy Navajo rugs. A number of the other letters received are being forwarded to L. T.

Will you relist the Seattle address (given in one of your columns last October) of the shop where old records were almost always obtainable D. JOCKEY.

The firm is Theodore Fillipi, 1107 30th ave., Seattle 22, Wash. Another firm specializing in old records is the Record Collectors' Exchange, 56th st. and 5th ave., New York, N. Y.

I have a three-quarter length white chenille coat. I would like to combine it with some material to make a house coat. Can you suggest what to use? T. M. L.

The least conspicuous method of lengthening the coat would be to let out the hem and sew pieces of muslin, of a color and texture similar to the foundation material of the coat, to the bottom. Before you sew this on, rip the side seams of the coat open for a foot or so and put the muslin on in three pieces. Cut these the same width as the two front pieces and the back. When these three pieces are sewed to the coat, sew up the now lengthened side seams. Finish off the plain pieces, which have been added, to match the rest of the garment by tufting it with chenille cotton or rug cotton (sold in art needlework departments). Using the special needle recommended for this work, it takes very little time or skill to cover the sewed-on piece with tufts to make it match the rest of the garment.

To W. O. C., who is having trouble with a wool dress that scratches: Some of the shops sell a thin cloth underbody, like a skeleton blouse, to protect persons who are allergic to wool and to be worn under wool sweaters G. J. C.

What is the address or telephone number of the place where eider down comforts may be renovated and recovered? H. D. S.

What is the best method to use in trying to restore some knitted garments to their original whiteness? They have become slightly yellow from age and frequent washings. A. B.

Soak the garments in a solution of 4 tablespoons sodium perborate to a pint of soapy water. Use only mild soap in the water and rinse thoroughly.

Could you tell me how to remove a film which has formed on my plastic shower curtain? MRS. S.

Lay the curtain on a flat table and sponge with a cloth wrung out of vinegar. When this removes the soap film, wash with soapy water, rinse thoroughly and dry.

I would appreciate knowing a way to remove decals from a painted surface without scratching the paint. I have tried soaking with water to no avail. D. D. B.

Moisten the decals with hot vinegar, allow to stand 20 to 30 minutes and you should be able to remove them easily. If this doesn't work, possibly the entire surface has been coated with varnish after the decals were applied. If this is the case it is necessary to first remove the varnish from the surface of the decal by using a good commercial varnish remover. Work carefully so as not to get the remover on the surfaces surrounding the decal. When the varnish is gone, apply the hot vinegar as described above.

A firm which does this work can be reached by calling Ordway 1812.

I have purchased the gum arabic for renewing old lace but do not know the method or quality used for this. The lace is a rose point wedding veil and I prefer not to send it out. H. D. S.

Add 1 pint of boiling water to 1 ounce of powdered gum arabic. Stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with 2 or 3 quarts of lukewarm water according to the stiffness desired.

Is there any way to remove gray spots on our black, marble-like hearth caused by a cleaning solution being spilled and allowed to stand? I tried paste wax over the whole hearth, but the spots show up more than ever. H. R.

The cleaning solution has undoubtedly bleached the color from the spots so the only way to remove them is to apply a high-grade black floor paint or enamel to the entire hearth. Before you paint, be sure to first remove all soil and wax by wiping the hearth with benzine. Of course, the fire place must be cold before this is done since benzine is inflammable.

I have used the rust remover you have mentioned in this column to take out rust spots on a light rug, caused by metal lugs on furniture legs. The rust seemed to come off while the spots were damp, but when dry, each rust spot reappeared. This happened several times and nothing else I have tried has any effect. Have you any suggestions? H. R.

Some rust stains can only be removed by using a stronger bleach, and sometimes that doesn't even work. However, you might try a bleach such as oxalic acid. Make a solution of 3 tablespoons of oxalic acid crystals to 1 pint of water. (Oxalic acid is poisonous so take every precaution in using it.) Apply this solution directly to the stain. Or moisten the area and sprinkle oxalic acid crystals directly onto the rug. Work into the pile of the rug, allow to stand a few minutes, and rinse thoroughly. Be sure to test the effect of the crystals on the rug color at an inconspicuous spot before applying to the stained area. This treatment may be repeated if necessary.

What home method could be used to "touch up" faded spots (rather yellow) on a mink-dyed muskrat coat? R. B.

You can much improve the faded spots by touching them up with hair dye. Follow the directions for applying which come with the dye you buy.

Inquiries and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters or cards to Anne, Room 403, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Birthmarks

Prominent among the old wives' tales that have come down through the years is the one about birthmarks being caused by some experience the mother has had before the child was born. Perhaps she ate too many strawberries on a hot day and her youngster's face was marked by a strawberry-like birthmark. Or there's the very common one about frightened by a mouse. Many a child has a birthmark that parents are sure was caused by such fear.

There is no scientific evidence for any of these stories. The unborn baby is well protected against any such occurrences. Birthmarks are caused by something going slightly wrong in the process of growth before the child is born. In some instances, they seem to have been inherited through one side of the family or the other.

It is wise to have medical treatment early if your doctor advises it. Some kinds of birthmarks can be removed easily in the early months. If the mark is particularly unsightly, you will want to make a special effort to get good medical help so that the child won't be embarrassed as he is growing up.

What's the Verdict?

FAULTY FAUCET

Q. A faulty faucet in an apartment permitted enough of a leak to cause a constant gurgling sound. This was no distraction to the calm-nerved tenant of that apartment, but it was a constant irritant to the nervous occupant of the next-door apartment. He complained to the management, which sent a plumber to fix the offending faucet. This was done with no notice to the tenant and at a time when the tenant wasn't home. Was it a trespass?

A. During the period of his lease, a tenant has the same right to exclusive use of his apartment as he would have of a detached house. But most landlords reserve either specifically or implicitly a right to enter an apartment for reasonable purposes and at reasonable times. This sometimes includes the right to enter for purposes of showing the quarters to prospective new tenants when the old tenant has given notice. In the particular case, the landlord would have a right to enter upon reasonable notice and at a reasonable time to fix the faucet (a) to cut down the water bill and (b) to end the nuisance to the other tenant. But he should have arranged a time convenient to the tenant, and the entry technically was a trespass. The damages? Only nominal.

Radios Illegal, Except When They're Legal

The argument over "transit radio" is on in full force. As indicated here Saturday, local streetcars and buses will soon be wired for sound.

Most of Capital Transit's plans follow the pattern outlined in my item on the procedure followed in other cities.

A major departure, however, is the proposal to add 2-minute newscasts, at 20-minute intervals.

The transit company says that the loudspeaker closest to the driver will be so regulated that he will not be distracted. And I certainly hope they're right.

Because Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King said on my "This Is Washington" program Monday that any radio reception which diverts the attention of the driver would be in violation of the law.

And the commercials might also be distracting, if loud enough to be heard by the driver. But on the whole, the plan will probably turn out to be acceptable to most riders.

In countries which prohibit radio commercials, the government charges a license fee for listening.

We prefer our own system, in which the sponsor pays the freight. And so long as we do, transit radio is probably no more objectionable than any other form of broadcasting.

True enough—at home you can shut the doggone thing off if you like, whereas on a streetcar you can't. But on a streetcar the commercials will be shorter, and in better taste. And they won't sing.

A TIP FROM HAIGHT

Walter Haight, whose residence in Washington dates back to L'Enfant's day, has a prediction to make. He says:

"If past inaugurals are any criterion, at least 500 people who pay for tickets in the reviewing stands will not be able to use their seats.

"They'll approach the stands from the wrong side of Pennsylvania ave., and the cops won't let them get across the street. Watch and see if I'm not right."

MIGHT BE, COULD BE, IF, PERHAPS AND PROBABLY

While the official weatherman was making up his mind (and his predictions) regarding Inaugural Day prospects, Don Cameron of the Amateur Weathermen of America was checking the dope sheet for past performances.

He finds that the warmest January 20th on record saw a high temperature of 64 degrees. That was in 1880, 1890 and 1907. The coldest was in 1940, when the mercury dropped to 8 degrees above zero.

The wettest Inaugural Day was in 1937, when 1.77 inches of rain fell.

It has never snowed as hard on January 20 as it did for Mr. Taft's inaugural on March 4, 1909, when a 10-inch fall blanketed the city.

As a matter of fact, Don says that the records show that the weather is consistently better on January 20 than it is on March 4.

But in spite of past performances, here's what COULD happen some day:

In 1881, a January day brought a low temperature of 14 below zero; in 1932 the "high" January reading was 77. So the weathermen figure that anything within those two extremes is possible for some future inaugural.

If you'd like to know the probabilities for this January 20, Don has them all figured out for you. He says:

There are approximately seven chances in 10 that it will neither rain nor snow.

There are eight chances in 10 that the temperature will be above freezing.

There are four chances in 10 that the mercury will be above 45 at parade time.

Putting away his charts and slide-rule, Don therefore comes up with this daring forecast:

"It could be warm, it may be mild, it might be cold, perhaps it will rain, and it probably won't snow—especially if we have a nice day."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Small 1-year-old dog needs big yard to romp in; can furnish license and rabies certificate." (Michigan 8467 after 6 p. m.)

"Beautiful coal-black dog, personality and faults in equal proportions; needs home in country." (Temple 6272.)

WHADDA YA WANT FOR A DIME—PERFECTION?

Bill Houston of 4015 71st ave., Landover Hills, Md., tells me that a friend of his was approached by a Washington Post carrier boy the other day.

"Wanna buy our special inoculation edition?" asked the lad. "It's only a dime for both days."

"'Inoculation edition?'" echoed the householder. "You mean 'inauguration edition,' don't you?"

"Well, inoculation or inauguration," replied the boy, "it's only a dime, so what can you lose?"

COLD TOES

As a punishment fit for their lucrative ruse,
The sadistic designers of women's shoes
Should have to endure the winter weather
With THEIR heels and toes deprived of leather.

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

C. Warren Loveless of 4416 Harrison st. nw. clips and forwards without comment this headline which recently appeared over Drew Pearson's column:

"Langer Probes Waves Uniforms"

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK — Hal Bloch, the radio writer, one day visited the office of Douglas Storer, the radio producer, to discuss a new program. They were interrupted by a phone call for Storer, who told the caller: "Yes, don't worry about it . . . Take it easy . . . Yes, it will be taken care of . . . Don't worry about it, I tell you. Yes . . . Yes . . . Believe me, there's nothing for you to get upset about, so relax . . . Relax, I tell you . . . I'll handle it . . . Yes . . . Don't worry, it'll be okay . . . Goodby." . . . "Who was that?" Bloch asked him. Storer replied, "Dale Carnegie."

The close friends of a noted Southern Governor are more concerned about his drinking than about his proposed legislation . . . Although Bill Bullitt still is anti-Administration, his son-in-law, Nicholas Biddle, will be on the Federal payroll for a long time. The Biddles have just arrived in Madrid, where he will work at the American Consulate.

The prop-ring used in "Life With Mother" is a real diamond ring. Miss Stickney returns it to the stage-manager at the end of each performance . . . During the run of "Life With Father," Miss Stickney's husband and co-star, Howard Lindsay, had to give her $2.50 in the second-act scene, as the climax to a comedy sequence about her bills. Miss Stickney started to save that $2.50. And they played "Life With Father" for such a long time that when they left the show Miss Stickney had more than $5000 in savings, merely by keeping the $2.50 her husband gave her at each performance.

The Federal Communications Commission finally has given its approval of the call-letters WFDR, for the new radio station owned by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union. The approval was withheld at first, but then Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and her family gave consent. Plans are being made by Morris Novik, the radio consultant who got Tallulah Bankhead into the Presidential campaign, to fly Miss Bankhead to the Inaugural and back to New York in time for her show.

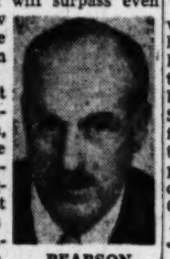
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Circus Fan Plans 'Greatest Show'

By Drew Pearson

As the clans begin to gather in Washington, D. C., it's generally conceded that the inauguration of Harry Truman will surpass even that of Andrew Jackson as the greatest show in history.



PEARSON

Perhaps that is because Melvin Hildreth, chairman of the Inaugural Committee, is lifetime president of the circus fans of America. Hildreth, one of the few District of Columbia politicos who never wavered in his belief that Truman would be reelected, has only one other love besides the President—the circus.

No circus ever comes to town but Mel Hildreth is down at the lot long before the big top arrives, making sure things are in order. If it has rained in advance, he'll get truckloads of cinders at his own expense to keep the show dry. When Ringling Brothers comes north for its first early spring opening in New York, Hildreth is down at the Potomac Yards in Alexandria, where the train stops en route to water the animals.

Mel's business is law. He is a practicing attorney. But those who know him sometimes wonder if he isn't really just a small boy at heart. Certainly no inaugural in history has been better planned or more extravagantly executed than that which will swear in Harry S. Truman as thirty-second President of the United States on Thursday.

Battery D Celebrates

Second only to the days in 1918 when they wheeled their French 75s into action in the Vosges Mountains, this week is the most momentous in history for Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, 35th Division. This week Battery D will march at the head of the inaugural parade as guard of honor to the little captain who commanded it in World War I.

Just before that parade there will be a reunion breakfast on Missouri ham attended by Capt. Harry Truman. There have been other reunions of Battery D, and Captain Truman is hoping this one won't be anything like the one back in 1921.

That was just three years after the end of the war and some members of Battery D were still unmarried, still in the process of getting readjusted. That reunion, staged in the Kansas City Elks Club, was carefully planned, from an elaborate dinner, to speeches, skits and song. The cocktails were served and wartime stories retold. Dinner was postponed while the drinks went round again—and then again—and some more.

Finally someone picked up a plate, sailed it across the room. Then "Dizzy Battery D" went on a rampage.

Some two hours and 400 plates later the reunion ended. Next day the Elks Club totaled the damages and presented a bill for $158 to the president of the Battery D Association.

Note—Three weeks ago in Kansas City, Truman, who had not been one of the active plate-sailers, chided his comrades-in-arms: "I'll be glad to see you all in Washington, but I don't look forward to buying another $158 worth of broken dishes."

Capt. Truman Under Fire

When Harry Truman was a very green and nervous artillery captain going into action for the first time he ran across Judge Bennett Clark, former Senator from Missouri, and son of the famed Speaker Champ Clark. Clark and Truman had trained together in the Missouri National Guard, and went to France together about the same time, Clark with the rank of lieutenant colonel in the 6th Missouri Infantry.

Truman's horse-drawn artillery had just arrived at a French railroad station behind the Vosges front in "40 and 8" boxcars, and was in the process of unloading when, suddenly Colonel Clark turned to Truman. Pointing dramatically to a dead horse lying near the railroad station, he commanded:

"Captain, you better get your men and guns out of here in a hurry. The Germans are shelling this place and you ought to unload and get under cover as quick as you can."

Taking Clark at his word, the nervous future President of the United States ordered his battery to detrain in a hurry, even pitching in himself to help. After Battery D had sweated frantically to get out of the "zone of fire," Clark walked over to Truman with a grin.

"That's a fine job, Truman," he said. "But the joke's on you. That horse wasn't killed by the Germans. He was shot by a veterinarian."

Truman didn't think the joke was so funny then. Since then, he has tackled other new jobs, and has pitched in, green and nervous, to get them done. Later, when he became President of the United States, and Bennett Clark was defeated for the Senate, he appointed the ex-lieutenant colonel who played the joke on him to a coveted seat on the United States Court of Appeals.

J. Edgar Hoover's Pay

Senator Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland, Democratic sponsor of the Government pay-raise bill, cited G-man J. Edgar Hoover in an article for American Magazine as one public servant who didn't get paid enough. Yet, when O'Conor drew up his bill to boost Government salaries, he strangely left Hoover's name off.

This omission caused a flare-up behind closed doors when Vermont's Senator Ralph Flanders, coauthor with O'Conor of the pay-raise bill, was questioned before the GOP Steering Committee to explain it.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire asked why the FBI director had not been included in the bill.
